Save Those Heirloom Seeds

Thousands of gardeners across the country are searching for "endangered" vegetable seeds. Through a non-profit organization called the Seed Savers Exchange (SSE), they are coordinating their efforts to save "old-time" vegetable varieities from extinction.

Kent Whealy of Decorah, IA, founded the SSE in 1975 after an elderly, terminally ill relative gave him seed of three garden plants the family brought from Bavaria four generations earlier.

Whealy started trying to locate other gardeners who were keeping seeds their families had passed down from generation to generation. He discovered most gardeners brought seeds with them when they immigrated to the United States.

These rare old-time seeds are still kept by many families in rural areas, but are in danger of being lost forever. Elderly gardeners often have no one to pass their seeds down to as younger relatives move to urban homes and give up gardening.

The SSE would like to hear from all gardeners keeping seeds which are unavailable in any catalog: beans grandmother raised, tomato seeds a friend's family brought from the old country, corn obtained from an Indian gardener, or a grain from the Amish.

OAKLAND PARK elected its Valentine king and queen last week and the winners were honored at a special program on Friday. Selected were Al Blylie and his wife Ella, 87, both residents of the home.

Each winter the SSE's 250-page yearbook contains the names and addresses of its 630 members, lists of the seeds they are offering, and lists of seeds they are trying to find. Each spring the SSE's members distribute thousands of seed samples to other interested gardeners.

The SSE's publications include a plant finder service which has helped hundreds of gardeners locate vegetable or fruit varieties they've tried to locate for up to 40 years. And a seed saving guide teaches gardeners how to save all of their own garden seeds and keep them pure and disease-free.

The SSE is maintaining a central seed collection of nearly 5,000 endangered vegetables and has formed a growers network of gardeners who "adopt" specific plants to keep them from dying out. So gardeners certainly don't have to already be keeping heirloom seeds to participate, Whealy said.

Gardeners who are keeping the seeds of any food plant that is not available commercially are asked to write: Seed Savers Exchange, Rt. 3, Box 239-A, Decorah, IA 52101. Include a detailed description of the plant and its history. Everyone who sends a 22-cent stamp will receive a two-page information letter describing the SSE's preservation projects and publications.

The SEE is also in contact with other preservation projects that are working with old fashioned flowers, antique fruits, rare poultry, and endangered livestock breeds. Describe any of those in your letters and the SSE will put you in contact with those organizations.

The SSE is not a seed company and its yearbook is not a seed catalog. It is a genetic preservation project for serious gardeners. The SSE has absolutely no commercial interest in these varieties and wants only to preserve them for future generations of gardeners to enjoy. It would be tragic if unique plants that you or your friends may be keeping would die out and be lost forever, said Whealy.

How To Enjoy Eating Alone

When you shop, pick out some special foods to ration out to yourself during the week. Include an exotic fruit, hors d'oeuvres you've always wanted to try, and a goodie or two.

Keep some healthful snacks on hand such as cheese, fruit, wheat crackers and fresh vegetables, to nibble on while you prepare your dinner. Satisfying your immediate hunger will help you finish cooking dinner before you start picking at it. It is important to sit down to your complete meal.

Hold a dress rehearsal for a dinner you plan to give a friend later. Set up your dinner table in a new location, test out your menu, including a new recipe or two, plan your garnishes and plan the table setting and centerpiece.

Good Eating For Seniors

Lutheran Social Service senior nutrition program began serving meals at the Heritage community center January 5, according to Judy TeBeest, assistant director for the program.

The nutrition program is privately and publicly financed and is designed to assist older people to live healthier and more independent lives. The service is administered in Region I by LSS of Minnesota under a grant from the Northwest Regional Development Commission area agency on aging and is funded in part by the Older Americans act and the states of Minnesota.

Seniors and their spouses age 60 and older are invited to nutritious and delicious meals at the Heritage Community Center. The program asks for a free will, confidential donation to help defray the cost of the meal. A suggested donation of $1.50 has been set, however, no one is denied service due to inability to pay. Persons under 60 are also invited to share a meal at the new center. Cost for persons under 60 is $2.25.

Besides meals the center hopes to offer educational and recreational programs. All seniors are invited to attend. Reservations must be made one day in advance. To make reservations please call Sue Erickson between 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. at 681-2793.

HAPPY SENIOR'S Valentine King and Queen are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Armstrong, route one, Thief River Falls. The Armstrongs have been married 53 years. This picture was taken at the new Heritage community center.

SHOPPING FOR QUALITY

Kids — not only do they wear out their parents, but also their clothes. That's why it's important to look for and purchase quality clothing.

Easier said than done? Not necessarily. According to experts at Carter's, one of the largest manufacturers of children's wear, there are a number of quality features to look for when shopping.

"Grow" features, such as adjustable straps, turnback cuffs, and generous-cut sizing assure longer wearing time. Seams should have non-fray finishes. Securely fastened closures and trims, such as lace, embroidery or ruffles, reflect quality workmanship. And fiber contents of polyester and cotton, 100% cotton or 100% acrylic are safe bets for washability, wearability and comfort.

Rate Responsive Pacemakers Are Going Great

An 83-year-old police chief in Florida received his first heart pacemaker two years ago, and his fainting spells, which were caused by a slow heart rate, came to an end.

However, the pacemaker — which functioned at a constant rate of 70 beats per minute — also caused him to become tired when engaging in any kind of activity.

Without treatment, people whose heart beats irregularly can have heart rates so slow that they become dizzy and pass out because their brain does not receive enough oxygen.

Fixed-rate cardiac (heart) pacemakers provide a constant heartbeat and don't respond to activity. When they engage in activity, wearers of the units tire quickly.

While the development of the heart pacemaker thirty years ago provided a new lease on life for thousands of people, improvements in the units since that time have greatly improved the quality of that life.

Many new first time pacemaker wearers, as well as those requiring replacement units, are finding help in a new generation of rate-responsive units — pacemakers which speed up or slow down based on a patient's activity level. The first pacemaker to have this ability is called Activitrax manufactured by Medtronic, Inc. of Minneapolis. Activitrax cardiac pacemakers offer a level of activity never before possible.

Instead of beating at a steady 70 beats per minute, the Activitrax pacemaker senses when a patient undertakes ordinary activity and increases the heart rate accordingly.

The change provides the wearer with the cardiac output needed for the particular activity, e.g., walking, gardening, even dancing.

Key to the unit is a pressure-sensing quartz crystal which is bonded inside a titanium shell. When the crystal is bent or stressed by pressure waves it sends a message to the pacemaker to boost output.

And, when implanted as a replacement pacemaker, this rate-responsive unit can be connected to any existing conventional pacing lead.

With the units, heart rate can increase to as much as 150 beats per minute during exercise, or slow to 60 bpm during sleep. What's more, the unit can easily be re-adjusted without surgery in a physician's office to match a patient's needs, i.e., minimum and maximum rates for a 70-year-old would be less than that of a 30-year-old.

ST. HILAIRE SENIOR CENTER recognized its oldest man and women member by naming them king and queen of the Valentine's day observance this year. Honored by other members of the center were Ed Wik, 92 and Ann Sjulsvold, 86.

Seminar On Retirement

"Retirement — New Horizons" is the name of a seminar of interest to young senior citizens to be held at the Radisson St. Paul hotel on Wednesday, February 25. This presents an opportunity for aging Minnesotans to explore opportunities available in retirement.

The day-long seminar begins with a panel discussion on retirement possibilities for those who are already retired, but may be of even more interest to those who are contemplating and planning their retirement activities.

In the afternoon, Twin Cities comedian and senior citizen Merrilyn Belgum will entertain with a presentation entitled, "The Inner World of Merrilyn Belgum." Belgum may be familiar to some persons in the region as the luncheon speaker at the Northwest Region's 12th annual fall conference on aging October 14. This activity is scheduled to take place at the World Theatre at 10 East Exchange street in St. Paul.

Registration for the seminar is $20 which includes admittance to the panel discussion and Merrilyn Belgum, and noon lunch. The event has been organized by Judy Ravine, member of the Minnesota board on aging, which is responsible for the statewide administration of older Americans act dollars. MBA chair, Elva Walker, will be a member of the morning panel discussion with Donna Anderson of the National Retiree Volunteer center and radio talk show host Dutch Kastenbaum.

Tickets are available only through Metro Connections, 1450 Energy Park Drive, St. Paul 55108. For more information call Judy Ravine, 612-644-7152, or Faith Rud at the Northwest regional development commission, Thief River Falls, 681-2637. Reservations should be made by February 9.

Store Properly — And Think Small

A box of crackers, a quart of milk or a head of lettuce seldom get a chance to go bad in a big household. But it happens all the time to singles and couples. When you shop for five dinners and only three are eaten, you could have a problem! Unless the food is stored properly from the start, it might spoil before the next week. The way you store may be even more important in preventing waste than what foods you choose.

The primary enemies of food are air, heat and light. By controlling these factors through proper packaging and temperature regulation, you can add days, weeks or even months to the freshness of your groceries. Storage for specific foods is discussed in the introductions to the chapters on preparing those foods.

PROPER PACKAGING

Generally, food is best stored in airtight containers. The containers should maintain the dryness of foods such as crackers, or the moisture of foods such as brown sugar. Because air is a source of oxidation and possible contamination, the less air in the package the better. There are a few exceptions. Fresh meat should be wrapped loosely. Liquids or other foods to be frozen need some air space for expansion.

Wide-mouth peanut butter or honey jars are ideal for refrigerator or freezer storage. Plastic ice cream and deli food containers are also useful and usually nest together for storage between uses. Coffee cans and other cans with snap-on lids make excellent canisters for dry ingredients. Line them with plastic bags, if you like. Foil trays from prepared frozen foods can be reused many times.

You can purchase plastic freezer containers. Square containers use space efficiently and stack well. A six-ounce plastic container is perfect for many single servings. A two-ounce size is great for storing egg whites or yolks, or small amounts of ingredients. Some glass containers can be put directly from the freezer into the oven. These are fine for microwave ovens, too. Heat-sealed plastic bags are handy because they are transparent, flexible and make it easy to reheat their contents in boiling water. Always keep aluminum foil, plastic bags, plastic wrap and wax paper on hand.

IN THE FREEZER

Your freezer is the most expensive food storage space you have, based on operating costs. Save that space for foods you use frequently.

— Maintain a freezer temperature of 0 degrees F (-20 degrees C) or colder. If ice cream stays very firm, the temperature is about right.

— Put foods in airtight containers or wrap securely. Exclude air to prevent drying. Leave room for expansion in jars or cartons.

— Freeze foods in single-serving portions for quick thawing and cooking.

— Freeze foods you seldom use, such as shredded coconut, marshamallows, nuts and fresh ginger. Also freeze leftover egg whites, bread crumbs, grated cheese and butter. Chicken stock or lemon juice can be frozen in ice cube trays.

— Excess produce or dairy foods can be frozen. Freezing causes texture changes, so only use these foods in cooking. Chop onions, green pepper or other produce, freeze on a baking sheet, then store in plastic bags. Use thawed milks, creams, sour cream, yogurt, cottage cheese and cream cheese in baking.

IN THE REFRIGERATOR

— Maintain a refrigerator temperature of 35 degrees to 40 degrees F (2 degrees to 5 degrees C). Store meat, fish and dairy foods in the coldest parts — the meat keeper, the area around the cold air outlets or the space just under the freezer compartment. Store soft drinks, pickled items and other condiments in the door section.

— Cover or wrap all refrigerated food to prevent drying or flavor transfer.

— To retain freshness, refrigerate various opened staples. Items that benefit include pancake syrup, jams, peanut butter, ground coffee, olive oil, nuts and dried fruits.

— After serving cottage cheese, sour cream or mayonnaise in a separate dish, do not return the product to its original container. It may have deteriorated in quality at room temperature.

— If a fresh food threatens to spoil, cook it and refrigerate or freeze it for later use. Milk or cream can be made into cream soup, custard or hot chocolate. Or simple bring it to a boil and store it in an airtight jar for cooking later. Asparagus can be cooked, refrigerated and served later, hot or cold. Ground beef can be sauteed and refrigerated or frozen for use in skillet dishes.

AT ROOM TEMPERATURE

— Some foods keep best at room temperature. Store them in the coolest and driest parts of the kitchen, not on top shelves, on top of the refrigerator or under the sink.

— Enclose dry foods in airtight canisters or containers. Screw-top jars are effective.

— Organize cupboard storage so canned and packaged goods don't get lost. Finding a box of rice after you've replaced it is regrettable.

—don't display glass jars of herbs and spices outside the cupboard. Light is detrimental to their flafor and color. A cool dark place is best.

Storing Fresh Fruits & Vegetables

+ Most fresh fruits and vegetables keep best in a cold, humid atmoshphere.

+ Generally, do not wash or trim produce before storing. Remove only tops and damaged or rotting parts. Tops draw moisture from the vegetables.

+ Rinse leafy vegetables to restore crispness. Drain and wrap in slighly damp paper towels. Vegetables such as sweet corn, asparagus and mushrooms benefit from being wrapped in damp towels, also.

+ Store each type of produce, with or without paper towel wrap, in separate plastic bags to prevent drying and flavor exchanges.

+ Store frutis, including tomatoes and avocados, separately from vegetables to prevent ethylene gas reactions between produce items.

+ To prevent darkening of cut fruit, coat cut surfaces of avocados, peaches, apples, pears and bananas with lemon or other citrus juice.

Ripening Fruits

Many fruits, such as avocados, peaches, pears and bananas, are not fully ripened when purchased. A few days at room temperature out of the sunlight will usually ripen them, but there's a quicker way! Place all the fruits in a paper bag and enclose an apple, which will speed the ripening process. Loosely close the bag and put it in a cool dark place. The collected thylene gases from the fruits will ripen them quickly and evenly. Check the bag frequently and remove ripened fruit.

Avocados — An avocado is ripe when it yields to light pressure when held between the palms or when a toothpick pushed into the stem end slides easily to the seed.

Bananas — To slow ripening, refrigerate bananas or wrap in a damp cloth and put them in a loosely closed paper bag in a dark area. Keep the cloth damp. The skin will darken in the refrigerator.

Onions and Potatoes — Do not overstock in spring when sprouting is a problem. Store in a cool dry place out of sunlight. Sun causes potatoes to turn green. Cut off green areas before cooking.

Tomatoes — Keep tomatoes at room temperature until color develops. They will not ripen once they have been refrigerated.

Cooking & Serving Small

+ Use small bowls, pans and appliances for small-quantity cooking. Don't chase a tiny amount of batter around a large bowl. Too much of it will just end up in the dishwasher.

+ When a little food is cooked in a large pan, the juices spread out and evaporate or burn. You end up with dried-out food and no sauce.

Cooking and cleaning are easier when the amount of food and the size of the appliance are compatible. Smaller appliances also use less energy than large appliances. A microwave oven is ideal: the less you cook, the less time and energy it takes.

+ Use your basic stock ingredients to add variety to your cooking. Add flavor and decoration with seasonings, nuts, condiments, dairy products, cheeses, jams and jellies, liqueurs, tomato products, mushrooms and flavor bases.

+ Use leftovers and odds and ends to make cooking more interesting. Why make a plain omelet when there is leftover creamed spinach in the refrigerator? Leftovers, bits of produce and dairy products are great flavors just waiting for a recipe.

+ Don't forget what's cooking! If the phone rings while you are sauteing minced shallots, turn off the heat or move the pan. When several items on the range need attention, handle them one at a time and turn the heat off under the others.

+ To speed up cooking time, cut foods in smaller pieces and bake in smaller pans. Grated carrots cook faster than whole carrots, thin steaks broil faster than thick ones. Small casseroles or shallow au gratin dishes shorten cooking times slightly.

+ Prepare your favorite long-cooking and convenience food recipes in quantity. Freeze in serving portions. Be sure all ingredients are freezable.

+ While waiting for recipes to cook, prepare ingredients for future use. Grate cheese for the freezer or make breadcrumbs, clarified butter, or other items.

+ Serve food on warmed or chilled plates whenever appropriate. Small amounts of food cool off or warm up faster than larger quantities. Candle warmers and icers help maintain the desired serving temperatures.

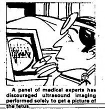
Routine Ultrasound Screening No Longer Recommended

Because there is not enough evidence that routine ultrasound screening of pregnant women benefits either the mother or the fetus, it was not endorsed by a panel that met at the National Institutes of Health recently.

The panel concluded that the use of ultrasound imaging in pregnancy should be limited to situations in which there is an accepted medical indication for the procedure.

Currently it is estimated that the percentage of pregnant women in the United States exposed to at least one ultrasound examination range from a low of 15 percent to a high of 40 percent. The true incidence of exposure may be much higher.

The panel discouraged ultrasound imaging performed solely to satisfy the family's desire to learn the sex of the fetus, to look at the fetus, or to get a picture of the fetus. They also recommended against the use of ultrasound solely for educational or commercial demonstrations without medical benefit to the patient



A panel of medical experts has discouraged ultrasound imaging performed solely to get a picture of the fetus.

Approve Reorganization Plan For Hydra-Mac

Reorganization plan of Hydra-Mac, Inc., of Thief River Falls has been approved by the bankruptcy court of the Fergus Falls district and the company will now be able to continue its efforts to recover and grow financially. Approval was given by the judge of the bankruptcy court Wednesday following a vote by creditors of the corporation.

Creditors were able to vote on the reorganization by mail until February 19, according to Douglass Steiger, president of Hydra-Mac. Approval required a vote of at least 50 per cent of the creditors involving two-thirds of the dollars owed. Final vote was over 80 per cent for approval.

The approval of reorganization plan is considered a major step in the hoped-for recovery. Hydra-Mac was formed in January of 1970 and moved into the Thief River Falls industrial park along the airport road in 1972. At one time in the late 1970's the company employed about 250 people and had $16 million in sales.

But conditions soured and a combination of factors resulted in the corporation's decision to file for bankruptcy under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code on Aug. 9, 1984. Last Wednesday's decision is the result of about two and one-half years of negotiations.

"Basically, we had to justify to the attorneys representing the creditors that we could meet our obligations to them for earnings on our operation," Steiger said. "In effect, we will be owned by the creditors for the next six years (the reorganization plan provides for a six-year pay-out) and if we are 10 days late on any payment during that time it would mean that we would be in default and the plan would be terminated."

Steiger said that the major creditors involved in the situation were very cooperative in allowing the company to continue to operate while bankruptcy proceedings were in progress. In fact, Hydra-Mac was continuing to purchase materials and supplies from many of the creditors on a cash basis while the negotiations were taking place.

Lack of insistence by the trustee to control operations of the company also contributed substantially to Hydra-Mac's ability to show potential for its recovery, Steiger said, because it permitted managerial flexibility as required on a timely basis.

Under terms of the reorganization, Hydra-Mac stands to have about $1.5

Tax Delinquencies In County Climb Above Record High

Tax delinquencies the end of December were higher than tax delinquencies from the previous year at the same time, according to Vicki Bjorgaard, Pennington county treasurer.

According to the treasurer's office, tax delinquencies increased from 5.72 per cent in 1985 to 6.03 per cent in 1986, the highest delinquency rate since 1944. The total amount delinquent for 1986 was $452,967.92, which was $37,078 more than 1985. Despite a higher tax levy, less money was generated.

The percentage of tax delinquency is far from the highest, which was recorded in 1938 — 15 per cent, followed by 13.9 per cent in 1939. The dollar amount from delinquencies in 1986 is by far higher than the amount in the year of highest percentage. When the greatest percentage of delinquency of 15 per cent in 1938 was recorded, the total levy for the year was only $326,078. The 1986 delinquency in dollars was about $127,000 higher than the total levy for 1938.

The lowest percentage of tax delinquency on record in Pennington county was 1.40 per cent in 1976, followed by 1.55 per cent in 1977, 1.74 per cent in 1975 and 1.8 per cent in 1958.

Pennington county's total tax levy for 1986 was $7,507,153.83. After homestead credits and other credits of $2,261,882.38 were subtracted from the total along with total delinquencies of $452,967.92, the total taxes paid were $4,792,303.52.

The total taxes paid this year were less than last year — $4,792,303.52 in 1986 to $4,836,385.65 in 1985. The difference is $44,082.13. The 1986 tax levy was $244,881 higher than the 1985 levy, but less money was collected.

The tax delinquency percentage for the city of Goodridge in 1986 was 7.03 per cent, the highest among the cities in Pennington county. The tax delinquency percentages for St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls were 3.87 per cent and 5.37 per cent, respectively.

While the city of Goodridge had the

Geske Family Honored For Dairy Operations

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Three years from now the Leonard Geske farm will have been in the Geske family for 100 years. Mr. and Mrs. Geske and their three children have been named honor dairymen for Pennington county by the Red River Valley Dairymen's association and were recognized at a banquet in Crookston during the Red River Valley winter shows.

Carl Geske began operating the farm located about three miles south of Thief River Falls in 1890 and the land later passed on to Leonard's grandfather Albert. Albert's son John, Leonard's father, farmed the land for a number of years until Leonard purchased it in 1977 after renting it for five years.

"As far as I know there have always been dairy cattle on the farm," Leonard said. "My Dad always had cattle (Mr. and Mrs. John Geske now live in Thief River Falls) and his father milked cows as well. Dad built the 32x70 barn in 1953 and I added 40 feet last year to make it 32x110. We increased the milking herd from 28 to 40 cows and made room in the barn for young stock."

Milking cows morning and night is a full job in itself, but keeping the animals in feed and health adds to the responsibility. The Geskes own only 125 acres and rent an additional 300 acres from relatives. Virtually all of the land is needed to produce feed for the cattle. About 150 acres of land are in alfalfa each year. Part of it is used for green chop feed for the cows — which are not pastured — and the remainder for the 10,000 square bales and additional large round bales of hay.

The square bales are kept under cover, either in the second story of the hip-roof barn or in covered hay sheds. A 30x60 shed was built in 1981 and a 22x48 shed was built earlier. Half of the latter is used to keep about 2,000 bales of straw under cover as well. Some baled straw is also stored in the upper story of the barn.

A barn cleaner was installed in the barn in 1974 and extended with the new addition last year. The cattle are milked with bucket milkers and a

Rural Development Ideas Heard By Subcommittee

REP. DENNIS POPPENHAGEN, a former resident of Thief River Falls, was a member of the Minnesota House of Representatives subcommittee on rural development which met in Thief River Falls Friday morning.

Local input regarding rural development needs and interests was presented when the Minnesota House of Representatives subcommittee on rural development conducted a meeting Friday morning at the city auditorium basement in Thief River Falls.

Rep. Roger Cooper chaired the meeting which was sparsely attended but permitted greater one-to-one conversation and discussion among members of the committee and area persons presenting testimony and suggestions.

Other members of the committee attending were Rep. Gary Schafer, Rep. Katy Olson, Rep. Todd Otis, Rep. Steve Dille and Rep. Dennis Poppenhagen. They were assisted by Susan Strate; committee administrator and Doug Wilson, legislative assistant.

Concern was expressed by several local people regarding continuance of the state's revolving loan fund which has been of economic assistance for industry here. Among those commenting on success of the loan fund locally were Jerry Wigness, city clerk; Mark Larson, representing Digi-Key; and David Strong, president of the chamber of commerce.

Mayor Bob Carlson questioned the economic impact of the agricultural situation on local economies and to what extent the state government would be willing to extend funding and effort to keep distressed farmers on the land.

Tourism and its increasing economic impact in this area of the state was noted by Sue Lillevold, executive director of the chamber of commerce. She noted that a combined tourist promotion group involving four cities had been formed, but that with the reduction of funding to regional tourism agencies there is a lack of money for promotion. She encouraged consideration of tourism as part of the rural development program.

Taxation came in for a considerable amount of discussion at the meeting, especially as it relates to the ability of businesses in rural communities to remain viable. It was pointed out to the visiting legislators that commercial taxes in Thief River Falls are increasing 20 per cent on the average in 1987 and a similar 20 per cent hike can be expected in the following year.

Dr. William Ramsay, who owns the Falls Mall in downtown Thief River Falls, explained to the committee that taxes on his building at the time of purchase about five and one-half years ago were $4,000. His 1987 tax statement shows the taxes now to be $16,000 — a 400 per cent increase in less than six years. He said it now requires a payment by renters of $1.60 per square foot just to cover taxes on the rentable portion of the property.

Shifting of taxes to the commercial area must be curtailed, he said, or businesses will find it to their economic advantage not to pay the taxes and forfeit their property. He said residential property should carry a heavier load because it is now disproportionate in relation to other taxes.

Lowell Enerson, manager of the Red Lake Watershed district office in Thief River Falls, expressed his concern as an individual about the PRESENTING TESTIMONY at the meeting of the Minnesota House of Representatives subcommittee on rural development Friday morning in Thief River Falls was Lowell Enerson, manager of the Red Lake Watershed district office in Thief River Falls. Enerson expressed his concern over several areas of the proposed Rural Development Act being considered by the legislature, especially relating to the composition of the board which would govern the program. "It's possible to have a good bill and a bad board," Enerson said. "In my belief, the proposed composition of the board as presented in the bill doesn't give rural people a chance to help themselves." Pictured at Enerson's right is Susan Strate, committee administrator, who made local arrangements and took notes for the committee during its meeting.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of cornflower crepe with jeweled neckline and side-draped overblouse featuring tucked bodice and waist. The groom's mother was attired in soft blue chiffon with blue satin collar and waist. The mothers were presented with corsages of a white phalaenopsis orchid with stephanotis.

Honored guests were Ruth Jensen, aunt of the bride, and William Storbakken, grandfather of the groom.

Following the ceremony, a formal reception and dance were held at the Thief River Falls country club. Host couples were Ted and Jean Hellie of Thief River Falls and Randy and Pam Aaker of Grand Forks, ND.

Highlight of the serving table, the wedding cake was a Lady Windemere creation, iced in ivory with pale pink rambling roses, topped with a "Precious Moments" bride and groom music box figurine. The cake was baked by Elva Fiedler.

Margo Idso, aunt of the bride, and Shirley Essary, sister of the groom, cut the weding cake. The groom's sister, Joyce Long, poured.

Nutrition Month Activities Set By Dietitians

American Dietetic association and Northwest Medical Center have designated March of 1987 as National Nutrition month, and the registered dietitians of Northwest Medical Center, Annette Hendrickx and Karen Heher, are scheduling a variety of activities to encourage employee and community interest in achieving a more healthy lifestyle through sound nutritional practice.

This year's theme, "Good Nutrition — A Personal Choice", stresses the importance of individual nutrient needs and making the "personal choice" to meet these needs.

The following dietary guidelines are intended to assist people in making a "personal choice" to lead a happier, healthier life:

(1) Eat a variety of foods by including items from the "Basic-4" food groups in your diet every day. These groups consist of fruit and vegetables, bread and cereal, meat and milk.

(2) Maintain desirable weight; if you're overweight your chances of developing some chronic disorders are increased. If you need to lose weight, eat a variety of foods that are low in calories and high in nutrients. Also increase your physical activity.

(3) Avoid too much fat, saturated fat and cholesterol by choosing lean meats, fish, poultry, skim or low-fat milk and milk products. Limit your intake of fats and oils, and moderate your use of egg yolks, organ meats and breaded deep-fat fried foods.

(4) Eat foods with adequate starch and fiber such as whole-grain breads and cereals, fruits, vegetables and dry beans and peas.

(5) Avoid too much sugar in your diet by decreasing the amount of all sugars and foods containing large amounts of sugars, including white and brown sugar, raw sugar, honey and syrups. Read food labels to identify if the food contains large amounts of sugar. Some other names for sugar include sucrose, glucose, maltose, dextrose, lactose, fructose and syrups.

(6) Avoid too much sodium by limiting the amount of salt you use in cooking and add to your food at the table. Remember to read food labels to determine if they have a high sodium content.

(7) If you drink alcoholic beverages, do so in moderation. Alcoholic beverages provide us with calories and little else.

"Remember, it's important to become knowledgeable about nutrition, but it depends on your personal choice!," Hendrickx and Heher said. If you have any questions concerning nutrition, or want further information about National Nutrition month, call Northwest Medical Center, 681-4240, extensions 418 or 441.

World Day Of Prayer Services On Friday

"Come and Rejoice" is the theme of the Thief River Falls World Day of Prayer services to be held at Zion Lutheran church Friday at 10 a.m.

World Day of Prayer celebrates its Centennial on Friday, March 6, 1987 proclaiming the theme, "Come and Rejoice." A 100-year-old prayer movement of global dimensions, the World Day of Prayer is a worldwide expression of mutual prayer and Christian unity. Its uniqueness lies in the fact that its expression is found in local communities and its leadership in laywomen of the church.

Begun in the United States in 1887 as a day of prayer for mission, it has developed into a movement in which Christians in some 170 countries and regions of the world gather each year to observe a common day of prayer. The same theme and worship service is shared and translated into hundreds of languages and dialects. In many countries, the event serves as a catalyst for women to come together as they work to bring about changes in their lives.

Church Women United, since its founding in 1941, has been the official sponsor of World Day of Prayer in the United States and has assumed responsibility for the preparation and distribution of World Day of Prayer resources and materials throughout the world.

World Day of Prayer offerings make possible, in part, the mission of Church Women United including the intercontinental grants for mission program.

In Thief River Falls, World Day of Prayer observance at Zion Lutheran church has Ruth Stenerson, a retired teacher at Bemidji state university, as the featured guest speaker. Organist for the service will be Jerry Joringdal. Song leader will be Madalyn Novellino. Leader of the service will be Carol Narverud, assisted by Myrtle Erickson, Zion Lutheran; Judy Johnson, First Baptist; Ginny Anderson and Libby Jones, United Methodist; Phyllis Johnson, Maxine McEwen and Judy Dimich, Redeemer Lutheran; Bev Holm, Judy Nelson, Iola Johnson and Karen Ekeren, Trinity Lutheran; Judy Jones and Ruth Goodrich, Evangelical Covenant; and Carol Jung and Mary Evans, St. Bernard's Catholic.

The service is open to the public and a special welcome is being extended by this year's host church. Zion Lutheran has an elevator to accommodate the handicapped and elderly.

Coffee and fellowship is scheduled for 9:15 a.m. and 11 a.m. Nursery services will be available from 9:15 to 11:30 a.m.

The offering will be divided among Church Women United, American Bible society and Thief River Falls food shelf.

The INSIDE SCOOP

by GAYLE BORCHERT

Dear Devoted Readers:

I know there are at least two of you (thanks, Mom and Dad). Since the school year is now officially two and a quarter semesters over since mid-quarter was the 20th for Lincoln students, it's time for the One-and-Only Official Inside Scoop Pop Quiz. Since this column is about high school life, I figure everyone should share in the joys that face us students every day. O.K., grab your pencils. Answers will be at the bottom. As Mr. Cornell would say, there are no trick questions in this quiz.

Question Number One (this one is Easy: What high school sports team had the only sell-out at the Lincoln gym and went 19-1?

(2) What was recently started at Lincoln and has an editor?

(3) What has caused the greatest source of embarrassment for the freshmen?

(4) How many new teachers were interviewed in this column?

(5) What season are all the sports currently in or approaching?

(6) What is the name of the spring musical at Lincoln?

(7) Who won the Sno-Fest competition at Lincoln this year?

(8) Who performed at halftime of the boys basketball game for band night?

(9) What team plays three rounds and uses information learned in biology, chemistry, history and English?

(10) What group represents the student body and plans events for them?

Since I believe in extra-credit, I'll throw out a tough one; if you get it you have an excellent memory and have read the column before.

(E.C.) For what project do I write this column?

Don't forget to check your answers and grade yourself accordingly. If you got them all right give yourself an A. 1-2 wrong is a B, 2-4 wrong is a C, and 4-6 wrong a D. But if you got the bonus question it is an automatic A.

On to the real news at Lincoln. The girls basketball team did lose its final game to Fergus Falls, but what a show of team, school and community spirit! I have never before attended a girls basketball game where they actually locked the doors. It was really something. Everyone at Lincoln is waiting to watch the girls play on March 5 at home when they will play Bemidji in the first round of the North sub-region.

The Knowledge Bowl season is now in full swing. The team practices two nights a week after school. An inside joke on the Knowledge Bowl team is that some members jokingly refer to the Knowledge Bowl as NB. One member, who shall be nameless, definitely needs to practice up on spelling skills.

Schedule of Events

March 2 — Section 8 hockey tourney at East Grand Forks;

March 3 — Section 8 hockey tourney at East Grand Forks; boys basketball vs. Warren (home);

March 5 — Girls basketball vs. Bemidji (home);

March 6 — Boys swimming sectionals at UND; Section 8 hockey tourney at East Grand Forks;

March 7 — Boys swimming sectionals at UND.

Reorganization Plan For Hydra-Mac Approved

million in debt forgiven. But the reorganization plan is extremely complicated, including 14 classes of creditors and a complex repayment procedure which puts the Internal Revenue service and attorneys involved in the bankruptcy at the head of the list of creditors to be paid.

"We haven't borrowed a cent for operation since we filed under Chapter 11 in August of 1984," Steiger said. "Yet we have been able to operate and show a profitable operation during that time. The creditors recognize that the only way they stand to recover any of their losses is to allow us to continue to operate. Liquidation would not be to anyone's advantage."

Steiger also had high praise for the approximately 43 employees who have been hanging tough with the company over the past four years. He said that the employees have accepted salary reductions when the company deemed them necessary to stay in operation and had endured lay-offs when they also became necessary.

"They have been incredibly loyal to me and to the company," Steiger said, "and have pitched in on their own in many areas — such as building wood stoves to reduce costs of plant heating — in an effort to help salvage the company and their jobs. They have all been full-time employees to about the past year and one-half."

Despite the pressures to keep the company's operation profitable enough to repay scheduled debt, Steiger said he welcomes the opportunity to have Hydra-Mac become a viable and growing firm once again. He said employees of the company have been able to spend time developing new models despite the pressures and that improvements in the products have been forthcoming from research and development." The company manufacturers front-end loaders.

Regarding the apparent success of the Chapter 11 procedure, Steiger offered a bit of sage comment about the situation: "It seems we have always been able, during these proceedings, to stay half a step ahead of the next dilemma. I would file for Chapter 11 again because I feel we had no choice, but I wouldn't recommend it."

Subcommittee Hears Ideas On Development

proposed rural development act and its governing board. He said he is familiar with rural development as a result of his service as clerk of Equality township and member of the regional development commission and Garden Valley Telephone company boards, but that he was not testifying in behalf of any of these.

Enerson said he believed it was possible to have a good bill but a bad board, and he questioned if the proposed governing arrangement would give rural people an opportunity to help themselves. He proposed giving responsibility of the board to rural Minnesota people.

Under the act as proposed, governance would be by a board consisting of the commissioners of energy and economic development, jobs and training and agriculture; chairperson of the Greater Minnesota corporation; state director of vocational-technical education; chancellors of the state university board and community college board; president of the University of Minnesota; representatives of a farm organization, business and labor.

Enerson suggested that the rural development board consist of the commissioners of energy and economic development and jobs and training, representatives of rural community colleges and AVTIs, rural member of the University of Minnesota board of regents, two members of farm organizations, representative of rural businesses, labor organization, chairpersons of the Minnesota Association of Counties and Minnesota Association of Townships and a member of a rural woman's organization.

He also suggested that the Greater Minnesota Corporation board not be self-appointed when vacancies occur and not be empowered to set its own compensation for board attendance. His proposal also included virtually an entire rural board membership.

Another point was made by David Strong who suggested that there be a greater distribution of state and federal government offices rather than concentrations in specific communities.

Valley School Of Missions Returns From Mexico Trip

Valley school of missions outreach team, a group of 33 area residents, recently returned from a 15-day mission to Monterrey, Mexico.

The two pastors that directed the Valley school of missions, David Buehring of Euclid and Ollie Urdahl of Thief River Falls, commented enthusiastically on the culmination of the school. Rev. Buehring said, "It was encouraging to see the Lord Jesus moving in and through the lives of each of the students and those who joined us on the outreach. Each one had the privilege of learning more about living out the Christian message in real and practical ways. We have all benefited greatly from having the chance to serve the precious opportunities committed Christians here in the valley will have to directly be a part of fulfilling Jesus' command to make disciples of all nations."

Rev. Urdahl said, "The students of Valley school of missions will be available to share their experiences with churches or youth groups throughout the valley. We have already had invitations to share in some services and gatherings since our return, and will continue to be available to serve in any place that there is a need."

There were several purposes in the trip to Mexico, one of which was to participate in a program to make the Bible available to every home in Mexico. Each of the area residents on the trip provided $50 toward the purchase of New Testaments, which were distributed in an assigned area of Monterrey. On the day following the arrival of the group in Mexico, the 33 Red River Valley residents began to provide the scriptures to each house and family in the assigned area.

The area assigned to the group was a colonia, which is a sort of subdivision of very poor housing, called San Angel. Each day the busload of Americans would pull up to the impoverished area and begin a systematic distribution to each casa (house) in the colonia.

An area church called "Jesus De La Respuesta" (Jesus Is The Answer) provided members of its congregation to accompany the Red River Valley residents on the delivery of the scriptures to the homes. Some close, loving relationships were formed by the coworkers despite the apparent language and custom barriers, the pastors said.

Another Valley school of missions is scheduled to start in November of 1987. Consideration is being given to developing further training for area residents in the areas of counseling and leadership schools. Brochures detailing the plans will be available in May.

Feedlot Workshop Schedule Set By Pollution Agency

Livestock and poultry farm operations in Minnesota are an integral part of the state's farm economy, but the massive volume of animal wastes produced by those operations, if not properly managed, can cause serious surface or ground water pollution.

Stormwater runoff from barnyards or manure storage areas, even on very small farms, can contaminate wells, transmit disease, increase algae growth in nearby lakes, or destroy the ability of a lake or stream to produce game fish.

The Minnesota Pollution Control agency (MPCA) is sponsoring a series of feedlot pollution control workshops for land managers and local officials interested in learning how to prevent this kind of pollution. The day-long workshops will be held on March 24 in New Ulm, March 25 in Rochester, March 27 in St. Cloud and April 1 in Fergus Falls.

Topics to be covered during the workshops are types and amounts of pollution potentially caused by livestock and poultry farms, how to determine if a farm is causing pollution, MPCA rules for livestock and poultry farms, types of MPCA feedlot permits and how to apply for them, sources of financial and technical assistance for farmers with pollution problems, how to develop a manure management plan for a farm, and how local units of government can be involved in the feedlot permit program.

MPCA staff say the program is designed to assist farmers, county zoning administrators, sanitarians, local health officials, soil and water conservation district staff, watershed district managers, farm lenders, county commissioners and other citizens interested in working to protect the quality of local water resources.

Fee for the workshop is $20 and covers the cost of tuition, instructional materials and a luncheon. Registration deadlines are one week before each workshop. To register for any of the workshops, write or call Clarence Manke, MPCA, Division of Water Quality, Operation-Training Unit, 520 Lafayette Road North, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155, phone (612) 296-7309.

REP. ROGER COOPER, chairman of the House of Representatives rural development subcommittee, presided Friday morning at the subcommittee meeting conducted at the city auditorium in Thief River Falls. Although the turnout for the meeting was small, it permitted direct conversation between local residents and subcommittee members and avoided repetition in the testimony presented.

Load Limits On State Highways To Begin Soon

One of the first signs of spring in Minnesota is the posting of road restrictions as roads thaw out and lose their ability to support heavy trucks. Spring road restrictions have already begun on state highways in the south and southeast zones of Minnesota and are expected in the northern areas of the state within a few weeks.

According to Bob Wolfe, district engineer for the Minnesota department of transportation in Bemidji, state highways may be posted as early as March 4 in the central zone and sometime around mid-March in the north zone. The north zone includes highways north of highways 10 and 210.

Truckers will encounter fewer restricted roads this year because of simplified weight restrictions and fewer spring postings, Wolfe said. In northwest Minnesota, postings will be limited to seven and nine ton categories and only 26 per cent of the roads will be posted. That compares with 58 per cent of state highways that were posted in this area last year. The rest of the roads will carry the normal 10 ton capacity.

Anyone wanting information about spring road restrictions, including the 1987 spring road restriction map, should contact the Mn-DOT permit office in Bemidji (218) 755-2942 or Crookston (218) 281-3503.

Recipients of the scholarships are chosen on the basis of merit by committee of medical or scientific professionals. Renewals are considered along with all new applications.

WORKSHOP FOR 24-3 bf.....

In a cooperative effort between Northland community college's law enforcement department and the Indian student services program, a preparatory workshop for the Minnesota post board's reciprocity licensing examination will take place the week of March 2.

The workshop will focus on four major areas of concentration: (1) Criminal code and selected statutes for peace officers; (2) motor vehicle and traffic laws; (3) post board administrative rules (MN rules 6700.0100-6700.2600); and (4) the peace officer's guide to the rules of criminal procedures.

The workshop fee of $110 will cover materials and books needed and meals (which include coffee twice and lunch daily, and the Friday night banquet). There will be an additional charge of $53.50 for officers choosing to take the workshop for two college credits.

The conference will take place at the Best Western motel in Thief River Falls. For additional information or to register for the workshop, contact Melody Winans, Indian student services director at Northland, 681-2181, ext. 17.

Crop Insurance Required Before Loss Loans Made

Farmers seeking disaster emergency loans from the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) for 1987 losses will need to have crop insurance if it is available, according to FmHA state director, Russ Bjorhus.

"All family-size farmers should be aware that a newly-effective provision of the 1985 farm bill prohibits our making emergency loans for crop losses that could have been insured under multiple-peril crop insurance programs sponsored by the Federal Crop Insurance corporation (FCIC)," Bjorhus said.

"Therefore, I urge every family-size farmer in the state of Minnesota to seriously take into account this new relationship between insurance coverage and emergency-loan eligibility."

Federally-subsidized multiple-peril crop insurance is now available for all wheat, corn, barley, grain sorghum, oats, upland cotton and rice, plus an additional 35 specialty crops in most growing areas. The government subsidy reduces the program costs by about 50 per cent, Bjorhus said, making crop insurance a worthwhile option to consider regardless of the newly-required tie-in with emergency loan eligibility.

If a farmer obtains the insurance required, and if the value of his crop loss is still 30 per cent or more after the insurance payment, the operation will be eligible for consideration for an emergency loan.

Effective in January, the new requirement will affect crops planted in 1987, and thus will not affect winter wheat or other winter-seeded crops planted in 1986 and harvested in 1987. Insurance must be multiple-peril, covering most forms of disaster, rather than hail-only.

Closing date for insurance sales on spring-planted crops in Minnesota is April 15. Farmers should contact their local Federal Crop Insurance agent promptly.

Dear Readers,
Child psychologists urge parents to avoid overprotecting the child during bereavement in the family. There is no way to truly avoid the impact of death upon the child, and it is best to treat it as a normal life experience. Answer the child's questions about death simply and briefly. Your clergyman can assist in this difficult situation.

TIMES Around The Region

by Sharon LaCoursiere

87 In '87

Red Lake Falls — The recently formed, 40-member Red Lake Falls Economic Development Planning Commission has set a goal they call "87 In '87," hoping to raise $87,000 in 1987 to provide low or no interest loans and other funding to new and existing businesses in Red Lake Falls. Shirley Thompson, organizer of the city's successful Christmas tree lighting fund drive, said, "We don't believe $87,000 is an unrealistic mark to shoot for. We're confident we can reach our goal and urge all the residents of Red Lake Falls to join in our enthusiasm and help us reach it." The city has received a McKnight Foundation matching grant of $12,000 to get things rolling.

The Better To See You

Greenbush — New street lights have been installed on Main street in Greenbush and throughout the business district. The new lights will give out twice as much illumination as the old ones did.

Chefs One And All

Crookston — Cub Scouts and their fathers got together to bake and decorate 52 cakes last week in Crookston. The cakes were auctioned off to raise money for the Senior Citizen Center there. Each cake brought about $15, raising a grand total of over $600.

Lucky Lady

ADA — While vacationing with her parents in California, Angie Heiraas of Ada was told to "Come On Down!" when they visited the taping of popular game show, "The Price Is Right." She won a motor scooter valued at $1,598, a china cupboard valued at $755, and a washer and dryer valued at $999. But when her dollar wheel spin went over the alloted amount, Angie was unable to reach the final level of the show. She will, however, get a chance to view herself on television when the show airs locally March 12.

Oh Boy!

Red Lake Falls — Professional wrestling will come to the area April Fool's Day. The American Wrestling Association will be at Lafayette high school gymnasium in Red Lake Falls, sponsored by the new Red Lake Falls Economic Development Planning Commission. Advance tickets will soon be available at Brent's Jack and Jill store in Red Lake Falls, Logan's Clothing in Crookston, and the Ben Franklin store in Thief River Falls. Tentative scheduling of the event includes, perhaps, The Midnight Rockers, Playboy Buddy Rose and Doug Sommers, Curt Hennig, Jimmy Snooka, Col. DeBeers and Boris Zukhov. Pro wrestling lovers in the area can get ringside seats at $9 each, or general admission at $8 for adults and $5 for age 12 and under.

Arrests Made In Burglaries

Karlstad — February 21, Karlstad police and Kittson county sheriff's department officers arrested Kevin James Pisanechi, 18, and a juvenile male in Cook's Wash and Dry in Karlstad. The two were taken into custody on charges of burglary after officers recovered a bag of coins in the laundromat. Subsequent investigation indicates that the two had burglarized the Wash and Dry three times before and been involved in numerous other burglaries and thefts in the Karlstad area.

To Play Or Not To Play

Red Lake Falls — Hockey coaches and about 20 concerned parents took part in a recent Red Lake Falls school board meeting to discuss next year's school hockey program. Fourteen students participated in varsity hockey this season, and a poll of next year's players indicates 13 to 16 interested students, with five of those being ninth graders. Projected figures for hockey participation show a tremendous increase in the number of players by 1991, however. School board member Dave Steuart voiced his opposition to the talk of hockey cut-backs, stating, "I'm tired of hockey always being the first activity to come up when we start thinking of cuts. Either we make all the sports equal or we cut them all. I think we should make this decision once and for all." A proposed schedule of 12 to 14 varsity games, with no jamboree or playoffs, was accepted by a 4 to 3 vote of the board, pending budget studies by the school.

Wrong Way

Hallock — Rene Konstantin Erickson was arrested on charges of aggravated DWI and aggravated driving after cancellation February 16 after the Kittson county sheriff's department received a call that there was a vehicle traveling south in the north-bound lane outside of Hallock. The case is under investigation by the Kittson county attorney's office.

Yum-Yum Day In Ada

Ada — The Ada Chamber of Commerce will have a Muffin and Jam Day in which contestants prepare their goodies March 6 at the Ada VFW Ballroom. All area bakers and jam makers are invited to get their recipes ready for the big day. Last year's contest drew nearly 90 entrants. First prize is $50 in Ada bucks; second, 25 Ada bucks; and third, 10 Ada bucks. Along with the baking and making contest, there will be free muffins, jam and coffee for all between the hours of 8:30 and 11 a.m. and items on sale by area merchants at special low prices. Selling will begin at 8:30 a.m. and continue until 5 p.m.

For Fun And Profit

Oklee — Oklee-Brooks Junior Girl Scout Troop 215 pooled their skills and made a quilt which will be sold at a raffle to raise money for their summer projects. Tickets for the raffle can be purchased at the Security State bank in Oklee, where the quilt is on display, or from the Junior Scouts involved. Winner will be announced March 23.

Tiny Tunes

Oklee — Quinn Bishop, seven-year-old son of Charlie and Roxanne Bishop of Oklee, was one of the 14 acts selected to perform in the talent contest at the Crookston Winter Shows February 15. He sang his rendition of "Blue Moon" dressed in a 50's costume while his mother provided piano accompaniment. Quinn is a first grader at the Oklee school.

Diamonds Well-Deserved

Red Lake Falls — Mose and Lily Mireault of Red Lake Falls will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary, which, if you didn't already know, is the diamond one.

Bring Back Memories, Hockey Fans?

Warroad — The Warroad Lakers celebrated 40 years of hockey with an anniversary party that included a hockey game between the Alumni and the current Lakers team. The spirited game ended in a 2-2 draw with only one casualty, sustained when referee John Noah of Fargo fell and cut his head on a rough spot on the ice. Oldest Alumni player was Bill Juzda of Winnipeg at age 67. Composed of famous names in Canadian and U.S. hockey, the Alumni players were Blane Comstock, Allie Reynard, Ron Ross, Grant Clay, Bobby Rogers, Dayton Grafstrom, Bill Juzda, Jack Ganyo, Al Dyker, Mike Marvin, Vic Magda, Murray Miller, Joe Knudson, Brian Dyck, Ed Palamer, Dan McKinnon, Ray Boyko, Ron Storey, Tom Goddard, Murray Balagus, Tom Marshall, Bob Storey, Tim McKinnon, Henry Boucha, Les Storey, Doug Overton, Gerry Wilson, Bernie McLellan, Harry Buechert, Dave Richardson, Rod Estling, Frank Krahn, Bill Christian, Roger Christian, Jim Stordahl, Ginny Christian, Conway Marvin, Kim Marchuck and Jimmy Cole. Beno "Bad Call" Kofstad of Litchfield was the other referee.

Lancaster Celebration

Lancaster — "Snow Wonderful Weekend" will be held in Lancaster March 7 and 8. Events planned include a poker run, barbecues, cross country skiing, off-trail snowmobile rides, a broom ball tournament for children and an ice or snow sculpture contest. Cash prizes will be awarded.

Believe It Or Not

Lake Bronson — A two-headed calf was born at the Leo Anderson farm near Lake Bronson February 11. The two heads shared one pair of ears and one single, normal body. The animal was born alive, but died soon after, reports the Karlstad North Star News.

All In A Name

Middle River — Cathy Erickson, who writes a column called "Cathy's Corner" for the New-River Record, said she read recently in a DHIA report that the cows that are most productive are named Clara, Amy, Joyce, Lynn, Twinky, Fantas, Cora, Lace, Polly and Babe. So now you know that!

Nearly Diamond

Gambling Bug Bites Again

Managing editor Bob Bork of the North Hennepin Post wrote the following in a recent column:

Like it or not, heavy duty gambling has invaded Minnesota in the form of slot machines at the Fond-du-Luth gaming casino in downtown Duluth.

Originally opened as a bingo parlor last fall in a former Sears building on Duluth's Superior St., the place later added pull-tabs, then went into the slot machine business with the addition of 13 video poker machines that are capable of paying off up to $50,000 for a single winner. Eventually the place could have 100 of these machines.

How can this happen in a state that prohibits gambling? Well, through some fast paper shuffling, the former Sears building was legally declared part of the Fond du Lac Indian Reservation, where federal laws generally don't apply.

But the addition of the video machines has a few people worried, including the attorney general's office, which is waiting for a decision from the Supreme Court to see if it's legal to go beyond bingo and pull-tabs.

And that's not all. The gambling hall also wants to add a restaurant and liquor lounge in the spacious basement.

You can see what could happen in the future. If the Fond-du-Luth project continues to fly, other Indian Reservations around the state will ask for the same thing, including some in the metro area.

So, the court rulings are important. The average citizen has his own opinion, which really doesn't count all that much. Mine? I like the idea, and hope it not only gets approval, but spreads around the state.

Tough supervision of course would be a must. We have that now for bingo, pull-tabs and that race track near Shakopee. It's all gambling in one form or another, and why shouldn't people be allowed to do that if they desire? If you are allowed to wager bets on horses, why not the opportunity to put coins into a machine, pull the handle and hope for a nice payoff?

The facility in Duluth is interesting to watch. I saw the building in various stages of remodeling last summer, then visited it last fall. You walk inside, and it's like emerging from an elevator in a Nevada casino. Slick, beautiful and well maintained. I mean the hired help dresses in formal wear!

The bad news is the fact the place is apparently losing money. A report last week said they expected over 1,000 people each night to play bingo, but an average of 300 would show. That was projected as a loss of $200,000 since the doors opened last Labor Day weekend.

Someone Should Tell The UAW . . .

One of our farm friends was in the office the other day and said he had a clipping to show us from "Farm & Ranch Guide". "I think this would be a good item for you to run in your paper," he said. Here it is:

Someone should tell the United Auto Workers there's a farm depression going on.

The union, which had been striking (or "locked out," depending on who you talk to) John Deere facilities for months, reached a settlement last week. According to the Wall Street Journal, total average compensation for workers at the plants will be increased from $24.64 per hour to $27.

That's over $1,000 for a 40-hour work week, and over $56,000 per year.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

All Editors, but Sports Editors in particular, get more criticism than they deserve and less praise than they should get. The Times, in general, does a fine job, but this letter concerns the sports department in particular.

Mike Lundgren, and whoever helps him, does a fantastic job in covering the sports picture; not only in the city but in the surrounding small towns. From college even down through junior high, all sports seem to get attention. Most write-ups are detailed and well written — much more than just box scores.

I'm sure this letter could express the sentiments of a good many who follow sports coverage but don't take time to write to these who do the work.

Ed Neibauer
Mentor, MN

(Editor's Note: Your kind words are appreciated, Mr. Neibauer. Mike Lundgren IS our sports department: his only help comes from the cooperation of coaches who provide material. Preparing, writing and organizing it — as well as viewing and reporting on it — is his full responsibility. Your affirmation of what we knew all along — that he does a fantastic job — is attested to by the very few complaints we do receive. Given the emotionalism of athletics and the natural biases of parenthood and coaching, his efforts are remarkable. Thanks for publicly recognizing them.)

To The Editor:

Dr. Sugden, MD, must be commended for her article on teen-age sex "The Role of Responsibility." (Your Times, page 6, Feb. 16) Now if someone would address the issue of AIDS!

A rape case was held in the TRF Court: An attorney, in a soft voice, described in detail what the man had done to the girl. What the man had done was most unnatural and sickening. The man was almost 30 years old and had worked only six months of his life. On the stand he boasted about his red satin sheets in his apartment and about what he had done.

Some young girls in the audience thought it was all a joke and laughed. The judge removed them from the courtroom. After the man was convicted, two cops discussed the case. One said, "He is going to appeal." The other young cop said, "Good."

None of those young people at the trial seemed to realize the gravity of that man's actions. But it will be no joke when someone else close to them suffers and dies from AIDS.

AIDS is a disease, which means it is contagious. It is spreading rapidly. Minnesota already has 20,000 carriers of AIDS. Last year Bagley had one AIDS patient and Fargo had three AIDS patients. Past tense! How many are in our area this year?

AIDS kills every victim. Sometimes the victim is innocent. Two hundred babies in New York City have been born with AIDS. Wives or husbands catch it from someone they trusted. Monkeys and chimpanzees are known to be carriers. Public bath houses and spas are risky places.

What precautions are taken to prevent the spread of AIDS? The following information comes from people who are dying from AIDS clinics:

"There should be no blood contact from one person to another. It may be from open wounds, scratches, coughs or sneezes. Body fluids (saliva, tears, sweat) have lower levels of risk, but the risk is there, also."

The symptoms of AIDS are: extreme weight loss, diarrhea for three months or more, fatigue, flu and mono symptoms, swelling of lymph nodes, oral thrush."

"If you have any of these signs, see your doctor immediately. If you do have AIDS, you must isolate yourself. This is for your own protection more than to protect the public, for you will be highly susceptible to colds, pneumonia and any childhood diseases. Even if you have had them before, you can get them again, because your immune system will have been destroyed by the AIDS virus. Your body will have no resistance. Each bout you have with another infection will leave you weaker."

AIDS is deadly and is reaching epidemic proportions. Be wary of anyone who is "playing the field," "sleeping around," "bed hopping" or using needles to "do drugs." Young people, choose your friends very carefully.

Sincerely,
L. N. Olson

REPORT

From The

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Over 3,000 Minnesota farmers have had the opportunity to sit down at a table, face to face with their creditors, and negotiate possible solutions for saving their livelihoods. Mandatory mediation is working. Even though it doesn't always save a family farm, it gives a debtor some control over his own difficult situation.

As a member of the House agriculture committee, I have listened to several hours of testimony from farmers, lenders and mediators. Soon we will be looking at the Senate version of a mediation bill and formulating our own proposals for changes, if any are necessary.

I have been a vocal supporter of mandatory mediation, which I consider a healthy, non-violent response to severe debt problems. Before a creditor can commence foreclosure proceedings, or any other action against a debtor, that creditor must serve notice of mediation rights on secured debts of over $5,000. Even farmers with debts under $5,000 have the right to mediation, although they don't receive a notice.

Once the first mediation meeting date is established, the lenders and farmer have 60 days to settle debt problems. A neutral mediator then works to guide the discussion and an advocate or lawyers may be present.

The Minnesota extension service, administrators of the mandatory farm credit mediation program, report that 1,439 mediated agreements and 474 outside settlements have been reached out of 3,448 requests filed since the program began last July. Heaviest use of the program has occurred in the southwest area of the state.

But here in northern Minnesota, the program has been important to a number of farmers. In Pennington county, 28 farmers filed a request for mediation and in Marshall county there were 30 requests, while in Red Lake county nine farmers requested mediation. There have been a few charges of "bad faith" during mediation and a few filed objections but, overall, the program is serving its intended purpose.

Excellent testimony was presented by Scott county mediator Sever Peterson, during last week's agriculture committee hearings. With a background in both farming and banking, Sever spoke informatively and from the heart on mediation's role in alleviating stress that has put some farmers over the edge.

"During the first mediation session, I just try to settle people down and get them to sit down and talk with their creditors so they can stop crying themselves to sleep at night," Sever said. He told of a farmer who couldn't find his 23-year-old son one day and came to the quick conclusion that he had taken his own life. Actually, the son had only walked down the road to help another farmer. This is just one example of the paranoia and heartbreak that is out there, Sever told us.

While mediation won't wipe away all of a farmer's problems, it will reduce fear, hostility and feelings of loss of control. Part of the program also makes a financial analyst available to the farmer to help prepare cash-flow projections. Lenders are probably more likely to restructure debts if they are convinced the farmer will be able to make payments under a new plan.

Another mediator who testified, Merilee Hartman of Okabena, said that during the mediation period, "debtors regain their authority to negotiate and to make decisions, even if that decision is to stop farming ... Severe losses to both creditors and debtors can be reduced through mediation. This has a positive impact on other businesses and the community."

Hartman added that because all significant creditors are involved in mediation, realistic plans can be made to restructure debt. As I stated before, this doesn't significantly decrease the chances of a farmer losing his entire operation.

I would appreciate your comments on the mandatory mediation process. Please contact me by writing: Rep. Wally Sparby, State Office Bldg., St. Paul, MN 55155.

Two Thief River Falls residents were arrested Thursday for possession of a large amount of marijuana and possession with intent to sell.

James Frances Bratton, 33, and Kandy Kay Bratton, 26, were arrested by Thief River Falls police after police obtained a search warrant for a house at 619 South Markley and discovered three ounces of marijuana on the premises. This arrest, Froschheiser said, was a result of an on-going narcotics investigation in Thief River Falls. Froschheiser said the police were assisted in the arrest by Pennington county sheriff's department.

Daffodil Days Raise Funds For Cancer Research

"Th best way to express your support for cancer education and research is to say it with daffodils," states Wes Johnson of Thief River Falls, chairman of Daffodil days.

On March 30 to April 5, the American Cancer society's Pennington county unit will hold the annual Daffodil days flower sale at various locations in Pennington county.

Volunteers from the Pennington county unit will be taking donations for the daffodils, which will be available in a bouquet of 10 for $3 or two bouquets for $5.

According to Johnson, the daffodils will be available in Thief River Falls at the lower level lobby of the Falls Mall, in St. Hilaire from Bonnie Pederson and in Goodridge at the Goodridge Hartz store and cafe. Daffodils may also be ordered from volunteers at the following locations: Carol Moser at Northrop school, Sharon Iverson at Knox, Jodi Carter at Mark Twain, Chris Burnham at Washington, Arlys Twistol at Franklin, Cal Lindberg at Lincoln, Linda Goulet at vocational center, Rosie Gustafson at Northland and Cindy Cedergren at AVTI.

Trees Can Help Prevent Erosion And Save Energy

"Sometimes the simplest solutions to a problem just are overlooked. In the case of wind erosion and drifting snow, some of the simplest solutions are literally right outside our doorstep — our trees," states Cheryl Sistad of the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district.

"Strategically planted trees can serve as farmstead shelterbelts, field windbreaks and even living snowfences. Farmers have known the value of properly placed trees and shrubs for years, yet too few take full advantage of them," Sistad said.

Now is the time to order trees for spring planting of field shelterbelts and farmstead windbreaks. Field shelterbelts block the wind, preventing soil erosion and crop damage. Farmstead windbreaks shelter buildings and livestock from winter winds and conserve energy.

SWCD and SCS personnel will help landowners design field and farmstead windbreaks. The SWCD and the ASCS have cost-sharing funds available for tree buying, site preparation and planting. Call the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD to find out more about how to put trees to work for you. Telephone number is 294-6144.

Dairy cattle have always been part of the operation. Included in the family are Leonard and his wife Marge and their three children (left to right) Brian, 18; Nancy, 13; and Gary, 19. The Geske family was recently honored at the Red River Valley Diarymen's association banquet during the winter shows in Crookston as honor dairymen for Pennington county.

transfer system is used to pipe the milk from the barn to the bulk tank. The Geskes sell Grade B milk to the Plummer Cooperative Creamery association.

For the past four years the Geske herd has been enrolled in the Pennington county Dairy Herd Improvement association (DHIA) and the production average has been increasing. Leonard likes the DHIA records for use in culling from among his home-raised replacement heifers and the SCC count report which can indicate mastitis problems which would not otherwise be apparent.

The herd has used high quality bulls through AI associations for about 30 years. The rolling herd average of 16,000 pounds of milk and 578 pounds of butterfat can be considered good, although the Geskes are looking for continued improvement. Some of the cattle in the herd produce in excess of 20,000 pounds of milk per lactation.

Leonard and his family are particularly proud of a cow they call "Grandma". She was sired by a bull with the old American Breeders Service (ABS) and is due August 5 to produce her 25th calf. The last of the original herd Leonard purchased from his father, "Grandma" has produced 24 calves — including three sets of twins — and now has three daughters (the only three heifers out of the 24 calves) in the Geske milking herd. She produced 15,000 pounds of milk last year and Leonard says she can stay in the herd just about as long as she wants.

During the year the Geske milking herd is given all the hay or green chop alfalfa it can eat. A grain mixture — which includes oats, barley, corn, mineral and liquid molasses — is mixed and rolled at the Peterson-Biddick elevator in Thief River Falls and fed with the assistance of a storage hopper capable of holding about seven tons.

Leonard Geske and the former Margaret (Marge) Heddan of Greenbush were married in 1966. Their three children include Gary, 19, a 1985 graduate of Lincoln high school who is a freshman at the University of Minnesota at Crookston, studying dairy production; Brian, 18, a junior at Lincoln high school; and Nancy, 13, an eighth grader at Franklin middle school. All are very definitely involved in the dairy farm operation.

Leonard is on the board of directors of the Pennington county DHIA and the herd is registered with the National Holstein Friesian association under the name "Geske Grove-Holsteins". The Geskes are members of the Minnesota Holstein association as well as the national organization. They are also members of St. John Lutheran church.

Marge Geske has been an adult leader and dairy projects leader for the Smiley 4-H club. She is also a member of the recently formed Minnesota 4-H Volunteers association.

All of the Geske children have been 4-H club members for about four years and have carried away their share of awards at the county fair, particularly in the dairy project. Nancy and Gary both won state fair trips. Gary has been treasurer and president of the club and Nancy has been secretary and treasurer. Brian has been active in Future Farmers of America, serving as a member of the crops judging team and carrying dairy projects. Gary served in FFA for four years and made trips to both state and national conventions.

The Geskes received their honor dairymen award February 13 at the Red River Valley Dairymen's association banquet in Crookston.

Pediatrician Says Wood Heating Can Damage Lungs

"Heating with wood might be the answer for saving energy and money," says Paul Kubic, M.D., pediatric lung specialist in St. Paul, "but the pollutants from burning wood can damage children's airways and lungs."

A study done by the Colleges of Medicine at Michigan State university monitored the coughing, wheezing and other respiratory problems of 62 children during one winter season. The homes of 31 children were heated with wood-burning stoves. The homes of the other 31 children were heated with gas, electricity or other means. Eighty-four per cent of the children whose homes were heated with wood coughed during the night or day or wheezed, apart from colds. Only three per cent of the children whose homes were heated by other means experienced these problems.

Dr. Kubic, who sees more than 50 children with respiratory problems each week, explained that the pollutants from burning wood enter the home's atmosphere and irritate the lungs. "Young children, especially children under age two, are affected the most from the pollutants. Thief airways are very tiny and still developing."

Dr. Kubic says that long-term exposure to wood-burning stoves causes ongoing airway irritation and infection, and could lead to asthma. The symptoms of asthma are coughing, wheezing and shortness of breath. Children who have asthma are very sensitive to viral illnesses, cold air and exercise, and environmental pollutants from things like wood-burning stoves and cigarette smoke. For school-aged children, asthma is the leading medical cause of school absences. Dr. Kubic says researchers don't know at this time if airway damage caused by wood-burning stoves is reversible.

"But it's more than the pollutants from burning wood that affect children's lungs and airways," says Dr. Kubic. "Because there's no thermostat on wood-burning stoves, there's a wide temperature range. If a child goes to bed when it's warm and wakes up when it's cold, this can trigger an asthma attack. Wood burning stoves also result in low humidity, which can also initiate asthma attacks.

"Because many parents are economically dependent on heating with wood, deciding whether or not to continue is an emotional decision," says Dr. Kubic. "But as I explain to the parents, you have to look very carefully at what the health of your child means to you. Then you have to weigh the savings of burning wood with the costs of clinic visits, hospitalization, emergency visits, medication for respiratory disease and the non-reimbursable cost of stress and worry."

When asked what form of heat he recommends, Dr. Kubic ranked them by choice: electric heat, hot water heat, oil or gas. "If you heat with wood, the type of stove you use, the type and amount of wood you burn and the airtightness of the house will affect the frequency and severity of respiratory problems."

But Dr. Kubic didn't include wood burning stoves in his ranking of methods of home heating. "You couldn't pay me to heat with wood," says Dr. Kubic.

No. 5-Seeded Prowlers Shade No. 4-Seeded Lumberjacks In Section 8 Quarterfinals . . .

TRF Beats Bemidji 4-3 In Two Overtimes

Brilliant goaltending by junior Shayne Anderson kep Thief River Falls in the game, and an outstandingh individual effort by senior center Scott Novak won it Friday as the Prowlers outlasted Bemidji 4-3 in a double-overtime thriller Section 8 high school hockey tournament quarterfinal game at the East Grand Forks Civic Center Arena.

Anderson was nothing short of sensational as he stopped 62 Bemidji shots. On the other hand, Bemidji goalie Eric Runningen made 18 saves.

"When you go into tournament play, you hope to have strong goaltending and good defensive play," explained Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We definitely played well in front of our net; we didn't give them many second shots. And Shayne obviously played well. It's the best goaltending a Thief River goalie has played in (my) 11 years. He's played almost at that level all year long. We've tried to keep it in perspective, but we felt all along that there's not a better goalie in Section 8. He has made major league saves all year long."

Bemidji coach Bryan Grand was equally impressed, but also justifiably frustrated. "I've never had a team get that many shots, play that well, and still lose the game," he said. "You always hope in the tournaments you're going to play your best game of the year, and I think we did. That's as solid a game as we've played all year. We just couldn't seem to score on some good opportunities."

Novak made Anderson's superb effort all worthwhile with his overtime winner. He got it with 9:43 left in a scheduled 15-minute sudden-death overtime period — after the two teams went through an earlier 8-minute extra session. And he did it with a bit of thievery, pulling Bemidji defenseman Scott Ness off the puck at center ice, then charged Runningen on a clean breakaway. He waited for goalie to go down before shooting the puck and putting the Prowlers into the Section 8 semifinals tonight (Monday) against top-seeded Warroad, an 8-1 first-round winner over Brainerd..

Bemidji backers looked — or at least hoped — for a hooking call on Novak on the play. But the non-call was consistent with the game-long officiating by Cal Cassalter of Eveleth and Bob Tok of Bovey. They whistled just one penalty all night, but still controlled the action while receiving few crowd complaints.

Bemidji rallied from a 3-1 third period deficit to force the extra playing time. Kevin Hill scorted in sudden fashion with a quick shot off the left wing at 9:49. Anderson never moved on the shot that made it a 3-2 game.

Then a rebound that was kicked out to Shane Mattfield was put back in the net for a 3-3 game at 11:21.

Both sides on chances to win it in the first overtime. Thief River Falls' Bob Geatz walked in front of Runningen by himself but came up empty-handed at 1:07, then Bemidji's Rob Sauer had an open net rebound opportunity but missed at 5:28; and the Lumberjacks' Gary Matthews found himself facing Anderson eye-to-eye with 19 seconds left. Anderson held his ground, though, and forced the second overtime — after the ice had been resurfaced.

"Shayne's biggest save was on Matthews in overtime," pointed out Wendell Grand.

Thief River Falls fans thought the Prowlers won the game with 11:20 left. In the second overtime when Novak swung around the net and tried to stuff the puck past Runningen. The shot got through the netminder all right, but it laid on the goal line — not behind it.

Out-shot 12-4 in the first period, Thief River Falls nevertheless started with a 1-0 lead when Jeff Grand poked the puck under Runningen on a scramble in front of the Bemidji net at 7:26.

Great end-to-end second period action produced a goal for both sides. Bemidji tied it 1-1 at 12:34 when Scott Eichstadt wrestled himself free from a defenseman and backhanded a shot over Anderson's shoulder, but just 42 seconds later Geatz jumped on a loose puck in the slot area and came in at Runningen alone, shoving the puck under the goalie before colliding with him at 13:16, sending Thief River Falls into the third period with a 2-1 edge.

It became 3-1 when defenseman Dave Johnson charged off the blue line to grab a loose puck in the slot and quickly blew it by a partially-screened Runningen at 7:43.

But a 22-5 shots-on-goal advantage for Bemidji in the third period was too much to overcome the Prowlers as Bemidji tied it and forced overtime.

TRF Boys Host 18-1 Warren Team Tuesday . . .

Prowlers Handle Argyle 63-45

A surprisingly-easy 63-45 winner at Argyle Friday, the Thief River Falls boys high school basketball team will close out its 1986-87 regular season schedule at home Tuesday against an 18-1 Warren team.

"It'll be a challenge," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "I'm looking forward to it."

Warren whipped Thief River Falls 53-35 in a Jan. 23 meeting, but the Prowlers are healthier now than they were then, pointed out Hunt, and they're playing better basketball, as witnessed by their last three outings — wins in dominating fashion over East Grand Forks 72-50, Middle River 70-36 and Argyle.

"Our shooting percentage has improved quite a bit," explained Hunt, "and I'm just as happy with our defensive play. Against Argyle we had one of our better defensive efforts of the year. We played pretty consistent both offensively an defensively throughout the game. Any time you beat Argyle at Argyle, you've got to be pleased."

Thief River Falls had a 13-12 edge at the end of the first quarter, moved out to a 25-19 lead at halftime and had a 40-29 third quarter cushion.

Chris Nelson led the Prowlers with 25 points, while Chris Bjorgaard added 13 and Jarrod Kalsnes netted 12. Preston Stoltman led Argyle with 21 points. Brent Riopelle had 13.

The Prowlers were 24-for-50 from the field (48 per cent) and 11-for-18 at the free throw line (61 per cent). Argyle was 16-for-43 from the field (37 per cent) and 13-for-24 at the line (54 per cent). Thief River Falls had a 34-28 rebound edge, and topped the turnovers charts 11-8.

Thief River Falls is 11-8 for the year:

Scoring

| | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | T |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Thief River Falls | 13 | 12 | 15 | 23 | 63 |
| Argyle | 12 | 7 | 10 | 16 | 45 |

TRF — Chris Bjorgaard 13, Griff Newland 2, Chris Nelson 25, Brian Stark 3, Jarrod Kalsnes 12, Todd Sehlen 6, Quincy Lofberg 7.

Argyle — Bill Rivard 4, Jon St. Germain 2, Jerry Deschene 4, Brent Riopelle 13, [illegible], Preston Stoltman 21.

Sports Briefs

Mother's Night

Fifth annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Mother's Appreciation Night chili supper will be held Monday, March 9, beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the Lincoln High School cafeteria.

The event is designed for the mothers of all Lincoln athletes to show appreciation for their time and efforts in helping the Prowlers.

All-Section 8 Team Listed

Three players from Warroad and two from Crookston head the 1986-87 All-Section 8 high school hockey team.

Warroad finished atop the regular season Section 8 standings with a perfect 13-0 record and had Shane McFarlane, Larry Olimb and David Marvin as All-Section 8 picks.

Crookston was runner-up to Warroad in the final regular season standings with a 12-2 record and had Todd Kreibich and Nathan French selected for post-season honors.

Other First Team picks were Jon Helgeson of Roseau and Tim Meyer of Moorhead.

The 19 Section 8 head coaches selected the All-Section 8 team. They voted for one goaltender and the five best skaters, regardless of position. Coaches could not vote for members of their own team.

Kreibich collected 12 of the possible 18 votes to earn All-Section 8 honors as the goalie. The junior played every minute of every game for the Pirates. He's a two-year starter who had the best goals-against average in school history this winter (2.1).

McFarlane was the only unanimous post-season selection. The speedy senior led Section 8 in scoring this year, with 26 goals, 28 assists and 54 points.

Olimb ranked as the No. 2 vote-getter with 16. The junior defenseman had 50 points from the blueline this season (21-29).

French picked up 14 votes. He's a junior, but already a three-year starter who led the Pirates in scoring for the second straight year with 23 goals, 22 assists and 45 points.

Helgeson, Marvin and Meyer all tied in the voting with seven votes each. Helgeson is a senior and was one of the most recruited players in Section 8 this year before announcing recently he will attend the University of Wisconsin. Marvin, a senior, is another top Warroad blueliner, and Meyer, a senior speedster, was one of the most talented center icemen in the Section this year.

Two more junior goalies tied in the voting for a spot on the All-Section 8 second team — Shayne Anderson of Thief River Falls and Chad Erickson of Warroad.

Thief River Falls' Scott Novak missed part of the season with a leg injury, but he finished just one point behind First Team picks Helgeson, Marvin and Meyer to rank as the top vote-getter on the Second Team.

Other Second Team players were Dan Alto, Alexandria; Kent Benike, Indus; Dwayne DeGagne, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart; and Paul Schwab, Crookston. They are all seniors.

For the second straight year the Section 8 Coach of the Year honors were shared, this time by Tom King of Warroad and Terry Cullen of Moorhead. It's King's third year in a row as a post-season recipient of the award he first won at Indus. Cullen finished his first year at Moorhead with a 12-8 record, which included four one-goal losses.

Senior Blair Lund and junior Bill Dicken of Thief River Falls were among the players earning All-Section 8 Honorable Mention status.

North Sub-Region 8AA Basketball . . .

TRF Girls Host Bemidji Thursday

Detroit Lakes will be at Moorhead Tuesday in the opening game of the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament.

A vote by the five head coaches seeded the teams for post-season play, with the No. 1 spot going to Fergus Falls; No. 2 — Thief River Falls; No. 3 — Bemidji; No. 4 — Moorhead; and No. 5 — Detroit Lakes.

Semifinals will be played Thursday when the Moorhead-Detroit Lakes winner will be at Fergus Falls, while Bemidji goes to Thief River Falls.

Championship game will be played Saturday at the site of the highest seeded semifinal winner.

All games start at 7:30 p.m. Admission will be $3.50 for adults and $2 for students. No school passes will be honored for tournament play.

Northern Teams Are MCCC Basketball Powers

Mike Lundgren
Sports Editor

Bemidji boys defeated Fergus Falls 61-48 Friday to nail down the No. 1 seed in the upcoming 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA high school basketball tournament.

The win lifted the Lumberjacks into a first place tie with Moorhead in the North Sub-Region 8AA standings, and presumably will give Bemidji the top seed since the Lumberjacks beat Moorhead 68-52 in their only meeting this winter.

A Fergus Falls win over Bemidji Friday would have allowed Moorhead to claim the top post-season spot, and would have dropped the Lumberjacks to the No. 3 slot behind the Otters.

Post-season seeding now shapes up with Bemidji No. 1, followed in order by Moorhead, Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes and Thief River Falls.

That means the Lakers will be hosting the Prowlers in an opening round game Tuesday, March 10. The winner will be at Bemidji for a semifinal match-up two days later. The other semifinal game will have Fergus Falls at Moorhead.

Championship game will be played Saturday, March 14, at a neutral site.

Miscellaneous

+ If you want to know what caliber of basketball they play in the northern portion of the Minnesota Community College Conference, just look at the results of the 1987 MCCC state tournaments that were completed Saturday in the Twin Cities. In the men's finals at Inver Grove Heights Community College, Northeast Division champion Itasca defeated Northwest Division runner-up Northland 100-79, while Northwest Division champion Fergus Falls took the third place trophy by beating Normandale 103-94. A year ago the University of Minnesota-Crookston beat Northland in overtime in an all-Northwest Division final. Meanwhile, in the women's tournament at Anoka-Ramsey Community College, it was an all-Northwest Division final for the 1987 title as UMC edged Fergus Falls 71-70. Northland women didn't make the state tournament field, but the Pioneers lost two close games to the Spartans this winter and beat the Trojans in their final outing while playing in what was, without question, the toughest division in the state.

+ Watching Thief River Falls goalie Shayne Anderson kick out 62 Bemidji shots in Friday's 4-3 double-overtime Section 8 high school hockey tournament win over Bemidji brought back memories for head coach Wendell Grand of the Prowlers. He recalled watching a similar goaltending feat, but he was on the other side of the fence when Doug Long of St. Paul Johnson set a Minnesota state high school hockey tournament record with 61 saves in an overtime win against Greenway-Coleraine in the 1970 state meet. Grand was an assistant coach at Greenway at the time.

MCC Girls Reach Semifinals In 32A

Marshall County Central advanced in the 1987 District 32A girls high school basketball tournament Saturday with a 57-31 quarterfinal round win over Grygla that put the Nordics at 19-1 for the year.

Grygla finished 9-11.

Marshall County Central led only 12-10 at the end of the first quarter, but had a 30-14 lead when the second quarter ended. The Nordics led 43-25 through three quarters.

A balanced Marshall County Central attack included Jodi Foss and Kari Boe with 16 points apiece, and Andrea Kragness with 14. Alison Stanley led Grygla with 9 points.

"The second quarter was the turning point," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "Defensively we played real well. But I want to give a lot of credit to Grygla. They played real well, I thought."

Grygla coach Mike Gast thought so, too. "We played awfully hard," he explained. "We did a lot of things well, but we couldn't buy a basket. About the only thing we didn't do well was put the ball in the basket."

A 12-for-49 shooting figure from the field (28 per cent) doomed the Eagles. The Nordics were 24-for-56 (42 per cent). At the free throw line, Grygla was 7-for-17 and Marshall County Central was 9-for-21. The Nordics had a 28-23 rebound advantage, and the Eagles had more turnovers — 20-14.

Middle River . . . . . . . . . . 30

Middle River failed to score in the first quarter Saturday and wound up losing a 49-30 District 32A quarterfinal game to Argyle.

"They had a pretty good goalie," quipped Middle River coach Steve Larson, whose team didn't get on the scoreboard until the third minute of the second quarter. "We just couldn't make a basket. We had the shots, but we couldn't hit them."

Argyle led at the quarter stops 8-0, 28-1 and 36-23.

MCCC State Basketball Tournament Quarterfinals . . .

Pioneers Are Among First Round Winners

Fans attending the opening round quarterfinals of the 18th annual Minnesota Community College Conference men's state basketball tournament at Inver Hills Community College in Inver Grove Heights were treated to four exciting rally-filled ball games Thursday.

Fergus Falls, Itasca, Normandale and Northland were the winners, advancing into Friday's semifinals, but all four were challenged. For example:

+ Fergus Falls owned a 15-point lead, but watched Mankato Bethany rally to within a single point before the No. 2-ranked Spartans won 87-83 in the tournament opener.

+Itasca held an 18-point lead, but barely held off host Inver Hills as the No. 1-ranked Vikings escaped with a 71-69 victory.

+ Normandale trailed by 22 points in the first half, but the No. 3-ranked Lions roared back for a 98-90 overtime win against Hibbing.

+ Northland led Willmar by as much as 14 points, but won by just two as the unranked Pioneers knocked off the No. 5-ranked Warriors 75-73 in the final first round game.

"There were four great games," pointed out Northland coach Chet Engelman. "The people got their money's worth, for sure."

Northland won with guards Greg Campbell and Ray Davis combining for 52 points. Willmar started the game with a man-to-man defense, which opened things up for Davis, and the 5-9 freshman scored 17 of his 21 points in the first half. The Warriors then switched to a zone defense, but that opened things up for Campbell, and the 5-11 sophomore scored 23 of his game-high 31 points in the second half.

In between, 6-0 freshman Morris Matthews added 10 points.

Northland lost a 55-52 regular season decision at Willmar when the Pioneers spotted the Warriors a 32-19 halftime lead. This time Northland trailed briefly at the start, but had a 37-30 lead at intermission. A three-point play by Davis gave the Pioneers a 20-17 edge with 10:30 left in the first half, and they never trailed again. His basket with four seconds remaining provided Northland with a seven-point edge at halftime.

It quickly became 41-30 when the second half started with back-to-back baskets by Campbell and Davis. The Pioneers enjoyed their biggest lead of the night at 61-47 with 12 minutes left in the game on a five-point effort out of a single offensive possession as Campbell hit a three-point shot from extra-long range. He was hit hard after the shot, giving him a free throw, plus the ball out of bounds. A couple of moments later Campbell scored again.

Northland seemed to be firmly in control with a 74-62 cushion with 6½ minutes on the clock. But just as the fans thought about leaving, Willmar gave them reason to stay with a rally that quickly made it 74-70. A single free throw by Anthony McCullough with exactly two minutes left was the only Northland point over the last 6:37, giving the Pioneers a 74-70 edge.

A three-point shot by Dave Burns brought the Warriors within 75-73 with still 47 seconds to play. And those final 47 seconds produced opportunities on both sides as Northland lost the ball on a turnover, rebounded a missed Willmar shot, but missed another bonus free throw chance that the Warriors rebounded with 20 seconds showing. Willmar lost a shot at a win or a tie, however, by throwing the ball away with four seconds to go.

"We played well because we did the things we wanted to do," pointed out Engelman. "They (Willmar) did what we wanted them to do — shoot the three-pointers. Only problem was, they made them."

Tim Bengston led Willmar with 15 points, including a 5-for-8 effort from three-point range, and the Warriors got 11 points from Burns on a 3-for-4 three-point range shooting show. Inside, Willmar got 13 points from Kent Habben and 12 points from Jim Hedstrom.

Northland was 30-for-55 from the field (55 per cent), but was just 9-for-22 at the free throw line (41 per cent). Willmar was 25-for-64 from the field (39 per cent) and 13-for-20 at the line (65 per cent). Willmar had a 41-39 rebound edge.

Pioneers Win 113-103 State Tournament Semifinals . . .

NCC Out-Scores Normandale

Northland out-gunned Normandale 113-103 Friday night in an offensive show that highlighted the semifinals of the 1987 Minnesota Community College Conference men's state basketball tournament at Inver Grove Heights Community College.

"It was a great ball game," reported Northland coach Chet Engelman. "The first half (a 60-60 tie) was probably the most exciting first half of basketball in Minnesota Community College basketball history. Both teams played super."

The lead changed hands 19 times, and there were nine ties in the scoring binge. Northland finally won it by taking an 89-88 lead with six minutes to go and turning it into a 99-89 cushion. Normandale pulled within 101-96 with four minutes left, but an eight-point run by the Pioneers made it 109-96 with one minute to play.

Greg Campbell scored a game-high 36 points for the Pioneers, but he had company in that 30-point class as Normandale's Steve Ivory netted 33 and Cory Otterdahl had 30 on the nose. The Pioneers also received 17 points from Anthony McCullough, 16 from Ray Davis, 14 from Randy Hargest and 11 from Randy Henrickson. Hargest and Henrickson drew special post-game praise from Engelman for their fine all-around play.

Northland was 43-for-84 from the field (51 per cent) and 22-for-30 from the free throw line (73 per cent). Normandale was 42-for-83 from the field (51 per cent) and 10-for-18 at the line (56 per cent). The Lions had a 52-45 rebound edge, but also had more turnovers, 18-14.

It was the first Northland win ever over Normandale, a team that knocked some outstanding Northland teams out of state tournament contention in the 1970's.

Itasca Wins State Title Game, 100-79 Over Northland . . .

Pioneers Earn Second Runner-Up Trophy

Itasca lived up to its pre-tournament role as the No. 1 team in the state Saturday by beating Northland 100-79 in the championship game of the 1987 Minnesota Community College Conference men's state basketball tournament in Inver Grove Heights.

It was the first state title for the Vikings, and it was the second straight runner-up finish for the Pioneers, who lost a frustrating overtime decision to University of Minnesota-Crookston in last year's finals.

But this year's state tournament showing was a surprise for the Pioneers, who came into the tournament unranked and sporting a 12-11 regular season record. They reached the finals, though by upsetting No. 5-ranked Willmar 78-73 in the Thursday quarterfinals, then knocking off No. 3-ranked Normandale 113-103 in the Friday semifinals.

And they gave the Vikings a run before the score got out of hand at the end.

"The score was very deceiving," pointed out Northland coach Chet Engelman, whose team trailed just 45-39 at halftime and still had a shot at 83-79 with 1:30 remaining. But a steady Itasca march to the free throw line at the end bloated the final margin.

"We weren't going to sit there and expire," said Engelman in explaining the must-foul situation the Pioneers faced at the end. "We weren't going to just sit back and lose by nine. We went after it."

Northland's Greg Campbell scored 30 points to his three-game state tournament total to 97 points and increased his value dramatically in the eyes of a number of four-year college coaches as he closed out his two-year Northland career in style. Backcourtmate Ray Davis polished off an outstanding tournament with 28 points, while Anthony McCullough had an 11-point, 17-rebound game. Itasca's Donald Thompson, the tournament's best player who is headed for major college basketball at Texas A&M, had a game-high 31 points.

"Our kids played super the entire tournament," mentioned Engelman. "I think they did a fantastic job. They worked so hard. It was a lot of fun. Itasca simply has a great team. They beat us four times this year."

Shooting figures were similar. Northland was 32-for-77 from the field (42 per cent), while Itasca went 35-for-74 (47 per cent). Northland was 12-for-16 at the free throw line, where Itasca was busy 22-for-35. The Vikings made 11 of those free throws in the final minutes, and hit the century mark with a three-point shot at the buzzer. Rebounds were even at 47-apiece. Northland had 12 turnovers; Itasca had 10.

Scoring

| | 1 | 2 | T |
|---|---|---|---|
| Northland | 39 | 40 | 79 |
| Itasca | 45 | 55 | 100 |

Huskies Win Double OT Game

Goodridge completed its 1986-87 regular season schedule in dramatic fashion Friday with a 49-47 double-overtime boys high school basketball win over visiting Red Lake Falls.

The Huskies finished 4-15, but seven of the losses, pointed out first-year head coach John Rahn, were by three points or less. "We could have very easily been 11-8," he said.

They could have also easily been 3-16 after trailing by as much as 14 points in the first half. But sophomore Rob Ryan sparked a comeback with a couple of key steals late in the second half that enabled the Huskies to pull within 29-21 at halftime, and they caught the Eagles at 37-37 in the third quarter. Goodridge faced a four-point deficit with just 40 seconds left in regulation time, but gained a 43-all tie.

It remained deadlocked at 45-45 as the first overtime ended, then the Huskies' Shawn Groven produced a pair of game-winning free throws with 11 seconds left in the second overtime.

"It was a very intense ball game," mentioned Rahn. "All the kids played hard."

Rahn said the comeback at the end of the third quarter was the turning point in the game, citing Ryan for his work during that stretch. He also singled out Tommi Quam for a 17-point, 12-rebound performance, and sophomore Paul Henrickson for his strong defensive play and rebounding work. Roger Coan and Groven joined Quam in double figures with 11 and 10 points, respectively. Tony Gagnon led Red Lake Falls with 14 points.

Goodridge was 18-for-55 from the field (33 per cent) and 12-for-20 at the free throw line (60 per cent). Red Lake Falls was 19-for-45 from the field (42 per cent) and 9-for-18 at the line (50 per cent).

Plummer . . . . . . . . . . 69
Oslo . . . . . . . . . . 67

Clutch free throws by Wade Grinde and Neil Huotari, and a big field goal from Shane Freyholtz — all in the final minute of play — lifted Plummer past Oslo 69-67 Friday.

Oslo started with a 16-13 first quarter lead and had a 37-30 halftime advantage. Plummer cut the difference to 52-50 at the end of the third quarter, then went ahead 69-65 behind the late-game points from Grinde, Huotari and Freyholtz before the Cardinals willingly gave up a final-second Oslo shot for the two-point difference.

Freyholtz scored 25 points and Grinde had 20, while Huotari and John Fisher both netted 10. Chad Korynta led Oslo with 19 points.

Plummer shot 59 per cent from the field, but the Cardinals, who were 27-for-46, didn't get enough shots, said Plummer coach Jim Baron. Oslo shot 52 per cent from the field, with many of the 29-for-56 shots coming on offensive rebounds, a big concern for Baron, whose team is 13-5 for the year.

The Cardinals were 15-for-26 at the free throw line, where the Bobcats were 9-for-17.

Plummer winds up its regular season schedule Tuesday at Oklee.

Warren led only 10-8 at the end of the first quarter, but opened up a 27-18 halftime spread and had a 44-24 third quarter cushion.

Marshall County Central was 16-for-40 from the field (40 per cent) and 7-for-14 at the free throw line. Warren was 24-for-43 from the field (56 per cent) and 12-for-19 at the line. The Ponies had a 30-19 rebound advantage and the Nordics had more turnovers, 27-25.

IT LOOKED TO be a game-winning play when Thief River Falls forward Scott Novak (9) swung around the net and shoved the puck by Bemidji goalie Eric Runningen before a pair of Bemidji defenders closed in with 11:20 left in the second overtime during Friday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament quarterfinal game at East Grand Forks. Novak got the puck past the netminder, but it didn't completely cross the goal line. Less than two minutes later, however, Novak did beat Runningen for a dramatic 4-3 sudden-death victory that put the underdog Prowlers into tonight's (Monday) semifinals against top-seeded Warroad.

Outdoor News

State Commission on Minnesotans Outdoors, chaired by Lieutenant Governor Marlene Johnson, has released findings of its statewide assessment of future outdoor recreation needs.

Protection of natural resources and availability of stable funding for recreation programs are at the centerpiece of the commission's report, "Recommit to Recreation: A Report on Minnesota's Future Outdoor Recreation Needs."

The commission was formed in late 1985 in conjunction with a national recreation assessment by a presidential Commission on Americans Outdoors. Recommendations of the Commission on Minnesotans Outdoors are based on testimony from more than 1,800 individuals from around the state.

"The diversity of groups we heard from only served to emphasize the many ways Minnesotans enjoy the outdoors and the range of opportunities we must provide to meet recreation demands of the future," says Johnson.

"We heard from people who fish, hunt, hike, bike, camp, ski, snowmobile, ride horses, walk, play ball — the list is almost endless. Almost without exception, they identified the need for more and better opportunities to pursue their outdoor interests."

Johnson says that many of those testifying urged continued action to protect the quality of Minnesota lakes, streams, wetlands, forests, wildlife and other natural resources that form the base of opportunity for numerous outdoor pursuits.

The commission cited continuation of the Reinvest in Minnesota Resources Program (RIM) as key to protecting fish and wildlife resources and recommended maximum long-term funding for RIM.

Other conservation-related recommendations call for continuation of the federal Conservation Reserve Program, with more stringent requirements for soil and water conservation; establishment of a national emission control plan for acid rain; continued enforcement of water pollution control standards and clean-up efforts; and shoreland protection.

Financing for outdoor recreation was another key area of concern for the commission. Over the last 25 years, the federal government has supported acquisition and development of recreation facilities nationwide through the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LAWCON). But this funding program ends in 1989. In Minnesota, LAWCON dollars have been matched with state and local grants, in effect tripling investment in state outdoor recreation programs.

Financing has also been a focus of attention for the Commission on American Outdoors. That commission has recommended establishment of a $1 billion-a-year outdoor recreation trust fund to replace LAWCON, a concept supported by the Commission on Minnesotans Outdoors.

To ensure that federal dollars reach individual communities, the Minnesota commission has recommended that one-half of the state's share of trust fund dollars be directed to local governments.

"Funding for outdoor recreation is a very real problem," says Johnson, "and our creativity and willingness to look at new financing sources will be a major factor affecting ability to meet future outdoor recreation needs."

"It is apparent to our commission that Minnesotans place great value on the time they spend outdoors, and they want to continue to enjoy high-quality recreation opportunities in the future," says Johnson. "A lot has been invested in developing Minnesota's present outdoor recreation system — but we can't take these opportunities for granted. Ensuring outdoor opportunities that meet the needs of the future is going to require a recommitment to recreation."

Other members of the Commission on Minnesotans Outdoors are Mary Kenny, of the Minnesota Council of Parks; Beverly Anderson, a biomedical researcher at 3-M in St. Paul; Wayne Olson, Minneapolis, a former commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources; Rod Searle, Waseca, former speaker of the Minnesota House of Representatives; Robert Dunn, Princeton, a former Minnesota senator and representative; and William Kirchner, Richfield, also a former state representative.

— News From Minnesota DNR —

Northwestern Minnesota has been blessed this year with more snow than anywhere else in the state. This may not sound like such a good deal to some people but for snowmobilers, this has insured a good year.

Nearly 200 miles of new trails have been established by the Kittson County Trailblazers. These trails provide opportunities for snowmobilers throughout Kittson County. They extend from the woodlands of eastern Kittson County to the wide open spaces of western Kittson County. According to trail groomer, Rick Sovdeu, the trails provide a variety of scenery. Trails from the Red River in the west, to the Roseau River in the east, are routed to many towns in the county allowing trail riders to take breaks when ever they choose.

Trails have been groomed on a regular basis throughout the winter and have an excellent base, up to 30" in places. The trails were developed and maintained in part through money received from a DNR Grants-in-Aid program. Money for Grants-in-Aid is generated from the snowmobile license fees.

This has been a great year for winter sports in the northwest. Excellent snowmobiling is anticipated to continue for some time, report area DNR officials. For more information on the trails call 386-1304.

Fish, Wildlife Transfer

Proposed transfer of $25 million in federal funds from a recreational boating and fish enhancement fund to another resource management budget would cost Minnesota almost $1 million in funds now used for the benefit of anglers and boaters.

"The public should be aware of the call by the Department of Interior to transfer $25 million from the Wallop-Breaux Trust Fund to the Fish and Wildlife Service's resource management budget, which will negatively impact on boaters and anglers who now contribute to this fund," said DNR Fisheries Director Richard Hassinger.

American League of Anglers and Boaters (ALAB) and the American Fisheries Society (AFS) both have charged that the Interior Department is depleting this fund only to help balance the federal budget. Since the fund is composed of matching state money derived from state excise taxes on fishing tackle and motorboat fuel, they say the full amount should continue to benefit fishing and boating nationwide.

"In addition to the argument that this one-time transfer would violate the basic user fee principle we have always followed," Hassinger said, "it would also jeopardize existing projects we have implemented, from improving water access to improving fishing opportunities."

The public is encouraged to contact their congressmen concerning their opinion of this possible action.

New State Forest Road

In late January 1987, a cooperative agreement was signed by officials of Stony River Township, Lake County and the Department of Natural Resources, Forestry Division, to create a new forest road.

The new Stony River Forest Road will extend 17.7 miles through Finland State Forest, running from Isabella south of County Hwy. 2 north of Two Harbors.

Stony River Road is being constructed from a portion of the Duluth-Mesabi Iron Range Railroad grade abandoned in 1984. The rail line was originally constructed to serve the Arrowhead logging industry, but continues to serve as an access for logging activities in the region. It will also serve an important recreation use since it crosses the major moose range in Northeastern Minnesota.

Bluebird Workshop

All bluebird enthusiasts in the state are being invited to attend a special, one-day workshop on bluebirds that will demonstrate how to build bluebird houses, offer a slide show on bluebirds and provide advice on the species by a local expert.

The program, to be held from 1-3 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 28, will be held at the OxBow Nature Center in Byron. To reach the center, drive three miles north of Byron on County Road 5 to County Road 105 (follow the signs from Byron to the park.)

Attendants are asked to bring their own hammers and pay $3, which will be used to defray some of the costs of the project. "We hope people will come to learn more about the bluebird and join our effort to bring them back to southeast Minnesota," said DNR Nongame Planner Joan Galli.

More information on the workshop can be obtained by calling Galli at (612) 297-2277.

DNR Hires Regional Hydrologist

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources this week announced that a new Area Hydrologist, Jim E. Haertel, has been hired to work in the Rochester Office of the Division of Waters.

His assignment will include Goodhue, Wabasha, Winona and Houston counties, where he will be responsible for processing protected waters and water appropriation permit applications. "He is also expected to be involved in working with local units of government on shoreland and floodplain zoning matters, in collecting hydrologic and hydraulic data on the streams and rivers and water basins, and in responding to inquiries from the public regarding water resources in each of these counties," according to Regional Hydrologist Jim Cooper.

Heartel has worked for the National Weather Service, and has also worked closely with local governments regarding river stage forecasting and evaluation of floodplains. He is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and has a masters degree in Forest Hydrology.

Cotoneasters: Wildlife Cover That Fills The Bill

You say that you want the perfect plant for attracting wildlife to your yard. Just one type to do the whole job:

If that plant did exist, it would be evergreen — good places to hide year 'round. Fruit or seeds would be available throughout the year, relished by desirable birds in your area and despised by wildlife you didn't care for. Its flowers would attract butterflies and hummingbirds for a month or two. It would have no pest problems. And it would not be a pest itself, spreading itself far and wide in an attempt at world domination. It wouldn't cause undue maintenance chores such as cleaning up squishy fruit, raking its leaves or thinning its overmature trunks. And perhaps most important, it would look good all year long.

Such a plant would undoubtedly be without character and boring. Plants that make me work and force me to get to know their qualities are, I think, better for my landscape and wildlife. In caring for them, I make a commitment to constantly monitor and improve my gardening efforts.

Look for plants that offer you and wildlife some of the positive qualities the perfect plant might provide. Some major groups of plants meet a good number of the above requirements. Junipers are one such group. Cotoneasters rank high with them as varied, desirable wildlife landscaping choices.

Cotoneasters form a large group of Asian and European shrubs that grow well in most U.S. soils. They prosper from the far south north to areas where winter temperatures do not regularly fall below zero. Some are evergreen, especially in the south. All have numerous white to pinkish-red flowers of small to moderate size. These give way to orange, scarlet, purple or black fruit in fall and winter. Often pronounced "cotton easter", they range in size from mat-forming ground covers to fifteen foot high fountain-shaped shrubs.

I grow three species in my own yard. You may want to try one or all three.

Cotoneaster Dammeri. A very low growing evergreen that retains berries into February. Spreads by rooting vigorously from any branch that has soil contact. 'Coral Beauty' is a good cultivar.

C. apiculatus — Cranberry cotoneaster. A deciduous shrub with widely arching branches. Tops off at 2 to 3 feet. Red berries held until March.

C. divaricatus — Spreading cotoneaster. A pink-flowered, deciduous shrub growing to six feet. Lots of clusters of red fruit through most of the winter.

Although your local garden center may not carry all of the cotoneasters you desire, they will probably carry two or three types. Mail order houses and specialty nurseries carry many others. Do some reading on the varieties that work best in your area and then promise yourself and wildlife that you'll add a cluster or two to your landscape this spring.

There's nothing new under the sun. Fossils found in Australia show that photosynthesis has been going on a lot longer than scientists once thought — about 700 million years longer. According to International Wildlife magazine, the new fossil evidence indicates that blue-green algae were producing oxygen through photosynthesis 3.5 billion years ago. That's just one billion years after the earth was formed.

Every dog has its day. And winter is the time for Sirius, the "Dog Star." According to Ranger Rick magazine, Sirius is one of the stars closest to Earth, making it the brightest in the winter sky. It's also hotter and bigger than any of the other close stars. Sirius is part of the constellation called the "Big Dog," or Canis Major. Both are visible from November until mid-May.

When the rains come to the southern Arizona desert each year, spadefoot toads emerge from below the ground. According to National Wildlife magazine, these desert toads mate at night and lay their eggs near pools of water. As the water begins to recede, the tadpoles hatch and mature. The spadefoot toads then resort to voluntary burial. There they will remain — buried alive — until new rains come to the desert the following year.

It's now of-FISH-al! Hawaii has chosen its state fish. Ranger Rick magazine reports that the Humuhumu won the most votes after an election rally at the Waikiki Aquarium. A figure in early Hawaiian legends, the Humuhumu is known for its strategy of swimming into a small crack and using a special spine to lock itself in place, preventing other fish from extracting and eating it. The Humuhumu will serve as the state fish for five years, after which it must run for re-election.

Legend has it that before a swan dies, it sings a beautiful farewell. And in the case of North America's tundra swan, the legend may be true. According to National Wildlife magazine, scientists have found that tundra swans utter a plaintive "departure song" — a prolonged musical note — just before they take to the air. That song is sometimes repeated when one of the birds dies.

Move over Esther Williams. Here's the European Water Spider. It eats, sleeps, mates and raises young underwater. According to Ranger Rick magazine, this acrobatic spider gets air by swimming to the surface, doing a somersault and snatching an air bubble. The water spider attaches this natural "air tank" to breathing holes in the middle of its body. Then, the spider heads back to the water's surface for other air bubbles.

Land O'Lakes Has 1986 Margins Of $17.1 Million

Land O'Lakes, Inc., reported 1986 margins from continuing operations of $17.1 million, up 33 per cent, on sales of $2.2 billion at its annual meeting in Minneapolis February 24-25. The cooperative's food, turkey and feed operations contributed to the overall strong profit increase.

Land O'Lakes sales of $2.2 billion for 1986 were about the same as sales in 1985, despite continuing adversity in the agricultural economy and plummeting energy and fertilizer prices.

Margins before income taxes for 1986 were $10.5 million following a loss related to Land O'Lakes discontinued beef business.

"The improvement in margins in our core businesses reflects the importance of our diversified operation," said Ron Ostby, Land O'Lakes group vice president of finance and planning. "Our foods group had a 65 per cent increase in profits. The turkey and feed divisions also contributed to overall results. On the other side of our operation, dairy processing, fertilizer and petroleum exploration and production each experienced difficult market conditions."

In 1986, Land O'Lakes made cash payment of more than $4 million to its members in the form of patronage refunds, estate payments and revolvement of equities. These payments amounted to more than 53 per cent of the cooperative's 1985 distributable margins.

The Land O'Lakes financial report was presented to members at the cooperative's 65th annual meeting at the Minneapolis auditorium. Approximately 3,500 farmer-owners and managers of members cooperatives from eight midwestern states attended the meeting.

Land O'Lakes is a farm supply, dairy processing and food marketing cooperative based in Arden Hills. It has assets of $644 million and is owned by more than 1,000 local cooperatives and 9,200 direct member-patrons. In total, the membership is comprised of 325,000 farmer-owners. Over the past 10 years Land O'Lakes has returned more than $80 million in cash to its members.

Fire Destroys Shop And Grain Bin In Norden Township

Fire destroyed a shot and grain bin located in Norden township Thursday. Thief River Falls Chief Dave Bjorkman said they received a fire call at 11:36 a.m.

The caller said that the shop and grain bin owned by Gerhard Molskness was almost completely engulfed in flames at that time. Bjorkman said that when they reached the site of the fire, five miles west on highway one and two and three-quarter miles north on county road 14, the shop where Molskness apparently did some auto body repair work was already destroyed along with all of the tools stored in the shop.

The fire department was able to save the grain bin but Bjorkman thought the 1,500 bushels of grain being stored in the bin were probably a total loss.

Bjorkman said the apparent cause of the fire was a wood stove used in the auto body shop. A pumper and tanker were sent to the fire where the fire was quickly extinguished. Bjorkman said the fire department might have been able to save the structures if the call had been received earlier.

Bjorkman added that this winter has been surprisingly quiet. A mild winter has probably kept many people from firing up their stoves as much, Bjorkman said.

TRF Girl Experiences Work In Switzerland

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"There were days when I would have been willing to swim home," said Doretta Mosloff of Thief River Falls about her Work Experience Abroad program experience in Switzerland. "And there were other days when, if someone had given me a ticket and said it was my last chance ever to leave, I would have torn up the ticket."

Although she admitted to being homesick a lot during the several month experience, she said she felt she learned a lot every day and would go again if she had the opportunity. Although she worked hard for three months on the Jean Jacques Gerber farm near Laussane, Switzerland, the family treated her well and she was able to do some traveling and establish friendships.

A girl from Chicago, IL, lived about four minutes away by car and she and Doretta developed a strong friendship. They would get together fairly often. Doretta was able to attend a fashion show near Paris, two weddings, an onion festival, dairy and town meetings and a large horse show.

While English is the international language, French was spoken on the farm. Many of the young people knew English quite well and were familiar with the U.S. government. Doretta laughs when she thinks of the picture she had taken of herself with a cardboard cut-out of President Reagan and the difficulty she had convincing one Swiss woman that it wasn't of the real person.

She also met a couple from Germany on the airplane enroute overseas and was surprised during conversation to find that they owned a cabin on Lake of the Woods.

In beginning her trip, Doretta spent a week in Washington, DC, intensively studying language, culture and other information about her host country. Upon arrival in Luxembourg she made farm visits with a group of about 30 students for three days. She then visited Brussels, Belgium; Amsterdam, Holland; Frankfurt, West Germany; and Paris, France, before moving on to Switzerland.

The Gerber farm was considered a

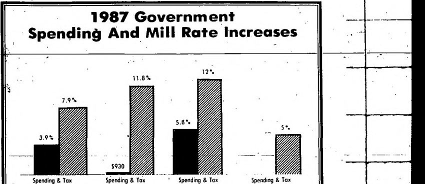
The group was formed in 1978 and continues with all of the original members.



LARGE PROPERTY TAX increases in Pennington county are a result of a number of factors. Among the contributing factors are increased spending by local governments, fewer state and federal aid dollars, higher insurance premiums and many others. This graph measures and compares 1987 local government spending and mill rate increases in Pennington county. The first bar indicates the spending increase by the governing body, and the second, the mill rate increase. The figures for each local governing body had to be adjusted to allow for the comparison to be made. The school district did not have a figure for spending increases because the state dictates pretty much what it can and cannot spend its funds on. Nevertheless, the mill rate increase set by the school district and other governing bodies affects property tax increases experienced by residents in Pennington county.

Tax Increases Due To Loss Of Federal Aid

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Large property tax increases have caused concern among citizens and an apparent need for cities in the League of Minnesota Cities to determine whether increases were due to their increased spending. The League of Minnesota Cities recently published a survey of city budgets in Minnesota, explaining where the increases came from.

The league mailed 782 questionnaires to Minnesota cities which were members of the League. Nearly half (45 per cent) of these cities responded to the survey. Questionnaires were returned by 353 cities, representing over 41 per cent of all cities in the state.

According to the league's city budget survey findings, city property taxes will rise more rapidly in 1987 than city spending, reflecting mainly the loss of $40 million in federal general revenue sharing funds and insufficient state aid.

In a letter sent to editors across the state, Donald A. Slater of the league states, "According to a recent survey, Minnesota cities will be raising their property taxes significantly this year. However, they're not doing it to cover bigger budgets; rather, it's to make up for the loss of $40 million in federal aid."

According to Gerard DeHaan, Pennington county and Thief River Falls city assessor, commercial property taxes will be up by a solid 20 per cent this year. Many of the businesses in Thief River Falls will see an increase beyond that and, in at least one instance, a local business will see an increase of over 27 per cent. Local residential property owners will see an increase of an average seven per cent, and farmers also will see an increase of around seven per cent.

DeHaan said the increases in the property taxes were due to budget increases by city, county and school district, a shift in the property tax structure from farm to commercial and a decrease in revenue sharing funds.

According to the league survey, city spending across the state will rise a modest 3.9 per cent (compared to 1986), while average city tax levies will rise 7.9 per cent, more than double the spending rate.

When city costs in Thief River Falls were added up to make an accurate comparison with state figures possible, the general fund budget went up approximately $140,000 from $2,449,912 in 1986 to $2,592,252 in 1987, a 5.8 per cent increase. Statewide, city spending rose 3.9 per cent. Fourth class cities with populations between 2,500 and 10,000 reported an 8.3 per cent average increase in expenditures.

In 1986 the proposed budget (minus interdepartmental transfers of funds) was $9,095,645 and in 1987 it is $9,433,938. The increase amounts to 3.7 per cent. City tax levies were higher than state averages also. The statewide figure was 7.9 per cent and Thief River Falls' increase was 12 per cent. The state average for fourth class cities with populations between 2,500 and 10,000 was eight per cent.

Total property tax increases in the

Restrictions On County Roads To Parallel State

Road restrictions on all Pennington county roads will go into effect on the same date as the state trunk highway restrictions for the area. Restriction limits are based on gross axle weight which include the weight of the vehicle and the load it is carrying.

No permits for overweight axle loads exceeding posted axle weights will be issued during the period when the signs are in place or while road restrictions are in effect.

During the period when signs are in place or road restrictions are in effect, any county or township road is restricted to five tons gross weight per axle except as otherwise signed. If no signs are erected, the five-ton gross weight provisions shall apply.

All rural bituminous Pennington county state aid highways will be posted at seven tons gross weight per axle, with the exception of C.S.A.H. 3 from T.H. 32 to T. H. 59, which will be posted at 10 tons per axle.

Through an exhibit, two movies and a lecture, the programs will explore the problems of adjustment and change experienced by immigrants. These programs will focus on the circumstances that led to immigration, the struggle to become part of a new cultural system and the effect that these changes had on the immigrant families.

The exhibit of immigrant art will be on display in the NCC art gallery March 9 through April 6. Movies to be shown include "The Emigrants" on March 17 and "This New Land" on March 18, both at 8 p.m. in the college theatre. The lecture program at 8 p.m. March 26 in the theatre will be presented by Betty Bergland of the University of Minnesota and is entitled "Through Their Own Eyes: The World of the Child in Immigrant Autobiography."

Together, the programs are being billed as "The Immigrants' Experience — The First Generation" and are being offered free of charge to the public. For those who wish to use the program as either a college credit or continuing education experience a study guide will be available.

The exhibit has been organized by the touring exhibitions program at the University of Minnesota art museum. Additional information about the program is available by calling Northland at 681-2161.

Local CPA Firm Meets Standards Of Peer Review

Moser & Christianson, LTD, Certified Public Accountants, has successfully completed an independent peer review of its accounting and auditing practice. The reviewers concluded that the firm complies with the stringent quality control standards set by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the national professional organization of CPAs.

Peer reviews are required for membership in AICPA's Division for CPA Firms, according to Arve E. Moser, managing partner. The division is a voluntary self-regulatory organization of firms established to foster quality performance. Almost half the CPAs in public practice are members of firms that have joined the division.

Moser & Christianson, LTD is a member of the division's private companies practice section, which focuses on the accounting and audit services provided to companies that do not have public stockholders.

The peer review was conducted by the Duluth firm of Eikill & Schilling, Ltd., CPAs' under procedures established by the AICPA. The reviewers made an independent assessment of the firm's quality control policies and procedures and inspected the working papers and reports on a representative sample of accounting and auditing engagements. They also inspected the firm's administrative files and records and interviewed professional personnel. The reviewers' report has been accepted by the division for the public files maintained at the AICPA.

In evaluating a firm's quality controls, a peer reviewer considers, among other things, what the firm has done to ensure that it hires only qualified people, properly supervises them and provides them with professional training, advances them to responsibilities they are capable of handling and provides them with necessary technical resources.

Tax Increases Due To Loss Of Federal Aid

county also include the levies set by the county and school district. The tax levy in Pennington county was set at $2,192,222 for 1986 and $2,450,000 for 1987. The increase amounts to 11.8 per cent. The tax levy set by School District 564 was set at $3,226,664 in 1986 and $3,375,013 in 1987. The increase amounts to five per cent.

When corrections are made in the county budget to account for the mill rate increases, a comparison indicates that the spending increase is so negligible (less than one per cent) that a dollar amount works out better. In 1986 the county budget was $6,680,070 and in 1987 it was $6,681,000. The increase was $930 or less than one per cent.

Among the reasons cited for the increases were the loss of federal general revenue sharing, maintenance of current services and liability insurance premiums.

In Thief River Falls, the city received no federal revenue sharing funds this year. Last year the city received $87,000. Local government aids increased by seven per cent this year, however.

According to the league survey, the rising cost of delivering the same services was identified as increasing the budgets of 58 per cent of the cities surveyed: 56 per cent cited rising liability insurance premiums, which rose an average 163 per cent over the 1984-86 period.

Comments from Pennington county auditor Ken Olson and assistant city clerk Roger DeLap, indicated that a lack of federal revenue and maintenance of current services accounted for the major budget increases and mill rate increases, which outdistanced costs by a margin greater than two to one.

Pennington county lost $180,000 in revenue sharing in 1987. Most of those funds, according to Ken Olson, were used for large capital outlays such as equipment. Now that those funds will no longer be available, large capital outlays must come from general funds, which cause mill rates to jump significantly. Olson also said their largest increase in costs came from the county welfare department budget, which increased by roughly $200,000. Maintaining current levels of services were the major concern of commissioners, though cuts in other areas were made. Olson said the higher mill rate is also a reflection of a levy for Oakland Park. The county has not set a mill rate for Oakland Park in the past two years.

Roger DeLap said capital outlays for equipment were also made from federal revenue sharing funds to the city. Those funds are no longer available. Equipment expenditures are now coming from the general fund. DeLap said other reasons for a mill rate that doubled included maintaining current levels of service, such as maintenance of government buildings, and the park and recreation department, which had some large expenses with the shade tree project. An increase in the levy was also due in part to rising liability insurance premiums and debt service retirement fund. DeLap said defining where the increases were is not an easy question to answer, but basically the increase came from those areas discussed.

"There is no direct correlation between our budget and the levy," said Harry Nelson, business manager for School District 564. "The state pretty much tells us what our maximum levy will be. But, even if the state aids did get cut they wouldn't necessarily give us a corresponding increase in the mill rate," he said.

However, Nelson said, the increase in the mill rate probably was affected by the school bond fund which increased by $175,000 and a levy for removal of hazardous waste, which increased $73,000. Otherwise the increase was really a "hodgepodge of things."

According to the league's survey, over two-thirds (68 per cent) of the cities surveyed designated a loss of federal general revenue sharing as one of the top three factors influencing their levies.

Other reasons for the increase that were selected by the cities in the survey included: local government aid not sufficient to cover rising costs; increased costs of same services; new programs and services; reserve needs; and liability insurance costs.

It has been rumored that the federal Farmers Home administration (FmHA) is not required to pay property taxes on land it has acquired through foreclosure or conveyance. Local FmHA officials state that the agency is obligated to pay those taxes. At present there are 1,200 acres in Pennington county land held by the FmHA.

TRF Girl Has Work Experience In Switzerland

large farm, she said, being comprised of 53 hectares (one hectare equals 2.47 acres). The Gerbers had two daughters, ages two and three, and there were four other students working on the farm — two from France, one from Germany and one from Switzerland. The farm operation included six hectares of corn for silage, 4.5 of potatoes, 16 of permanent grass, five of barley and 12 of winter wheat and peas.

The dairy herd included 40 head of red and white Holstein cattle for which fresh grass was cut three times daily and fed to them. Milk produced was sold through a cooperative to a Yoplait Yogurt company which had a plant in the area.

Doretta was involved in being in the barn by 6:30 a.m. for milking and calf feeding and in the task of cutting and feeding green grass during the day. She said the grass was called Chinese grass and was fed in that manner all year, supplemented with corn silage in the winter.

She also was involved with the potato harvest, working in the fields from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., cleaning and grading the tubers. A second grading was also done at the storage shed in the farm yard and the small potatoes were fed to the cattle. She said that substantial amounts of chemicals and fertilizers were used in the production of crops. She also noted that no land was wasted; vegetables were planted among the flowers which brightened the yard.

"I did get a little tired of bread, jam and coffee for breakfast every day for four months," she said. "A couple of times I was able to do the cooking and we had pancakes. The other students really seemed to like that."

The Work Experience Abroad program is conducted through the Future Farmers of America and Doretta was a member of the Thief River Falls FFA chapter. The local chapter assisted her with a grant of $260 to make the trip, she earned $200 for her work on the Swiss farm, local business and other support totaled $500 and she received an FFA grant of $400 to assist with the $1,500 cost of the trip.

Doretta said it was good experience to learn to deal with the language barrier and that it took some time to learn to adjust to the change in lifestyle — such as not being able to jump in a car and go where you wanted to go any time.

Upon return to the United States she spent two days in a debriefing session, discussing the program, suggesting possible changes and noting differences in things when arriving back home.

And she must have made a good impression on her host family. They invited her to stay for another month, saying she could go to a farm in the Alps. But rather than tearing up the ticket, she decided to fly home on schedule. Sometimes homesickness is stronger than the desire to learn.

Additions Made To WomanWise Library At Center

Women today are more concerned with their health and overall wellness than they have ever been. There is widespread awareness and acceptance among women of the fact that they have health care needs that are unique. These needs include not only health maintenance, but also specific information and education, according to Gail Holland, public relations coordinator at Northwest Medical center.

In an effort to provide for those special needs Northwest Medical center has developed the WomanWise library last summer. The WomanWise library is an organized source of information on a variety of topics. Included in this library are books, pamphlets and video-tapes that may be viewed in the library or checked out and read at home.

Recently, 45 more books and video tapes were added to the resources already housed in this library. The library, which is open to the general public as well as employees, will be open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. It is located on the second floor of the hospital. Resources may be checked out for one week.

The WomanWise library has information available on the following subjects, plus many more; Anorexia, Arthritis, Breast Cancer, Mammography, Infertility, Hypertension, Hysterectomy, Menopause, Nutrition, Osteoporosis, PMS, Pregnancy, Stress and Weight Control.

Call Gail Holland at 681-4240, extension 210 for information.

No Nuclear Waste Here
by Congressman Arlan Stangeland
7th District, Minnesota

An explosive issue has been raised recently in Congress with the announcement by the Department of Energy that they will begin research on the location of a second nuclear waste repository.

I have been in close contact with the Department of Energy, the Administration and other members of Congress from affected states and I am pleased to inform all Seventh District Minnesotans that there will be no nuclear waste repository in the bountiful lands of northwestern Minnesota. As an outdoorsman myself, I cannot bear to hear proposals that would threaten the delicate balance of nature in an area of our nation that contains the headwaters to her three major water systems: the Red River Valley, the Mississippi River, and the Great Lakes Region.

I received this good news in a meeting I recently arranged with Ben Rusche, Director, Office of Civilian Radioactive Waste Management, Department of Energy. Mr. Rusche told me that a second nuclear waste facility was unnecessary due to inaccurate projections regarding storage needs. This being the case, Congress can pursue legislation eliminating the second storage facility and extending the deadlines for production of the first. The first facility will be located in Nevada, Texas or Washington state.

In another meeting I recently attended, I discussed with other members of Congress whose districts are threatened with the possibility of a nuclear waste repository, a legislative strategy to head off any further attempts to build a second nuclear waste repository. In this meeting, we discussed the Mission Plan as an amendment to the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982.

The Mission Plan provides three important initiatives for nuclear waste storage. Due to the Administration's inaccurate projections, deadlines for development of the first nuclear waste repository would be extended five years — to the year 2003. Secondly, development of the second nuclear waste repository would be extended indefinitely. Thirdly, the Mission Plan calls for a Monitored Retrievable Storage (MRS) Facility, located in Tennessee, that would serve as a temporary storage facility of nuclear waste. Furthermore, if development of a permanent storage facility were significantly delayed, the MRS could serve as a temporary repository.

The Mission Plan is excellent legislation. It adequately addresses the needs of the nuclear power industry and is totally funded by the producers of nuclear waste. Most importantly, this plan extends deadlines without risk, effectively creating time for our scientific community to develop safer and more practical means of nuclear waste disposal. It is my hope that America can soon recycle her nuclear waste, thus eliminating altogether the need for nuclear waste repositories and the threat to mankind and nature that accompanies it.

I will take great pride in cosponsoring this visionary legislation. It will take time, but I am confident that Congress can put to rest the question of need for a second nuclear waste repository. For Minnesota, this legislation insures the cleanliness of our waters and uncontaminated lands. The opportunity for all Minnesotans to share in the splendor of our unblemished natural resources should never be diminished. The citizens of the Seventh District have my word that I will do all in my power as a member of Congress to eliminate Minnesota from the list of potential nuclear waste repositories. As always, feel free to contact my office with any ideas or suggestions.

to the Editor

To The Editor:

I was real proud of President Reagan 18 months ago when he started contacting all the free nations and also some Arab and Communist countries if they would join us in trying to combat the taking of hostages and killing. And to show the whole world he meant business he bombed Libya. He sure scared the hell out of a lot of people to think twice before they take any more hostages.

I for one was ready to send Ronald a great big medal for a job well done. But while he was working with his right hand to control terrorism, his left hand was dealing with Iran, our worst enemy. It was plain and simply hard core politics.

As you know, we had a 1986 election coming up. The way things had been going, the whole White House was running scared. So the gang came up with a plan to trade hardware for our hostages and a deal was made. Tons and tons of arms were delivered to Iran and two men were released. Then it backfired; the rest you read in the papers. But if they could have gotten all the hostages out it would have made a lot of votes on election day 1986.

What is really going on in the political arena today? People will spend millions of dollars, lie, cheat, steal or almost commit murder just to get a job in Washington. I have never seen the likes of the 1986 election. Even the President spent almost six months on the road campaigning for his kind of people. There surely must be more important things for a president to do.

One other thing I do not agree with in our government is to give our lawmakers a big increase in pay, $10 or $12 thousand a year which will give them almost a hundred thousand dollars a year. We have in this country a lot of professional people who spend years in schools and colleges and would be happy to get one-fourth of those wages. And just think of all the benefits they get.

A lot of them earn up to $2,500 for only an hour or so on a speaking engagement. A lot of them end up in Wall Street earning a million or more.

Saying the Reagan administration defied the Congress, the Constitution and the poor, nine democrats filed suit Tuesday to stop the diversion of $28.6 million from a program that distributes cheese and other surplus food to the needy. The suit filed in U.S. District Court contends that the deferral of money already appropriated amounts to an illegal line-item veto by the President.

The Reagan Administration last week notified Congress that it was transferring $258 million from 25 government programs to finance pay raises given federal workers on January 3. Among the programs being gutted was the temporary emergency food assistance program, which finances the distribution of surplus food to the poor.

The administration contends that the program is no longer needed. A spokesman for the office of Management and Budget said the states should pick up the costs, if they feel the program should be continued.

It seems like this administration has only one thing in mind, take from the poor and helpless and give to the rich.

Thank you,
-s- Melvin Joppru

To The Editor:

A wise and successful person once told me, "If there is a goose that lays golden eggs, it's a business." The goose is kept alive by supportive customers. If the goose that lays the golden eggs dies, of course there will be no more golden eggs!

Why do we need golden eggs?

(1) To meet payroll;
(2) To pay taxes;
(3) To pay professional fees;
(4) To support churches;
(5) To support charities and sports;
(6) To support government;
(7) To support our schools.

Families deriving support from the preceding would be wise to consider the possibility that without support, the goose that lays the golden eggs may die and there will be no golden eggs for anyone!

Question: If the goose that lays the golden eggs supports all these categories, shouldn't each one in turn support the goose that lays the golden eggs? Isn't it a matter of integrity? Or, even survival?

An empty building in a business district represents a dead goose that used to lay golden eggs towards your support — and mine.!

We're winners supporting each other!

Respectfully,
Carl L. Anderson

To The Editor:

I would like to make people aware of the minimum wage bill that will be voted on March 9th in the House of Representatives. It would raise the minimum wage from $3.35 per hour to $4.25 per hour effective July 1, 1987, and minimum wage for minors from $3.02 per hour to $3.83 per hour.

It has been five years since the minimum wage has been raised. It's estimated 70 per cent of minimum-wage workers are adults. Half of those adults are supporting families. A whopping 60 per cent of the nation's minimum wage earners are women, many are heads of households. Fifty-five per cent of women who are employed and maintain families are poor. For men the comparable rate is 14 per cent.

For example, a mother of two working 40 hours a week 52 weeks a year at minimum wage would earn only $6,968. That's $1,694 less than what government calls poverty level for a family of three. A woman with one child will still come up $442 a year less than the poverty level.

I find it an incredible thing to know that people are struggling this way.

You can help pass this very important bill by contacting Representatives Jim Tunhiem 612-296-9635 and Wally Sparby 612-296-9918 and simply telling them you are in favor of this bill.

The statistical information in this letter came from the Governor's Commission on Poverty in Minnesota. I would be glad to share more of this with anyone interested.

Sincerely,
Kathleen Rux, TRF

Best Beef Recipes Wanted For Barbecue Cook-Off

The best barbecue recipes in the land will be determined at the 1987 beef cook-off in Sun Valley, ID, when contestants representing all 50 states compete in the all-new "barbecue category" of the national beef cook-off.

The barbecue category is open to any 18 years or older who has a non-professional food status. Anyone who has owned one or more head of beef or dairy cattle, or who lives in a household where any person has owned cattle in the 12 months preceding September 20, 1987, is ineligible. Deadline for entry is April 1, 1987.

All recipes must contain a minimum of one pound, and no more than five pounds of beef. Each serving must contain at least three ounces of cooked beef. Meat used must be exclusively beef and all barbecue recipes are required to be cooked over Kingsford charcoal on Weber grills. The recipe must be specific, with no use of brand names, and must state the number of servings, cooking time and approximate preparation time. The combined cooking and preparation time is not to exceed four hours.

Contestants should send their best beef barbecue recipe utilizing any cut of beef, except organ meats, to Barbecue Category, National Beef Cook-Off, 444 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60611. Each recipe should include a name, address, phone number and a brief statement about the recipe's origin.

Winners of seven regional contests nationwide will prepare their recipes at the national beef cook-off September 20 through 22 in Sun Valley, ID, where they will compete for the following prize money: first place, $2,500; second place, $1,500; third place, $750.

Judging criteria for the barbecue category will be based on the following point structure: taste, 40 points; ease of preparation and practicality, 30 points; originality, 20 points; appearance, 10 points.

SWCD Supervisors Meet In St. Paul With Legislators

Concern about water quality issues and the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) program prompted soil and water conservation district supervisors from across Minnesota to meet with legislators in Saint Paul last week. Danny Johnson of the Pennington SWCD met with Representative Wallace Sparby at the breakfast meeting.

Districts are already playing a major role in improvement of water quality through soil erosion control programs. Additional funding to provide cost-sharing to landowners will enable them to provide service to more landowners.

The supervisors also urged their legislators to provide continued funding for the Reinvest in Minnesoa program. Under the RIM reserve portion of the bill, 914 farmers were enrolled in the reserve to convert approximately 21,000 acres of marginal cropland into wildlife habitat for at least 10 years. Supporters of RIM hope to gain even more wildlife benefits through the addition of wetland restoration to the land eligible for enrollment.

Ag-Stravaganza, a farmland protection curriculum for students in kindergarten through ninth grade, was also an important topic at the meeting. Conservation districts have been sponsoring demonstration workshops for teachers in their local counties. They are concerned that funding for the program ends in June and are asking the legislature to provide an educational coordinator to insure that conservation education continues in the schools.

Johnson said he was encouraged that over 100 legislators attended the breakfast meeting. With protection of water quality such a high priority for the people of Minnesota, the districts have been working with their counties to develop improved plans to protect Minnesota's water resources. They hope to build on the interest of the legislators so that future legislation and funding will be available to create a strong local-state-national partnership in water quality protection.

Application For Artist Residency Due By April 20

Schools should begin planning immediately for application to the Minnesota state arts board for artist residency funding during the 1987-88 school year. Application forms are available now for the April 20 deadline.

The artist in education school support program provides funds for artist residencies in Minnesota public and private elementary and secondary schools and educational organizations. Grant awards, to be made in July of 1987, pay for up to one-half of residency costs. Previous grants have ranged from a few hundred dollars for a five-day residency, to over $14,000 for a year-long residency involving several artists throughout a school district.

Schools are free to design residencies which fit the needs of their students and communities. Residencies must be at least five days in length and may use an artist from the arts board roster or any other independent, professional Minnesota artist. Artists are available in many disciplines, including theater, music, dance, opera, literary arts, film and video, folk arts, crafts and visual arts.

To obtain a grant application, planning guide and roster of artists, contact the arts board. For assistance with any part of application planning, contact program associate Elizabeth M. Childs, Minnesota State Arts Board, 432 Summit Avenue, Saint Paul, MN 55102, or call toll-free in Minnesota (800) 652-9747.

Goodridge And Newfolden Plan Preschool Clinics

Preschool screening clinics for Goodridge and Newfolden school districts have been scheduled for later this month, complying with the Minnesota law which requires each school district to offer a health and developmental screening at no cost before starting kindergarten.

This year's preschool screening will be offered to those children eligible for kindergarten in the fall of 1988 or 1989. Appointment letters were mailed to parents last week. Anyone who has a child who is eligible for kindergarten and has not received an appointment is asked to call Debbie Davidson at 874-8215. Those who have a child under the age of three and have concerns about the child's development should contact Dr. Mike Miller at 874-8215.

Screening for the Goodridge district will take place Monday, March 23, at Faith Lutheran church in Goodridge. Screening in Newfolden will take place at the Newfolden elementary school on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 24 and 25.

Participation in any part of this program is voluntary and cannot be required for school enrollment. Purpose of the screening program is to identify children who may have health or developmental problems. This early identification is very helpful in preventing health and learning problems from becoming more serious but it is not intended to be a substitute for health care from the family physician or other health care provider.

Disposal Of Elm Wood With Bark Needed By April 1

City of forester John W. Johnson reminds Thief River Falls residents that bark intact elm wood must be disposed of by April 1.

"Do our elms a favor," he said. "Don't let your firewood pile help spread Dutch elm disease. Bark intact elm wood is a breeding place for the elm bark beetles that carry the Dutch elm disease fungus to healthy trees. In the spring, adult beetles — up to 1,500 in a single fireplace log — emerge from diseased wood with the fungus clinging to their bodies. When the beetles fly to healthy elms to feed, they spread Dutch elm disease to previously uninfected trees."

Because of this danger to healty elms, the city enacted an ordinance effecting the storage of elm wood. Bark intact elm wood is permitted only between September 15 and April 1 (the dormant period for elm bark beetles). Proper disposal includes burning, debarking or removal to an approved disposal site.

Oak and elm wood is very similar in appearance and takes a trained eye to tell the difference. If you are not sure if there is elm wood in your firewood pile, call the city forester at 681-1835 for an inspection.

Wheat Research Council Election Slated March 17

Minnesota Wheat Research and Promotion council will be holding its annual election on Tuesday, March 17, at all Minnesota county extension offices (except Cook and Lake) and in 15 special polling places located around the state. All Minnesota wheat producers who share directly in the profits and risk of loss from their agricultural operation are eligible to vote.

Polls will open at 8:30 a.m. and voting will conclude by 3:30 p.m. Note the change in polling hours. Minnesota department of agriculture, which overseas the elections for all commodity councils, found a very low voter turnout between 3:30 and 4:30 and therefore decided to close the polls one hour earlier than in previous elections.

Six candidates have been nominated this year, for three open positions on the Minnesota Wheat council. All council terms are for three years.

In District 1 (which includes crop reporting districts 1, 2 and 3) incumbent Jerry Kruger of Warren and Warren Affeldt of Fosston will be included on the ballot.

In District 2 (which includes crop reporting districts 4, 5 and 6) incumbent Don Stensrud of Clarkfield will be opposed by Paul Aasness of Wendell.

In District 3 (which includes crop reporting districts 7, 8 and 9) incumbent Robert Starr of Redwood Falls will face Francis Engels of Minnesota.

In addition to the county extension offices, special polling places in this area will be set up at Corner Equipment in Blackduck and the Lions community center in Grygla.

The election will be conducted by the Minnesota department of agriculture, and any wheat producer desiring additional information regarding the election may call the department at 612 297 3760, or the wheat council office at its toll-free number, 1-800-242-6118.

REPORT

From The

MINNESOTA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Transferring $220 million in motor vehicle excise taxes from the state general fund to the state highway trust fund is a big issue in the Minnesota Legislature. Commissioner Len Levine, from the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT), told us in committee that our roads and highways are getting old. Based on current rate of construction, we're rebuilding a road only once every 135 years. The question is, as our roads age, can they age gracefully?

The motor vehicle excise taxes are badly needed by MN-DOT. Seven hundred and thirty-five miles of trunk highway improvements are required annually. But, this year, the highway department will have funds to do only 415 miles. If $220 million in excise taxes had been transferred, they could have come closer to meeting the damand for highway work.

Rural legislators did argue for the transfer of funds a few years back, and won. In 1985, 25 per cent of the motor vehicle excise funds were transferred from the state general fund to the highway trust fund. An additional 25 per cent was to be transferred each biennium until 100 per cent of the funds belonged solely to our road system. Last session, the transfer was put on hold for 1986 and 1987 in order to cut taxes. Now, a number of us in the legislature are attempting to reverse this decision. While this money is being held up, our roads and highways continue to deteriorate.

The 12,100 miles of Minnesota trunk highways — only nine per cent of our total road miles — have to carry 57 per cent of the total travel in the state. Three hundred and fifty-six trunk highway bridges, over 20 feet in length, are deficient in load, width, condition, clearance, or a combination of these factors.

We've all seen numerous examples of bad road conditions in rural areas. Many highways are too narrow under railroad bridges and many spots have very narrow shoulders or steep curves. Shoulder and pavement deterioration is often caused by flooding lakes and ditches. Overall, 45 per cent of our highway system is rated in poor or only fair condition and 26 per cent was built more than half a century ago.

The importance of farm-to-market road conditions is increasing as we see larger and heavier trucks on our highways. It is estimated that the number of 10-ton vehicles will double in the next 20 years. Most of our highways were not designed for 10-ton vehicles, so deterioration will be accelerated.

We also have a serious highway problem in urban areas that affects all of us in the state. Urban traffic congestion wastes fuel as well as time. By the year 2005, it is estimated that the volume of semi-truck travel in the Twin Cities will double, and that the amount of wasted gas, nationally, will increase by 400 per cent.

The good news is, if a number of us in the legislature can convince state government to go ahead and continue the transfer of motor vehicle excise tax funds, MN-DOT will be able to do much more in reconstructing our roads. It won't solve all funding problems with the department because increased gas efficiency in cars has meant less motor fuel taxes per mile. But, it will help considerably.

With periodic facelifts, our road system can age gracefully.

Self Defense For Women Offered As BSU Workshop

A workshop on self defense techniques geared specifically for women will be held in Memorial hall at Bemidji state university March 13-14. The program, which runs from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday and continues at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, features instructors Mary Brandl and Duane Wolfe.

Brandl is a certified self defense instructor from Minneapolis who holds a second degree black belt in karate. Since 1980 she has worked full-time teaching self defense, karate, assertiveness and self awareness. Her particular specialty is teaching special techniques to women and vulnerable groups, such as the handicapped and elderly.

A Bemidji native, Wolfe is a fourth degree black belt and a certified karate instructor who has conducted numerous seminars and demonstrations during the past eight years.

The workshop will present information on the psychology and general scenario of an attack situation. Participants will learn how to recognize possible attacks. They will also be shown the role eye contact, body language, tone of voice and assertiveness play in averting potential trouble. The instructors will also present simple self-defense strategies to employ in case of an attack.

Pre-registration in the program is encouraged since space is limited to 30 people. Cost for the workshop, which is co-sponsored by the BSU women's resource center and the area sexual assault program, is $20.

More information and a registration form are available by contacting Kristine Cannon, Hobson Union, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601-2699 (218-755-3770) or Sue Parrott, P.O. Box 1472, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-751-9496).

CHART showing the 1986 Pennington county tax delinquency rates displayed on the front page of Monday's Times shows just how wrong things can go. Numerous adding and transposition errors were spotted too late to be changed. Once all of the errors were found and corrected we decided it would be easier to print the chart again rather than attempt to explain the corrections.

Rural Enterprise Workshop Slated At Alexandria

A rural enterprise alternative possibilities (REAP) workshop will be held at the AVTI in Alexandria on Saturday, March 21, to offer rural residents exposure to personal business experiences in non-traditional enterprises.

REAP has been developed to provide an opportunity for rural residents to explore potential new enterprises for additional or alternative income. Workshop participants will have the opportunity to: Experienced producers and specialists will share their knowledge of raising and marketing alternative crops or animals and discuss other small businesses. "Marketing" process will be discussed and information presented on available assistance sources.

Approximately 35 subjects will be offered covering a broad range of topics.

There is no single solution to the problems facing the agricultural industry today, but there are thousands of solutions for individuals to better themselves through their own personal initiative, according to Deborah Zak, Pennington County extension director. The "Adapt 100 Conference" held in Des Moines, Iowa last December where approximately 6,000 farmers came from across the country to learn about potentially adaptable business enterprises.

Larry Statler, an instructor at "Adapt 100" from Kirkwood community college, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, will deliver the keynote address titled "New Hope In Farming — New Economics of Freedom" at 9 a.m.

Workshop participants will be able to attend six 40-minute mini-sessions on their choice of subjects following the keynote address. Statler will also be giving mini-session presentations on two other topics titled "Inventory Your Farm's Options" and "Creatively Financing New Enterprises."

Curtis Stutzman, another instructor at "Adapt 100" and a staff member of Kirkwood community college, will be giving presentations on "Determining Markets" and "Sweat Equity (Labor Flow Budgeting)."

Other topics offered range from "U-Pick-Fruits-and-Vegetables" to "Producing Maple Syrup."

Pre-registration is strongly recommended as space is limited. Registration fee is $8 per person, which includes lunch. Pre-registration brochures will be available at local soil and water conservation district office and extension office.

FRESHWATER FOCUS

Information And Opinion From The Freshwater Foundation

What is a lake?

A body of water, you say?

Of course you're right, but it's also much more.

A lake is an ecosystem, which is defined as a "complex and interrelated community of plants, animals, micro-organisms and the physical and chemical environment in which they live." And if that's not complicated enough, a lake ecosystem also includes the lake's watershed, which is the surrounding land area that drains into that particular lake.

Yes, a lake is a body of water — but it's a pretty complicated body of water.

The natural process by which lakes form, evolve and disappear takes thousands of years — but human activities can change these lakes in less than a single generation. If one part of the ecosystem is disturbed, it affects other parts. A road, a housing development, a drainage project, a forest fire or other such changes in the watershed can alter the delicate balance of a lake's ecosystem.

Do you have a favorite lake? Perhaps you just think of it as being yours. Either way, you may be wondering whether you should be "taking care of" your lake. If so, what's involved in such a process? What can you do for your lake? And when should you do nothing?

If you thought your lake was "just" a body of water, or if you've begun to wonder what your role might be in helping protect your lake, a new publication is available for you. "A Citizen's Guide to Lake Protection" is a 16-page booklet which answers the following questions:

What is a lake? How do lakes work? What can go wrong in lakes? What can you do to take care of your lake? What can an individual do? How does one practice lake stewardship? What is lake management? What's involved in lake restoration? What are the benefits of lake protection?

The booklet also includes a glossary and an appendix of resources for additional information and assistance.

For a copy of "A Citizen's Guide to Lake Protection," send $2 to the Freshwater Foundation, 2500 Shadywood Road, Box 90, Navarre, MN 55392, or mention that you read about the booklet in this newspaper and we'll send you a free copy.

We are responsible for protecting and preserving our lakes — not only for ourselves, but for those who follow us as well.

CONSERVATION CONCERNS were discussed by Danny Johnson (right) of Goodridge, a member of the Pennington county soil and water conservation district board, and Rep. Wally Sparby recently at a meeting in St. Paul. Representatives of soil and water conservation districts around the state met with legislators to discuss the future of several conservation programs.

Prowlers Finish Schedule With 41-40 Win Over Ponies

Two years ago Warren brought an undefeated boys high school basketball team to Thief River Falls to close out the 1984-85 regular season schedule and went home 19-1 after losing to the Prowlers 45-43. Tuesday the Ponies brought a once-beaten team to Thief River Falls and went home 18-2 when the Prowlers pulled another upset, this time 41-40.

Throw in a 52-51 overtime victory a year ago at Warren, and the Prowlers have a streak of three consecutive narrow season-ending wins over the perennially-strong Ponies.

Thief River Falls will take a 12-8 record into North Sub-Region 8AA tournament play next week thanks to a late-game comeback that included a tie-breaking shot from the corner by Chris Nelson with 29 seconds to play, plus a Nelson free throw with eight seconds to go for a 41-38 cushion that allowed the Prowlers to surrender Tom Novak's uncontested bucket at the buzzer for the one-point finish.

It was a hotly-contested contest, acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. Defensive play on both sides kept scoring to a minimum. In fact, the Prowlers went scoreless the first 6:09 of the fourth quarter in falling behind 38-35.

That changed when Todd Solsten made the first shot on a bonus free throw opportunity with 1:51 to play, and Thief River Falls teammate Brian Stark was fouled as he rebounded Solsten's second shot. Stark dropped in both of his shots on the 1-and-1 to tie the game 38-all with 1:48 left.

A Thief River Falls rebound off the defensive boards was followed by a time-out call for the Prowlers to plot their final-minute strategy. They worked the ball around until some bumping underneath the basket resulted in a Thief River Falls inbounds play with 31 seconds remaining. The ball went to Nelson, who turned and fired from the corner for the go-ahead basket.

"We weren't stalling for the last shot at the end," pointed out Hunt. "We were just looking for the first available good shot. And Chris got it."

Warren still had a chance to tie it, but Chris Kujava missed from 18 feet out, and Nelson was fouled by Troy Knoll on the rebound, resulting in his game-clinching free throw with just eight seconds to go.

Nelson finished with a game-high 13 points even though he faced Warren defensive pressure all night. Stark contributed 12 points, as did the Ponies' Bill Otto and Garrett Molacek.

Otto, the talented 6-6 Warren center, spent the second quarter on the bench with foul trouble. It was his rebound basket at the buzzer that provided the Ponies with a 10-9 lead at the end of the first quarter, but just 26 seconds into the second quarter he picked up his third personal foul and left the game.

The next two minutes weren't that bad for Warren, but a 13-13 tie disappeared in the face of a 14-4 quarter-ending Thief River Falls scoring run that produced a 27-17 halftime cushion for the Prowlers.

It was still a 10-point difference when Chris Bjorgaard connected from 15 feet for a 29-19 spread with 5:11 remaining in the third quarter.

But Warren's aggressive defensive play then took over as the Ponies cut the Prowlers' lead to 35-31 by the end of the quarter, then kept Thief River Falls off the scoreboard while starting the fourth quarter with a string of seven straight points for the 38-35 lead following a 12-foot jumper taken on the run by Novak with 2:41 remaining.

"We knew at the half Warren would come at us hard defensively in the second half," noted Hunt. "And they did. They completely dominated us with their defense in the second half. But I thought we played extremely hard ourselves. The kids did a nice job. Our three-quarter press and our zone (defense) gave them problems."

Thief River Falls got off just 36 shots because of the tough Warren defense, hitting 14 of them (39 per cent). Warren was 19-for-47 (40 per cent). But the Prowlers were 13-for-17 at the free throw line, where the Ponies were 2-for-8. Thief River Falls had a small 25-22 edge in rebounds, and also topped the turnover figures, 13-10.

"It was intense," noted Hunt, "and intensity is a key ingredient to having a successful season."

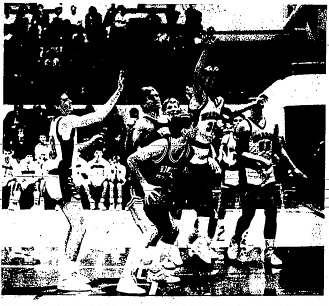
TRF — [illegible] 1, Chris Nelson 13, [illegible] 2, Todd Solsten 2, Chris Bjorgaard 6, Brian Stark 12.



BRIAN STARK got the ball on the inside and the Thief River Falls center drew immediate attention defensively from Warren's Jon Greer in the first half of Tuesday's high school basketball game played in front of a large Lincoln High School gymnasium crowd. Chris Nelson of the Prowlers, plus Garrett Molacek (left) and Bill Otto (right) of the Ponies were also close to the action. The Prowlers stopped the once-beaten Ponies 41-40.

Section 8 Hockey Tournament Semifinal Game . . .

Warriors Rout Prowlers 11-1

Those who wondered if Thief River Falls could repeat its quarterfinal magic that produced a 4-3 decision-overtime upset win over No. 4-seeded Bemidji Friday didn't have to wait long for an answer Monday as No. 1-seeded Warroad out-shot the Prowlers 16-1 in the first period for a quick 5-0 lead that wound up as a one-sided 11-1 Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinal win at the East Grand Forks Civic Center Arena.

"After our win Friday, this is a tough way to go out," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand after rout was completed. "We certainly experienced the two extremes of athletic competition. If extra-curricular activities is a learning experience — and we certainly think they are — then we received a lesson tonight."

Thief River Falls lost a pair of regular-season games to Warroad, but the Prowlers fell by just a 4-3 margin in the first meeting and stayed within sight of the highly-regarded Warriors when they met in the 1986-87 regular season finale before losing 6-2. Those scores, plus the outstanding play of goalie Shayne Anderson, who had 62 saves against Bemidji Friday, gave the No. 5-seeded Prowlers reason to hope they could stay with the heavily-favored Warroad team.

But that first period assault dashed those dreams.

It started at 5:02 when the puck popped into the slot from the side of the net, and Jason Pomplun quickly converted the opportunity into a 1-0 lead.

Shane McFarlane made it 2-0 at 6:50. He was pulled down by Thief River Falls defenseman Dave Johnson as he rushed toward Anderson, but the penalty was waved off when the puck slipped through the goalie.

Thief River Falls had game-long problems clearing the Prowlers' defensive zone against the aggressive Warroad forecheckers, coughing up the puck at 9:25 when McFarlane was all alone in front for a point-blank shot and a 3-0 cushion.

Then came a string of four consecutive power play goals. Jerry Persson poked in a rebound at 11:38 for the first one, and Larry Olimb deflected in a David Marvin shot with two players sitting on Anderson's lap for the 5-0 lead at 12:29.

Just 27 seconds into a second period power play, Jared Baines whipped a shot from the slot over Anderson at 1:38, and another 27-second power play goal made it 7-0 at 3:19 when Greg Knox scored on a rebound.

A long, low slap shot by Marvin as he crossed the blue line gave the Warriors an 8-0 bulge at 4:33.

Third period went faster because of running time due to a six-goal-or-greater difference on the scoreboard, but there was still time for the lead to expand to 11-0 as Vince Huerd poked the puck through a crowd just 54 seconds into the period, then Joey Biondi and Olimb scored just 29 seconds apart late in the period. Biondi put it at 10-0 with a tip-on at 10:08, and Olimb caught the inside of the pipe with a rocket at 10:39.

Warroad goalie Chad Erickson, who lost a shutout bid in the final moments of Friday's 8-1 quarterfinal win over Brainerd, had another one slip away when Johnson scored on a power play rebound at 13:19.

Marvin, a senior defenseman, finished the game with five points (one goal, four assists). McFarlane, a senior center, and Olimb, a junior defenseman, both had two goals and an assist on the night. McFarlane, Olimb and Marvin were all named to the recently-announced All-Section 8 team.

"Warroad is a very talented team, and we didn't have one of our better performances," pointed out Grand. "The combination of those two is serious."

Senior wing Jeff Grand missed the game for the Prowlers because of illness.

Warroad will take a 21-1 record into Friday's Section 8 title game. Thief River Falls ended the year at 10-12-1.

Girls No. Sub-Region 8AA Basketball . . .

TRF, Bemidji Meet Thursday

Moorhead defeated Detroit Lakes 55-44 Tuesday in the opening game of the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament, setting the stage for Thursday's semifinal round.

Those 7:30 p.m. match-ups will have the No. 4-seeded Spuds at No. 1-seeded Fergus Falls, while No. 3-seeded Bemidji visits No. 2-seeded Thief River Falls.

Championship game will be played Saturday at the site of the highest-seeded semifinal winner.

Thief River Falls will take a 19-1 record into post-season play. The Prowlers won 19 straight games before dropping their final start to Fergus Falls 56-53 in front of a sold-out Lincoln High School gym crowd.

Included among those 19 wins are two victories over Bemidji. But neither one was easy, pointed out Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. The Prowlers watched a 12-point lead nearly disappear in a 45-40 home court win over the Lumberjacks Jan. 5, then had to rally from a 7-point deficit in the fourth quarter to produce a 43-35 win at Bemidji Feb. 3.

"We had two tough games with them," pointed out Schafer. "Bemidji plays really tough defense. They're not an offensive team, so if we can score some points, we'll be okay. But it's tough to score points against them."

South Sub-Region 8AA play got underway Monday when No. 4-seeded Alexandria beat No. 5-seeded St. Cloud Apollo 40-38.

Tuesday games included No. 2-seeded Brainerd vs. No. 7 St. Cloud Tech and No. 3-seeded Little Falls vs. No. 6 Sauk Rapids.

Thursday semifinals will feature No. 1-seeded Rocori vs. Alexandria and the Tech-Brainerd winner vs. the Sauk Rapids-Little Falls winner.

Finals will be played Saturday. All of the South Sub-Region 8AA games are being played at St. Cloud State University.

TRF Boys Carry Win Streak Into Playoffs

Mike Lundgren
Sports Editor

Closing the 1986-87 regular season with four straight wins, and four very good performances at that, should provide Thief River Falls with a shot of confidence and some momentum when the Prowlers open the North Sub-Region 8AA boys high school basketball tournament with a 7:30 p.m. game at Detroit Lakes Tuesday.

Thief River Falls started the season with a 6-1 record, but sagged to 8-8 before the current winning streak went into effect. During that span the Prowlers won big over East Grand Forks 72-50, Middle River 70-36 and Argyle 63-45 before surprising once-beaten Warren 41-40 Tuesday night to finish 12-8.

They go into post-season play as the last-place No. 5-seeded team. The Lakers are No. 4. The winner moves into the semifinal round on Thursday, March 3, to join Bemidji, Moorhead and Fergus Falls.

Detroit Lakes also started the year in strong fashion, including a 67-62 victory in Thief River Falls Jan. 6.

But the Lakers wound up with a nearly-identical record as the Prowlers at 11-8. Unlike Thief River Falls, though, Detroit Lakes finished on a down note by losing a 59-56 Friday night game to a Brainerd team that had won just two games all year. Brainerd, which was blown away by Moorhead 78-38 three days earlier, trailed Detroit Lakes 34-22 at halftime, but shut down the Lakers' 6-8 Paul Nickolauson in the second half. He scored 20 points in the first 16 minutes, but just eight in the second half against a suddenly-aggressive Brainerd defense. Detroit Lakes guard James Landsem, who has been selected to play in the annual Outstate vs. Metro all-star series later this month, scored 13 points. Those two figured heavily in the Lakers' win here earlier.

Puetz Earns Top Award

Michelle Puetz of Thief River Falls was honored over the weekend when the University of North Dakota freshman was named the North Central Conference Female Swimmer of the Year. Puetz had a hand in six UND records as the Sioux won their sixth straight NCC women's title at the Hyslop pool in Grand Forks.

UND men also won a conference crown for the second straight year.

Puetz will be among the UND swimmers competing in the NCAA Division II national meet March 11-14 at Long Beach, CA. She has qualified for the meet in the 100 and 200-yard backstroke events, and a member of the Sioux 200 and 400-yard medley relay teams.

Miscellaneous

• A Friday night Waroad-Crookston Section 8 hockey tournament championship game match-up at the East Grand Forks Civic Center Arena means Roseau, once the undisputed king of the area high school hockey scene, will be missing from the finals for the third straight year. That hasn't happened to the Rams since a similar three-year span in 1950-51-52.

Pahlen, Lorsung All-Staters

Northland Community College was the only school with two First Team selections when the 1986-87 Minnesota Community College Conference all-state women's basketball team was announced over the weekend.

The Pioneers' Jody Pahlen (Plummer) and Janelle Lorsung (Waubun) were named to the post-season honor squad, along with LeeAnn Langebeau, University of Minnesota-Crookston, Leigh Hoerner, Inver Hills, and Jill Waverly, Willmar.

Warren 46-41 JV Winner Over TRF

Warren defeated Thief River Falls 46-41 Tuesday in boys junior varsity high school basketball action.

It was just the third loss of the 1986-87 season for the Al Buhl-coached Thief River Falls team that finished at 14-3.

Warren jumped out to a 10-4 first quarter lead, had a 22-18 halftime edge and carried a 36-28 advantage into the fourth quarter. Thief River Falls pulled within two points with nine seconds to play, but lost the ball on a turnover, then sent Warren to the free throw line in a must-foul situation.

Todd Prickett scored 14 points for Thief River Falls, with Dean DuChamp netting 12 and Ryan Walseth 11.

Sports Briefs

AWA All-Star Wrestling will make an appearance in Red Lake Falls Wednesday, April 1, at 8 p.m. in the high school gym.

Main event will be a tag team match featuring Midnight Rockers Shawn Michaels and Marty Jannetty vs. Boris Zhukov and Sheik Adnan El Kaissey.

Four other bouts will include Jimmy "Superfly" Snuka vs. Playboy Buddy Rose; Curt Henning vs. Colonel De Beers; Earthquake Ferris vs. Larry Zbyszko; and Dave Peterson vs. Kevin Kelly.

Tickets will be priced at $9 for a ringside seat, $8 for adult general admission, and $5 for children's general admission. Tickets are available in Thief River Falls at the Ben Franklin store.

WARROAD WING Jason Pomplun reached for the puck, bouncing in front of Thief River Falls goalie Shayne Anderson and defenseman Dave Johnson, during the first period of Monday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinal game at the East Grand Forks Civic Center Arena. The Warriors didn't score on this play, but they did convert on a number of other opportunities in beating the Prowlers 11-1.

High School Swimming . . .

15 Prowlers In Section 8 Meet

Fifteen Thief River Falls swimmers and divers will compete in the 1987 Section 8 boys high school swim meet beginning Friday at the Hyslop pool on the University of North Dakota campus in Grand Forks.

Diving prelims start at 1 that afternoon. Swimming prelims begin at 6 that night. Saturday finals get underway at 1 p.m.

Thief River Falls entrants will include seniors Todd Carlson (200 freestyle, 500 freestyle), Greg Dosser (100 freestyle), Joe Drevlow (100 butterfly, 100 backstroke), Jared Ellingson (100 backstroke), Dave Novak (200 freestyle, 500 freestyle), and Rick Rosetta (100 butterfly, 100 freestyle); juniors Paul Glauque (200 I.M., 100 butterfly), Brian Joppru (50 freestyle); Keith Olson (200 I.M., 500 freestyle), Brian Schindler (100 breaststroke), and Shon Thompson (diving); sophomore Aaron Tofte (200 I.M., 100 freestyle); plus freshmen Trent Byrne (diving), Ed Krystosek (50 freestyle), and Aaron Marshall (100 backstroke).

There will also be Thief River Falls entries in both relay races, but head coach Jay Forney said the Prowlers' relay line-ups aren't set yet. Drevlow and Schindler will definitely be on the medley relay unit, while Carlson and Tofte are assured spots on the 400 freestyle squad, but the other two swimmers in both relays won't be decided later this week.

Top two finishers in each swimming event, along with the top five divers, will earn state meet berths.

Thief River Falls' best bets rest with Thompson in diving and Rosetta in the butterfly. They are both seeded second in their respective events. Thompson was a state meet qualifier last winter with a fourth place Section 8 finish. Chad Atkinson of Melrose ranks ahead of him going into the weekend meet. Rosetta has a 57.7 seed time, just behind Brainerd's Bill McCullough with a 56.5, but the meet always produces close finishes among the top six finalists.

The butterfly is the Prowlers' strongest event, pointed out Forney, with Glauque a No. 4 seed in the race. Glauque is also seeded third in the individual medley.

Thief River Falls enjoyed a successful 9-2 dual meet season this winter, losing only a pair of meets to Bemidji, the Section 8 favorite. The Prowlers, figure Forney, will probably fit into the middle of the 13-team field like they did a year ago with a seventh place finish.

"We were real competitive in dual meet when our depth made us three-deep in every event," explained Forney. "But with 13 teams, that pushes our depth way back into the pack."

Forney's goal is to see his swimmers turn in their best efforts of the year. Several should gain spots in the 7-through-12 consolation finals, and he's hoping for a handful of 1-through-6 championship finals qualifiers. A state meet berth or two would be a nice bonus, he noted.

1987 Section 8 Hockey . . .

Warroad, Crookston In Finals

Warroad and Crookston, the top two seeded teams, will meet Friday in the 1987 Section 8 high school hockey tournament finals at the East Grand Forks Civic Center Arena.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. The winner will advance into the Minnesota state high school hockey tournament next week at the St. Paul Civic Center.

Warroad smoked Thief River Falls 11-1 in a Monday semifinal mismatch, while Crookston edged Roseau 3-2 Tuesday.

The 19-3 Pirates will be making their first-ever appearance in the tournament finals. The 21-1 Warriors will be a championship game participant for the first time since 1970 when they beat Bemidji 5-1 for the title. Warroad also won titles in 1948 and 1949, while losing 10 championship game decisions between 1947 and 1969.

Class A District Boys Start Play This Week

Boys high school basketball teams are becoming involved in post-season play in area Class A districts 29, 30, 31 and 32 this week.

Thursday marks the start of the District 32A tournament.

Games that night will be played at three sites. # Cards Take On Green Wave

Defending champion East Grand Forks awaits Plummer Thursday in the semifinals of the 1987 District 31A girls high school basketball tournament. The Cardinals and Green Wave will meet at 8:45 p.m. at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Plummer got by upset-minded East Grand Forks' 50-49 in Tuesday's quarterfinals to go 18-2 for the year.

It was a closer-than-anticipated finish, acknowledged Plummer coach Rick Koivisto. "We were kind of flat," he said, knowing the favored Cardinals were looking ahead to possible semifinal confrontation with the Green Wave.

Sacred Heart took an 11-8 first quarter lead, fell behind 24-22 at halftime, but went ahead again at the end of the third quarter 39-35.

When the Cardinal did climb on top with about three minutes left in the game, they went into a clock-eating delay game that led to a pair of Janelle Konickson free throws with one minute left in a 49-45 game, then clinched it when Renae Walter made the first try on a bonus free throw opportunity with 12 seconds remaining for a 50-47 edge that allowed them to surrender a last-second Sacred Heart bucket.

Konickson led all scorers with 18 points. Teammate Robin Brantl netted 14. Stephanie Rolandson led Sacred Heart with 16 points.

Plummer didn't get many shots, but the Cardinals made what they took with a 17-for-26 night from the field (77 per cent). They were 16-for-22 at the free throw line (73 per cent). Sacred Heart was 21-for-43 from the field (49 per cent) and 7-for-15 at the line (47 per cent). Sacred Heart finished with a big 38-18 rebound advantage. The Eagles also had more turnovers, 19-17.

Hot-shooting Marshall County Central defeated Argyle 52-41 in the District 32A tournament semifinals Tuesday to gain a Friday night championship game berth against Roseau.

Marshall County Central was 6-for-10 from the field in the first quarter and 7-for-10 in the second quarter in taking a 26-19 halftime lead. The shooting cooled off in the second half, but the Nordics still took a 35-27 lead into the fourth quarter.

"I was really pleased with the effort," reported Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde.

Andrea Kragness enjoyed a 9-for-12 shooting night from the field for an 18-point outing, and Marshall County Central teammate Jodi Foss added 17. Heidi Kasprowicz led Argyle with 14 points.

For the game the Nordics were 21-for-42 from the field (50 per cent) and the Eagles were 19-for-51 (37 per cent). The winners had a tougher time at the free throw line where they were 10-for-21 (40 per cent). Argyle made three of four free throw attempts (75 per cent). # Plummer Ends With 14-5 Record

Plummer started slowly, but the Cardinals still came out a 74-50 winner at Oklee Tuesday in their final outing of the 1986-87 regular season boys high school basketball schedule.

Oklee had a 19-8 lead when the first quarter ended, but Plummer led 30-22 at halftime and opened up a 58-36 third quarter spread.

"We started pretty poor," acknowledged Plummer coach Jim Baron. "We didn't play very good man-to-man defense, and (Wade) Grinde came out with two quick fouls." But a switch to a press and zone defense in the second quarter quickly changed the momentum.

Shane Freyholtz of Plummer led all scorers with 20 points. John Fisher had 13, Grinde 11 and Dan Wichterman had his first double-figure scoring effort of the year for the Cardinals with 10. Jeff Nelson led Oklee with 13 points. Chris Solien scored 10.

Plummer was 24-for-47 from the field (51 per cent) and a busy 26-for-35 at the free throw line (74 per cent). Oklee was 21-for-39 from the field (52 per cent) and 8-for-14 at the line (57 per cent). The Cardinals had a 28-27 rebound edge and the Bobcats had more turnovers, 12-8.

The Cardinals' size advantage played a big role in the Plummer march to the free throw line, explained Baron as his team took the ball inside and drew a batch of fouls.

Plummer finished the schedule at 14-5.

Improvements At Bridgeman Plant Are Now Underway

Renovations at the Bridgeman Creamery milk bottling facility in Thief River Falls are now into full swing, according to division production manager Dennis Gaalswyk.

The $1.7 million project, approved in August of last year, will upgrade the existing building, replace and upgrade some of the existing processing equipment and expand the cooler.

Improvements begun so far on the Bridgeman plant include upgrading of the electrical system, addition of a glycol system for cooling product, and the construction of a second story on the existing building. Offices will be moved into the new upstairs location to allow for production and cooler expansion on the ground floor.

Ram Building Systems Incorporated of Thief River Falls has been contracted to build the second floor addition.

Bridgeman, a division of Land O'Lakes, has been a member of the Thief River Falls community since the 1940's, receiving and packaging fluid milk from producers in northwestern Minnesota. The plant currently employs 75 people.

"The renovation at the Thief River Falls plant really demonstrates Land O' Lakes' commitment to its producer members in this area," Gaalswyk said. "Upgrading of the facility and equipment will enable Bridgeman to continue to maintain quality in our products over the years ahead."

The renovation project is estimated to be complete by late 1988.

Thief River Falls THE TIMES

HABITAT IMPROVEMENT in the area of Ditch 27 in eastern Marshall county will be enhanced as a result of a project recently completed with funds provided by the Thief River Falls chapter of the Minnesota Deer Hunters association. Ralph McKeever of Middle River used his crawler tractor and dozer to create a 40-foot wide trail about a mile and a quarter in length, leading from a footbridge installed over Ditch 27 a year ago. The trail will be disked and seeded with a mixture of clover and grasses. Gordon Forester of the Minnesota department of natural resources in Thief River Falls, said the trail will be used as a firebreak for control of prescribed burning for habitat improvement in the area. Grouse, moose and other game and non-game species are expected to benefit from the project as well as deer. —Photos by Gordon Forester

Minnesota Among States To Store Low Level Waste

Midwest interstate low-level radioactive waste commission recently narrowed the field of possible states to host the first low-level radioactive waste disposal facility in the region to four of the seven states in the compact. The four states that remain under consideration, in alphabetical order, are Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Indiana, Iowa and Missouri have been eliminated from the selection process, although they may still volunteer to host the facility before the final selection of a host state in early June.

The commission designated the four possible host states based on their potential to generate the most low-level radioactive waste of the seven states, a calculation which considered both the volume of the waste and its radioactivity. Minnesota low-level radioactive waste generators are projected to produce about 12 per cent of the region's total volume and activity, weighted equally, by the late 1980s, which is the third highest per cent in the region. Michigan and Ohio are projected to generate 39 and 24 respectively.

The commission must next notify the governors of the designated states, at which time a 90-day period begins during which the potential host states may withdraw from the Midwest interstate low-level radioactive waste compact. The commission will select a final host state after the end of the 90-day withdraw period, if no state has volunteered in the meantime.

Minnesota legislature is expected to consider the issue during its current session. The legislature can choose to withdraw Minnesota from the compact; however, that action would result in Minnesota's having to site and maintain its own facility, with consequential high capital and disposal costs and a possible inability to exclude out-of-state wastes. In addition, the state would lose the financial benefits resulting from compact membership and possibly would be unable to meet federally mandated milestones. Other legislative action may be to delegate the siting authority in the state.

The commission has developed a $2 million benefits and compensation package to encourage states and communities to consider volunteering to host a low-level radioactive waste disposal facility. A number of Minnesota communities have requested information on the benefits package, although it is unknown whether any communities are interested in having the state volunteer to host a facility. An interested community within the state could influence the legislature's decisions.

Low-level radioactive wastes are generated in a variety of ways. In Minnesota, approximately one-quarter of the wastes come from industries, hospitals, universities and research institutions. The rest of the waste volumes in Minnesota come from nuclear power plants in the form of filters, resins, protective clothing, tools and internal reactor components. Spent uranium fuel is not included, as it is a high-level radioactive waste.

These low-level radioactive wastes are currently sent to disposal facilities in either South Carolina, Nevade or Washington. However, federal legislation has set specific deadlines for development of new disposal facilities and assigned responsibility for low-level radioactive waste to the states, authorizing regional compacts for that purpose. Minnesota joined the Midwest interstate low-level radioactive waste compact in 1983, by action of the state legislature. The executive director of the Minnesota Pollution Control agency, Tom Kalitowski, is Minnesota's representative on the Midwest compact commission.

Local NFO Members Hold Annual Banquet In TRF Recently

Annual awards were presented at the National Farmer's Organization banquet last Tuesday at Lon's restaurant in Thief River Falls. Lee Gayler, Mankato, gave a presentation on the trends in industry and collective bargaining.

Despite the dairy herd buyout, prices have continued to drop in the dairy market, Gayler said. One interesting note about the decline in prices and production, he said, was that consumer prices have remained stable or increased. He said a larger margin between what the farmer gets for his product and what the consumer pays is higher now than anytime in history. The consumer has not been benefiting from the dairy herd buyout or other programs as anticipated.

Last year the NFO saw a 30 per cent growth in participation in NFO in the upper Northwest region. NFO looks for continued growth, greater volume and better prices.

Gayler said supply side management programs are getting a fresh look in Washington. That type of program is also being talked about in Canada. Gayler said however, that indications from the White House are that the President would veto any such plan.

More consolidation of processing operations is taking place in the market, Gayler said. Gayler noted recent consolidation of processing operations by Land O'Lakes. He believes many more such consolidations will be taking place.

During the annual banquet and awards ceremony, members of the local NFO chapter elected Arden Lundeen and Bill Peterson as their delegate and alternate delegate.

Quality inspection awards were presented during the banquet. Outstanding quality awards were presented to: Andy Peterson, Darrow Lundeen, Jeff Matson, Orlan Stolaas, Warren Gast, Joel Stolaas, Edward Stucy.

Superior quality awards were presented to: Merle Lundeen, William Peterson, Len-Stan Farms, Arden Lundeen, Dale Anderson, Patrick Wichterman and Perry Lundeen.

100 club and IMS quality awards were presented to: Darrow Lundeen, Orlan Stolaas, Arden Lundeen, Joel Stolaas, Edward Stucy, Duane Knott, Lorenz Nelson, and Harold Frenzel.

Annual Commodity Council Elections Held On March 17

Nursing And Health Care Workshop Is Set For April 8

"Nursing and Health Care: A View to the Future", co-sponsored by the Red River Valley District Nurses association and the Medical Center Rehabilitation hospital of Grand Forks, will be held April 8, 1987 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. at the Parkwood place auditorium in Grand Forks, ND. Its focus is for nurses and health care administrators who practice in acute and long term institutions, community and rural settings.

Speakers will be Stan Williams, who holds a master's degree in health administration and is currently a doctoral candidate at the University of Minnesota in health systems, and Mary Jane Madden, RN, PhD. who is a consultant in organizational effectiveness and the author of publications on communication, leadership, and career mobility.

Fees will be $40 for members of the American Nurses association and $50 for non-members. Student rates are available.

Gross Farm Income Down

Despite a six per cent decline in farm production expenses, Minnesota's total net farm income dropped 14 per cent from 1984 to 1985.

Total gross farm income for 1985 dropped seven per cent to $7.31 billion. When production expenses of $6.15 billion were subtracted, state farmers were left with a net income of $1.16 billion.

This averages out to a net of $12,098 per farm, down nine per cent from 1984. The average did not drop as great as the aggregate total because the total is spread over fewer farms. (Minnesota lost 5,000 farms from 1984 to 1985.)

Minnesota farmers saw expenses for some major items drop from 1984 to 1985, notably real and non-real estate interest costs, fuel, repairs, livestock and business taxes. However, expenses for fertilizer, feed, pesticides and hired labor were higher.

Dairy continues as Minnesota's leader in cash receipts with $1.29 billion in 1985. This accounts for 20 per cent of total cash receipts of $6.47 billion for 1985. Total cash receipts were up six per cent due mostly to an increase in crop supplies.

Receipts for corn rose 54 per cent to $1.07 billion as supplies grew larger. The season average corn price, however, fell 15 cents to $2.30 per bushel. Likewise, wheat receipts posted a 55 per cent jump to $478 million with a return to larger supplies; but the season average price of $3.27 per bushel was down 14 cents from 1984.

Total livestock receipts were just slightly above 1984, cattle and calves and turkeys were the major "gainers" in receipts while eggs posted a 33 per cent decline.

Data in the Minnesota agricultural statistics service report is from accounting methods for farm income developed by USDA's economic research service. The current series is not directly comparable with earlier years.

Catholic Nun Seeks Aid For Nicaragua

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Sister Margarita Navarro stated that she is simply working with the poor in Nicaragua so that they might obtain dignity and rights to live a humane life.

But her pleas to stop sending aid to the Contras and to end trade barriers set up by the United States government, have incited many in attendance of her speeches during her month-long tour of the United States to try to debate the issue with her.

Monday Sister Navarro carried the same message to an audience at the Northland community theatre in Thief River Falls. Again her message, as an emissary from the people in Nicaragua, was a request to extend a helping hand to people struggling for dignity and freedom.

When Sister Navarro, who grew up in Cincinatti, OH, goes to Washington, D.C., this week, she will be loggying for aid and support and an end to aid to the Contras. Sister Navarro said she is not here to debate about Communisim, but is here to speak of tragedy from personal experience.

Sister Navarro said she has spent 24 years in Central America. She has spent four years in Nicaragua and discovered her real mission to bring dignity to a people long since treated as objects by its government and rich. She began her mission in 1963 when the church asked for religious women to save Nicaragua from Communisim. That mission turned against her and her companions when they were later expelled from the country and labelled communists.

Sister Navarro would rather not speak of the topic at all. It confuses her mission to bring dignity and freedom to the people. She also said that whenever the subject was brought up it undoubtedly would stir emotional responses against it. She said she had no idea people had such fears about communisim.

During her years among the people of Central America she has seen violations against human rights by the previous government and the Sandinistas who now control the government. But now at least the people have a chance to obtain dignity and freedom, she said.

The violent history of Nicaragua includes invasions by United State marines on four occasions and now they seem poised on the Honduras border preparing for another invasion, she said.

The United States supported the Samoza regime, which had

Snowmobile Trails Created

Goodridge snowmobile club members are enthusiastic about 100 miles of well-groomed and marked trails provided courtesy of grant-in-aid money from the Minnesota department of natural resources.

Since the trails were created, many groups have used the trails. The well-groomed and marked trails pass through beautiful areas of the countryside. Trails lead out from Fourtown to Waskish, Baudette, Warroad and Bemis Hill.

About two weeks ago about 20 Goodridge snowmobile club members hauled their snowmobiles to Fourtown and rode the trails to Baudette. The trails are seeing a fair share of use since they were completed. On February 20 about 220 snowmobilers plus support groups participated in the "Bemidji to Baudette 400 mile Expedition Ride."

The snowmobilers left Bemidji early in the morning, stopped at Waskish for gas and started arriving in Fourtown at 11:15 a.m. The ride involved about 220 snowmobiles, plus the support groups, busses, and trailers for broken-down sleds. There were snowmobilers from the surrounding area plus Minneapolis, Chicago, Il., Wisconsin, and even Arizona.

During the ride, Fourtown-Grygla Sportsmen club members were on hand to help with the gas, mixing of gas and oil and other needs. Homemade soup and barbecues were available for a quick serving so they could be on their way to Baudette, which was another 75 miles away. Once again the groomed trails were praised and the quick and friendly service at the Fourtown store appreciated.

The snowmobile wilderness trails are open to anyone. Fourtown-Grygla Sportsmen club members invite the public to try their beautiful groomed wilderness trails. Maps of the trails are available at the Fourtown store.

GRYGLA-FOURTOWN Snowmobile club members have organized trail rides on new trails created with grant-in-aid money from the Minnesota department of natural resources. The trails, which pass through beautiful areas of the countryside, are seeing a fair amount of use. About two weeks ago about 220 snowmobilers plus support groups participated in the "Bemidji to Baudette 400 mile Expedition Ride." Snowmobilers are getting ready to complete that trip in the top picture and a groomer is going over the trails in the bottom picture.

THE CHURCH: A Place To Feel

The old man had been deaf most of his life. But every Sunday found him in church, sitting on the same pew, attempting to go through the motions of worship in harmony with the other worshipers. Yet, his every act of worship was a strain carried out in his world of silence.

A close friend wrote on a piece of paper and handed it to the old man. He read, "Why do you go to church? You can't hear a word that is said."

Calling on his broken and faltering English remembered from his hearing days, he said, "To let people know whose side I'm on!"

He continued, "At worship in church I may not hear much, but I FEEL MUCH. I feel what's happening around me; the music's rhythm touches me; the prayers hold me close; the smiles on people's faces during the sermon and the intensity I sense from them, give me a feeling of God's presence."

Worshiping in church gives a feeling that no other expression of God's presence approaches. No wonder the writer of Hebrews instructed, "Forsake not the assemblying of ourselves together." (Hebrews 10:25) numerous human rights violations. Their control of the government dehumanized the people of Nicaragua, according to Sister Navarro.

Catholic Nun Seeks Aid For Nicaragua

Sister Navarro believes the earthquake of 1972 was an important contributing factor to the change in government in Nicargua as was the killing of ABC Newsman Bill Stuart, which created an awareness of the problem throughout the world.

In 1972 an earthquake destroyed Managua, but when help flowed into the government, Samoza kept it himself. When he left the country in July of 1979, he took everything with him, leaving $3 million in banks to the entire country of Nicaragua, said Sister Navarro.

The favoring the Samoza government, including many members of the national guard, left for the northern borders of Nicaragua. They hide just inside the border of Honduras, Sister Navarro said. They are called the Contras or contra-revolutionairies. President Reagan calls them freedom fighters, but the people of Nicaragua know them as murderers, she said.

A sign she carries with her and that was posted during the meeting states, "U.S. aid to the contras has brought to the people of Nicaragua... death, destruction, orphans, poverty and terror."

Question from the audience raised the issue of Communisim almost immediately, however, Sister Navarro stressed what is important is the dignity of the people. She further explained that 60 per cent of the economy is in the hands of the private sector and there are more churches in the country now than ever before. She said the basic problem is one of the "haves and the have nots." It is not an issue of communism vs. democracy or capitalism. However, the government will no longer allow its citizens to be used as cheap labor and no longer let natural resources leave the country to the benefit of the rich and powerful, Sister Navarro said.

Sister Navarro said that before the government got help from Cuba and Russia they asked for assistance from the United States and were turned down. She said when the President of Nicaragua went to Russia, he went as a leader of a sovereign country. They gave Nicaragua help when they needed it. She said in her experience she has not seen or found any atrocities committed by so called communists from Cuba or Russia.

Despite her assurances, persistent questions were raised from the audience about communisim in Central America, control of the education system in Nicaragua and, shipments of Russian-made arms to Nicaragua.

When the discussion ended, Sister Navarro again asked for aid to the people of Nicaragua.

The Area Ag Information Center in Thief River Falls sponsored Sister Navarro's visit to Thief River Falls. Willard Brunelle said farmers in this area face a similar problem. When we get right down to it, he said, what we are really talking about is Justice. What we want is a fair price for our product, but there isn't a market for our grain, he said. Nicaragua and other countries would want our grain, but its the same issue over and over again — arms vs. food. Unfortunately there isn't any money in food, he said.

STAYING IN TOUCH

Arlan Stangeland

Congressman Arlan Stangeland (R-MN) has introduced legislation which would allow farmers who bid wheat and corn acreage into the 1987 conservation reserve program to receive a bonus payment.

The conservation reserve program offers producers help in retiring highly erodible cropland. In this program the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) shares up to half of the cost of establishing permanent grasses, legumes, trees, windbreaks, or wildlife plantings in highly erodible cropland. Under 10-year contracts, the ASCS makes annual rental payments to farmers as long as the terms and the conditions of the contract are met.

Recently, the department of agriculture announced that only those producers who bid corn acreage into the 1987 CRP during the next sign-up are eligible for a bonus. This one-time, on-year bonus is to be paid in the form of an increased annual rental payment. The bonus payment will be equal to $2 times the farm program payment yield for corn times the number of acres of corn base designated for enrollment in the CRP. It will be payable in the form of generic commodity certificates when the 1987 conservation reserve program contract is accepted. Sign-up begins February 9th.

Stangeland said, "Many Minnesota corn producers have signed contracts for the 1987 CRP in 1986 and are thereby ineligible for the bonus payment. Also, with the payment being limited to corn, wheat producers are becoming concerned about the need for equal treatment. My legislation will bring fairness to those farmers who signed corn acreage into the 1987 CRP in 1986 and all wheat producers who are not eligible for a bonus payment at the present time."

75 Years For Girl Scouts

It was 75 years ago, in 1912, when Juliette Gordon Low began the first Girl scout troop in Savannah, GA. In doing so she initiated an informal education program of girls working in partnership with adults that has crossed all cultural groups in the United States and influenced the lives of 52-million-girls-and-adults.

Girl Scout Week, March 8-14, will observe this 75th anniversary. Today's three million Girl scouts have a rich tradition to celebrate. As members of the largest voluntary organization for girls in the world, Girl scouts are an important asset to the community and the future. The contributions they have made to the Thief River Falls area are many and they have learned and practiced good citizenship.

Girl scout programs are only as good as the leaders who initiate and implement them. While we join in wishing a happy anniversary to the program, we are mindful of the untold hours of volunteer service provided by the leaders and workers who have made the experiences possible and meaningful for the girls involved.

Girl scouts are committed to being of service now and in the future. Their training in those areas is the result of dedicated people willing to give of their personal time to make life a little bit better for others. Girl scouts are taught to realize that no matter how automated our society may become, small personal services are needed by people everywhere.

By their example of service and concern for others, Girl scouts and their leaders have shared themselves and their skills with our community in the hope of creating a better future for all. You have established yourselves as having a strong tradition and as being good role models or responsible citizenship, Girl scouts. Enjoy your anniversary, and congratulations.

Where USDA Dollars Go

Collective public fingers are pointed at American farmers when it is announced that the U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) budget totals many billions of dollars. The 1985 farm bill, for instance, is now expected to cost about $70 billion ($70,000,000,000) over the three fiscal years of 1986-1988.

While it cannot be denied that payments to farmers through various farm programs are substantial, it must be noted that only 40 per cent of the current $53.14 billion budget is for commodity programs. One out of every three dollars of USDA's budget is for food and consumer services. Small community and rural development receives about 14 cents on the USDA budget dollar.

A break-down of the fiscal 1987 budget of $53.14 billion has been prepared by the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics service and made public through the Minnesota Women for Agriculture publication "Aware". This is the way it is divided:

Science and Education (Agricultural Research service, cooperative state research service, extension and the national agricultural library), $1.18 billion;

Commodity Programs (Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service, Commodity Credit corporation, etc.), $21.63 billion;

International Affairs (Office of International Cooperation and Development, Public Law 480), $1.10 billion;

Natural Resources and Environment (Soil Conservation service and Forest service), $2.9 billion;

Small Community and Rural Development (Farmers Home administration, Federal Crop Insurance corporation, Rural Electrification administration), $7.37 billion;

Food and Consumer Services (Food and Nutrition service, Section 32, Human Nutrition Information service), $19.21 billion;

Marketing and Inspection Services (All USDA inspection service, agricultural cooperative service, agricultural marketing service, office of transportation, packers and stockyards administration), $824 million;

Economics (Economic Research service, National Agricultural Statistics service and World Agricultural Outlook board), $106 million;

Administration (Secretary of Agriculture, administration, budget and program analysis, offices of governmental and public affairs, inspector general and general counsel), $174 million.

Offsetting receipts of the department under its various programs are $1.23 billion, but are included in the $53.14 billion budget total.

Populism Worse Than Ignorance

Following commentary on the U.S. Constitution was written by Edwin M. Yoder Jr. in the Washington Post:

Pardon me, please, for not reacting with sufficient horror to the news from the winter conclave of the American Bar Association.

To quote one account, "Americans are woefully ill-informed about the content and meaning of the Constitution." A Hearst poll proves it.

According to the poll, nearly 60 per cent of us don't know that the first 10 amendments are the Bill of Rights. Sixty-four per cent think the Constitution establishes English as the official tongue. Sixty-one per cent think we need another constitutional convention.

This may be useful ammunition for the Constitutional Bicentennial Commission, which is toying with the idea of inserting a copy of the Constitution into every Wheaties box.

But it is otherwise as daunting — or surprising — as a poll showing that 60 per cent of us fly without understanding what goes on in a fan-jet engine, or eat three meals a day without the faintest grasp of farming.

Though often used to berate us, such figures are approximately as relevant to the quality of government as the percentage of Americans who vote in presidential elections: another recurrent source of pointless anxiety.

A certain puritanical view holds that those who choose to be ignorant of the mechanics of life do not deserve its benefits. Stretch the theory far enough, and no one ignorant of the role of nitrogen in the soil would be allowed to eat; and those who declined to bone up on aircraft engines would be permanently grounded.

Happily, a more charitable operating principle prevails: Universal constitutional literacy, desirable as it may be in theory, is not only inessential but unobtainable.

Constitutions, like highly complex pieces of machinery, are made and maintained by the few for the benefit of the many. It is only the fetish of pure democratic theory in the state 20th century that makes the admission painful or embarrassing.

Like most successful plans of government, the Constitution of 1787 was the handiwork of an oligarchy. Many of its greatest merits may be traced to that fact. The document was framed 200 years ago on questionable "popular" authority. Its makers claimed to be revising the old constitution, not scrapping it. They performed the job, these 55 men, with a far clearer notion of the nation's need than mandate from the constituencies they represented. They worked in the name of "the people of the United States," but were largely indifferent to mass opinion. The most revealing record of their procedures, James Madison's notes, remained sequestered for half a century.

The ratification process was similarly restricted. A few hundred delegates to state ratifying conventions threshed out the issues without bothering to check opinion polls. Today these gatherings would no doubt be denounced as "elitist."

Former Chief Justice Warren Burger considers it vital to make a popular occasion of the bicentennial and left the Supreme Court to pursue that task. More power to him if he can nudge the boundaries of constitutional literacy beyond their natural limits.

Whether or not Burger's project bears fruit, there is little doubt that we shall be much bullied this year — belabored as ignorant, frivolous, undeserving people who can't tell a search warrant from a letter of marque and reprisal and think the president can hire and fire Supreme Court justices at will.

There was, admittedly, one disturbing finding in the Hearst poll: Three quarters of the 1,001 pollees think "adequate health care" should be a constitutional entitlement. No one can reasonably oppose "adequate health care," but to advocate its inclusion as a constitutional "right" shows a disturbing misunderstanding of the function of constitutions. It is a warning symptom, not the first, that constitutional populism is a far worse menace than ignorance.

Constitutional populism is the desire to tailor constitutions to meet every human want and craving. It has inflated dozens of constitutions in recent years with grandiose entitlements. They are a primary cause of constitutional failure.

Constitutions work when they have no redundant moving parts. Their job is to power the social flight. The amenities of the cabin, such as universal health care, should be left to legislation.

Borrowed Nonsense

When the young lady went away to college, she left her plants and pet goldfish in the care of her mother, who was not known for her attention to things. When she called home a few weeks later, she learned the goldfish had died. During the next phone call she was informed the plants were also dead. When the third call came, the daughter asked timidly, "How's Dad?"

Tidbits From

by Sharon LaCoursiere

Excerpts from the Thursday, March 4, 1937 Times, compiled by Sharon LaCoursiere.

— Big news in today's Times is the formal acceptance by the city of the new winter sports arena from the Works Progress Administration. Mayor W.W. Prichard accepted a bronze plaque sumbolizing the transfer from regional WPA engineer Pines of Chicago, district WPA director Kovarik of Detroit Lakes and deputy state WPA administrator Kudish of St. Paul at a formal program at the arena Saturday evening.

— Speakers pointed out the value of the recently completed project in furnishing work for the unemployed men of this community and in supplying the city with a center for winter sports activities.

— The Times said that the ice rink has not only been the scene of a series of highly exciting hockey games participated in by the Thief River Falls entry in the States-Dominion league, but young and old skaters of the community have made steady use of the facilities, demonstrating that the arena fills a genuine local need.

— And the new arena was utilized immediately for the first annual ice show in TRF. A near-capacity audience enjoyed two hours of entertainment provided by Winnipeg and Grand Forks skaters.

— A Times editorial said that the show was a big success, and voiced hope that the presentation would influence local skaters to greater application so that the city would develop "presentable talent of our own."

— Those electric light plant strikers in Minneapolis couldn't expect much support from the public in that strike-loving city.

— Folks over in England are having quite an argument over providing the Duke of Windsor with a suitable income. Why not let him make an exhibition tour of the United States? Then he'd be fixed for life.

— The average young fellow these days is looking for a doll that won't cry "Mama" when squeezed.

— If sit-down strikes are to be a regular feature of our national life, the Crookston Times figures overalls should be built with double seats.

— After all, it's probably better to have the roads blocked with snow than to have them covered with 10 or 15 feet of water as in the flood region.

— A delegation of Minnesota Democrats last week assured the President that the people of Minnesota are solidly behind his supreme court program. A long way behind.

— The governor has ordered a five-day, 32 and one-half hour week for state employees under his jurisdiction. They no doubt will still be able to attend to their onerous duties.

— Jim Farley's post office department showed another deficit last year. He must have spent too much money engraving new varieties of stamps.

— Dr. Townsend has been convicted of contempt of the United States house of representatives. The doctor need not feel lonesome.

— In the old days folks used to stand up for their rights, while now they sit down for them.

— Well, let's get what comfort we can from the fact that March came in like a lamb.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Have you heard about the Great Giveaway?

Two dangerous bills may come before Congress at any time. Bill No. 1 would give to Russia Wrangell and other strategic islands off the coast of Alaska. You know how close Alaska is to Russia. Wouldn't it be convenient for those communists to have them so they could put up a naval base, missiles and other armaments?

We know that the communists are trying so hard to encircle our country. They already have Cuba, you know, right near Florida's southern shore. Now I am well aware of the fact that we have important needs at home such as those of the poor and the elderly. I'm sure you are, too. So therefore, I too, regret that we must spend so much for armaments. However, that's the only thing Russia seems to respect; namely, our strong defenses. I look at it this way: if we lose our precious freedom, what else is left?

There are several ways you can help in this very critical matter. First, you can write to our congressmen, telling them how much you fear these bills. Second, you can contact your friends and ask them to act as quickly as possible. Third, you can write your own "Letter to the Editor" and express your opinion against these bills. And last, you can pray.

I will close with this challenging and thought-provoking quotation by Edmund Burke: "The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing."

Thanks for your help.

Sincerely,
Alice Roos

To The Editor:

It was sad . . . in a way. President Reagan, the political Wizard of Oz, used his State of the Union Speech to try to spin the old magic. He tried all the feats of smoke, mirrors and thunder to show the American people he was still the wizard. But reality had pulled back the curtain, exposing a once-popular president who had nothing left but worn out platitudes.

It appeared as if he didn't know that the voters rebuffed him last November and put Democrats firmly in control of the Senate and the Congress as a whole.

It was as if no one told him that 52 per cent of the American people believed he was lying when he claimed he knew nothing about the Iran-contra arms scandal, and only 33 per cent said he was telling the truth. The New York Times and CBS News Poll said two-thirds of those who thought he lied about Iran thought he was lying about other matters as well.

It was as if, when he declared, "The federal deficit is outrageous," that he did not realize he had been President for six years. In 1980, he attacked Carter's $60 billion deficit and now was attacking a $173 billion deficit of his own making.

It is a dangerous situation for America to be in; a sitting President, in apparent good health despite his advancing years, and yet one who stubbornly refuses to face the realities of the time. A man who remains ill-informed about major issues, whose policies are in disarray and whose free enterprise and anti-government philosophy are given free rein in domestic and foreign affairs. A leader who has lost considerable credibility, and with two years to go in his term of office.

On Reagan's handling of the economy, the Times and CBS poll in mid-January showed that only 49 per cent approved and 41 per cent disapproved. But the trend shows people are increasingly worried. Only 19 per cent thought the economy would be better by the end of Reagan's term. A year ago, 30 per cent thought it would be better. Two years ago, 42 per cent thought it would be better. Confidence is sinking.

People are most worried about unemployment. Of the Times and CBS sample of 1,590 adults, 38 per cent cited an economic issue of the nation's most important problem, up from 28 per cent in December. Asked to specify the issue which most concerned them, 41 per cent said unemployment; 27 per cent, the federal budget deficit; 14 per cent, inflation; 13 per cent, foreign trade; and four per cent didn't know. Geographically, those most concerned about unemployment were in the Middle West and the South, at 45 per cent and 43 per cent, respectively.

A poll taken in mid-January before Reagan's State of the Union address, showed that 38 per cent of those surveyed believe the economy is getting worse; only 23 per cent see it getting better. The Post called it the most pessimistic reading since January of 1983, when the nation was climbing out of the deep recession.

President Reagan has created low expectations. In the Post and ABC poll, only seven per cent said they thought Reagan would accomplish a great deal in the next two years; 45 per cent said "not much, or nothing at all." By 81 to 15 per cent, they said Congress rather than Reagan would take the stronger leadership role.

The Post and ABC polls for Feb. 1981; Feb. 1986 and Jan. 1987 showed rising support for increased spending on programs which help families. On loans and grants to college students, those calling for more spending rose from 22 per cent to 34 per cent to 46 per cent. Support to improve social security rose from 49 per cent to 51 per cent to 51 per cent to 63 per cent.

The American people have moved far ahead of Reagan, who calls for excellence in education and cuts education aid; who calls for redoubled effort against drug abuse and then would cut the anti-drug program in half; who pledges never to negotiate with terrorists and then sells them arms.

Market information provided by the Chicago Board of Trade, 141 West Jackson Blvd., Chicago, IL 60604.

Farmers and their government continue their stormy marriage of necessity, bickering over what to do about their problem child, the huge grain surplus.

Both would like a divorce — farmers preferring a more suitable match with a legitimate market and government wanting to escape the immense costs of "child support."

Of the $28 billion profit farmers made last year, $25 billion came from government programs. Indeed, many farmers' entire incomes are from government.

As much as farmers watch the futures and cash markets for a reappearance of even a ghost of the bull, they and market analysts as well are resigned to watching for the next legislative or policy moves from Washington.

And the U.S. is not the only government locked in economic embrace with farmers — for better or worse. The possibility of a trade war with the European Community, the Japanese, or any of the other countries that protect their farmers from U.S. competition, could affect markets in the months ahead.

How the government meets this challenge is yet another variable being considered by market analysts of member firms at the Chicago Board of Trade.

"Murky" is the outlook according to Victor D. Lespinasse, grain analyst, Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. "Everything is subject to change. A lot depends on Washington," he said.

Though loan levels and target prices for 1987 have been established, variations in the program's administration could change. Lespinasse mentioned the use of generic commodity certificates as the means of deficiency payments.

"It could depress prices. We just saw a rumor of that in soybeans establish a new low," he said.

David M. Bartholomew, senior soybean specialist for Merrill Lynch Futures, Inc., also sees government's role as the determining factor. Whether the 1985 farm legislation will be administered by USDA as is or Congress reworks it for lower costs and greater effect, Bartholomew says the uncertainty presents him with "a foggy crystal ball."

"But if you can ignore (government's role), there is some cause for optimism," he said. "Like the weakening dollar and other stimulations of exports. The consumption rate (of soybeans) is fantastic. Improving economies have meant improving demand. The new Brazilian crop will depress the market, but we're picking up business they can't service."

Bartholomew is optimistic trade strife with Europe will be resolved.

Gerry Hillenbrandt, an independent market analyst, feels the present government programs haven't had much effect on the surplus, because it is a world surplus. "Lowering the loan rate and the lower dollar have not had that much impact, in the short run," he said. "But the whole idea of the farm program, getting the costs under control and making us competitive again, is heading in the right direction."

Hillenbrandt feels current surplus is stabilized but too huge for USDA's export bonus program to reduce in the face of competition. "Lowering your price just lowers the world price." Thus, he is pessimistic about prices.

The voice of guarded optimism, regarding both the market and government actions, comes from Gordon Linn, President of Linnco.

In the short run, he sees two outside markets as "very influential" — currencies and livestock.

"Margins have been excellent in hogs and cattle," he noted. Farmers may cautiously expand herds, now at their lowest points in years, to take advantage of one of agriculture's few bright spots.

"Food and meal react to currencies," he added. "The dollar's improving exchange rate is having some effect. Food is the first to bottom at the end of a long bear cycle and we've already bottomed in wheat. Corn will tend to base out and gradually improve. Beans are tougher; they're overpriced compared to corn but they have a chance to improve given help from any sector.

"Of course, any guess could be wrong depending on the government," Linn said. "It holds the big hammer in CCC stocks. It will be very agressive in implementing programs to push grains into the marketplace."

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

History repeats itself. Many of you readers have seen times when there's been a heavy flight of people from rural places to the cities, and it has almost always caused big trouble.

That is why rural economic development is receiving strong support from leaders in both the Minnesota Senate and House this session. Senate File 1, known as the rural development act, would establish as state policy a community-based approach to economic development. It includes partial state financing for new rural businesses, free post-secondary tuition for displaced farmers and rural workers seeking retraining for other jobs, and state research grants for new products in rural Minnesota. The legislation would use $9.3 million in an existing trust fund to pay for research, training and financing for new or expanded businesses in rural areas.

The bill also creates a new rural development board to link public investments in economic development to state money spent on research and job training.

Among the key provisions would be loans involving 50 per cent state money and 50 per cent private money for small businesses in rural areas.

And one final part of the bill sets up a Greater Minnesota corporation, an idea Governor Perpich started. The Greater Minnesota corporation would work with colleges and universities to translate research into business development and job creation.

This bill has successfully gone through three committees that I serve on and has to go through several more before reaching the Senate floor.

I look at the rural development act as a good place to start the discussion of rural development policies and programs that could bear fruit. This could revitalize and strengthen our rural communities.

As always, I welcome questions and suggestions on this or other issues. I invite you to call me at (612) 296-8660 or write to me in Room 306 Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Tax Collection Tools Bring In More Money To Revenue Dep't.

A suburban Minneapolis homeowner recently had to pay the state $74,000 in back taxes before he could sell his $605,000 home.

More than $17,000 was taken from the bank account of a wealthy southern Minnesota man to pay his 10-year-old Minnesota individual income tax bill.

A suburban Twin Cities hotel, bar and restaurant owner quickly came up with $87,000 to pay his back state sales tax so he could continue to buy liquor from liquor wholesalers.

These are just some of the new enforcement tools that the Minnesota department of revenue is using to collect taxes owed the state.

Last March, the legislature passed tougher laws and provided more funding for an aggressive tax compliance program. The department began 30 new initiatives during 1986, with a goal of collecting an additional $25 million in delinquent taxes by June 30, 1987.

As of Dec. 31, 1986, the department had collected $16.3 million under the program, exceeding projections by more than $5 million. So far, the initiatives have cost less than expected — $700,000, compared with projections of $1.3 million.

John James, assistant commissioner for the compliance program, is confident that the department will meet its $25 million goal, and that the initiatives will have a long-term, positive impact on the department's ability to collect taxes.

"We've made a mjaor dent in our tax delinquency problem in just a nine-month period. Our assessments for back taxes are also ahead of projections, and those payments are expected in the upcoming months," he said.

Of the 30 initiatives, one of the most successful allows the department to collect back taxes durectly from the bank accounts of tax delinquents. In 1986, the department collected more than $1.8 million from 3,800 tax delinquents through this initiative.

The department gets computer data from the Internal Revenue service that lists income from interest, dividends, and commissions, and other non-wage income. The list is matched against the department's list of tax delinquents. If the tax delinquent doesn't pay when contacted, the department uses its legal authority to have the amount withdrawn from the delinquent's bank account and sent to the department.

"This initiative has been very successful at collecting from high-income delinquents," James said.

The liquor posting law, which took effect July 1, 1986, has also been very effective — $1.5 million was collected in the first six months of operation, 10 times the projections, James said. The new law restricts liquor wholesalers from selling to retailers who owe back taxes.

A list of the delinquents is posted each month by the liquor control commission. Of the 285 liquor retailers posted on the public list during 1986, there were 84 left as of December 31.

A law that went into effect last July 1 allows the department to file nonforecloseable tax liens on homesteads. The new law brought in $130,000 in its first six months, and is expected to produce higher revenues in the future.

Under the law, state tax liens must be paid off when the home is either sold or refinanced; however, tax delinquents are not evicted from their homes. Previously, tax liens could not be filed against homesteads. Since 63 per cent of all Minnesota property is homesteaded, the state was missing out on an effective way to collect back taxes, James said. He added that many other states and the IRS can foreclose on homesteads.

"Before the new law, property worth $20.7 million dollars was tied up in tax liens; after it went into effect, $80.9 million was immediately tied up in liens," James said.

The largest amount collected so far through the homestead lien law was $74,000 when a suburban Minneapolis home valued at $605,000 was sold. The delinquency included $66,000 from income tax and $8,000 in withholding tax.

The department has also collected $605,000 through the professional license-clearance program, which requires clearance by the state before operating licenses can be renewed to real estate agents, insurance agents, physicians, chiropractors, dentists and licensed accountants who owe $500 or more in any tax. Last year, the state cleared 134 professional licenses and denied 256.

Another initiative has doubled collection projections. In March, the department began billing delinquents a third time rather than sending them two bills. "This rather simple-sounding procedure brought in $3.7 million from 10,300 delinquents in just 10 months," James said.

Previously, he said, delinquents' cases were referred to other department units after the second bill, a method that took longer, was more expensive and not as successful.

Quicker response by the department is responsible for an additional $748,000 in collections from 913 bad check writers. Between May and December of 1986, the department sent 1,950 letters threatening to prosecute taxpayers who sent in bad checks.

To attack the delinquency problem, the department filled 64 vacancies and 10 temporary positions in 1986.

"We simply put more people on the problem, and it's paying off," James said.

The department has stepped up its prosecution efforts by increasing the number of investigators from six to eight and by working closely with county prosecutors. Criminal tax charges were brought against 62 Minnesotans last year — twice the number for 1985 — including 47 for failing to file state income tax returns and three for tax evasion.

By adding six collectors to its 10 regional offices, the department has collected nearly $600,000 and assessed another $218,000.

An extra nudge by the department has also helped get businesses to file their sales and withholding tax returns. Under the new procedure, eight new employees were hired to immediately contact businesses that are delinquent in filing their sales and withholding tax returns. Between March and December, 40 per cent of the 10,000 businesses contacted filed their returns, paying more than $560,00 .

The department also collected $580,800 last year by intercepting the state tax refunds of 1,500 corporate officers whose businesses owe sales or withholding tax.

In addition, the department generated 378 more corporate tax audits and collected $1.3 million in 1986 by using information provided by the IRS on federal audits.

The department also increased collections from out-of-state businesses. Out-of-state sales tax audits produced $1.2 million between April and December, James said. The collections were accomplished by 12 auditors traveling to businesses in six states. The largest collection was for $469,827, he said.

The department has also collected more than $510,000 by determining that 63 out-of-state businesses have "nexus" — a physical presence — in Minnesota. The department also opened offices last July in the New York area and Chicago. The offices are expected to have a major impact on future collections since many large corporations headquartered there do business in Minnesota.

James said, however, that tax cheating remains a major problem, and the department must continue to use aggressive collection measures to collect back taxes. At the end of 1986, more than $183 million was owed, even though the department collected more than $110 million during 1986, not counting the initiatives.

The department is proposing new initiatives to the 1987 legislature. The initiatives include expanding the occupational license clearance program to cover all types of tax delinquencies, adding a $50 business registration fee, adding more audit collection employees and accelerating the department's systems development.

"We realize there will always be those who are unwilling to do their share and comply voluntarily with the law. However, we intend to find them and collect what is due the state, including interest and penalties," James said.

Many Categories Are Eligible For Medical Expense

Most taxpayers are aware they may be entitled to deductions for certain medical expenses if they itemize on their income tax returns, but many are not aware that medical expense deductions allowed by the IRS fall into over 100 different categories.

According to H & R Block, the cost of insurance premiums for damage to or loss of contact lenses and cancer insurance is deductible.

Also deductible is the cost of vasectomies, legal abortions, and cosmetic surgery even if the procedures were not performed to improve the health of the individual or as part of general medical treatment for an illness.

Uncle Sam also allows a medical deduction for acupuncture services, patient costs (including meals and lodging) at a treatment center for drug addiction or alcoholism, and expenses for false teeth and artificial limbs, eyeglasses, hearing aids, crutches, and guide dogs for the blind and deaf.

A deaf person is also allowed to deduct the cost and maintenance of a special telephone device that permits him to communicate over the phone by means of a converted teletype system.

In addition, persons who are donors of body organs such as kidneys or bone marrow are allowed to deduct all related surgical, hospital, and transportation expenses.

Taxpayers should be aware, however, of many medical costs that are not deductible. Some examples are nonprescription drugs and vitamins, health and diet foods, trips for rest and relaxation and toothpaste — even if recommended by your dentist.

Farm Machinery Trade Deficit Grows In 1986

U.S. farm machinery trade situation continued to worsen as the U.S. posted a $114-million farm machinery trade deficit for the first nine months of 1986.

Sixty-one per cent of the major importers of U.S.-made farm machinery imported less machinery than the previous year. Poor foreign economies, trade barriers, cutting back on ag modernization programs and movement of U.S. production to overseas plants have contributed.

While the export market continues to shrink, imports of farm machinery are claiming a larger share of the domestic market. Part of this stems from the shift to tractor production overseas. For 1985, imports accounted for almost 25 per cent of the net domestic supply.

Imports from Japan accounted for over one-fourth of the total value of farm machinery imports. Imports from West Germany, Italy, the United Kingdom and the rest of Western Europe accounted for 48 per cent.

Foreign trade in farm machinery will continue to be affected by the transfer of more U.S. tractor production capacity abroad and by declining export markets. Transferring wheel tractor production to Western Europe and Japan is just one dimension in the overall restructuring of the U.S. farm machinery industry. As a result, the U.S. may continue to be a net importer of farm machinery.

Stangeland Says State Won't Be Repository Site

U.S. Rep. Arlan Stangeland says he is continuing pursuit of legislation killing any possibility of locating a nuclear waste facility in Minnesota.

I"I recently met with Ben Rusche of the department of energy and I am convinced that Minnesota will not be the site of a second nuclear waste repository," Stangeland said. "Despite recent statements by the DOE regarding a second site, I am certain that Congress will block these attempts. Congress is in charge of this situation and I can give my word to Minnesotans in the Seventh District that they will not find themselves living next to a volitile and poisonous nuclear waste dump," Stangeland continued.

Ben Rusche, director of the office of civilian radioactive waste management in the department of energy, told Stangeland that a second nuclear waste facility was unnecessary and could be successfully blocked by Congress.

Stangeland discussed with Rusche the mission plan legislation that would postpone indefinitely the selection of a second nuclear waste repository. Under this plan the first site determined to be located in Nevada, Texas or Washington would proceed on a delayed schedule.

"The mission plan is a good piece of legislation. It adetuately addresses the need for nuclear waste disposal without posing any threats to the headwaters of our nation's three major water systems located in northern Minnesota," Stangeland said. "The plan provides real hope for the permanent elimination of Minnesota as a proposed site for nuclear waste disposal. I will do all I can to see that it passes. I would also urge all Minnesotans to join me in making certain that the Mississippi river, the Red River valley and the Great Lakes region remain untainted by the presence of a deadly nuclear waste dump in Minnesota.

FRED PENNER, considered to be one of Canada's best and most successful performers in the field of Entertainment for young children, will be in Thief River Falls Thursday, April 9, as part of the young families parenting fair. Penner can be seen on Cable Channel 12 at 10 a.m. weekdays. The event is sponsored by the Thief River Falls early childhood family education program.

Penner Featured At Youth Program

Considered by many to be one of Canada's best and most successful performers in the field of entertainment for children, Fred Penner is scheduled to appear at Lincoln high school auditorium at 6 p.m. on Thursday, April 9. The concert is a special feature of the young families parenting fair to be held from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m. that day at the Lincoln cafeteria.

Tickets for the event will go on sale March 30 at Larson Music company and parents of young children are encouraged by the sponsoring Thief River Falls Early Childhood Family Education Program to mark their calendars. Admission in advance will be $2 for children and students, $3 for adults, and free for infants and lap babies. Tickets will be 50 cents higher at the door the night of performance. Both general admission and reserved seat tickets are available.

Penner has a television program for children called "Fred Penner's Place" at 10 a.m. weekdays on the Canadian Broadcasting company channel (Cable channel 12 in Thief River Falls). An actor, author and musician, he provides true family entertainment in an active, lively and spontaneous style.

According to the sponsoring organization, Penner likes to use a direct approach and involves his audience with sing-alongs, actions and fingerplays. He says his greatest motivation is to have a positive effect on the children and families who see his performances.

In addition to his short concert tours, Penner has produced four albums, written two children's books, and has the daily television program. Every morning he leads his preschool audience across a meadow, over a brook, through a hollow log and into a secret hideaway in the woods and into the world of music. Penner's show combines songs, storytelling, games and unusual props such as turtles and snakes.

"If Fred Penner ever decides to give up being a children's entertainer," writes Stephen Ostick in the Winnipeg (Man.) Free Press, "he can always get work as a people-picker-upper. Spend an hour with the guy and have your faith in humanity restored."

Penner graduated from the University of Winnipeg in 1970 with an economics degree but spent the next seven years playing bars and lounges with duos and trios. Now he tapes the 96 shows for the year during June through September, playing about 100 to 150 concerts from October through May.

Bill Provick, staff writer for the Ottawa citizen, states that Penner "...doesn't merely have a way with children — he has a wonderful way with whole families....One important key to Penner's success is his natural sense of fun; another is the telling two-way contact he maintains with his audience."

"My approach is one-to-one," Penner said of his own performance. "I'm a father, a human being, I'm a friendly guy and when I get up on stage it's singing songs and playing directly with my audience. The moms, the dads, the kids — it's the whole family unit that I'm playing with. I ask questions and I get answers."

The young families parenting fair will include participation by the

County Engineer Suggests Keeping Trucks Off Roads

"With the warm weather we experienced prior to the recent cold snap," states Wayne Olson, Pennington county engineer, "many of the gravel roads in the county are going to be in rough shape." He said rain and snow following mild weather several weeks ago aggravated the situation.

"It would save tax dollars and be more convenient for other traffic if drivers would keep trucks off the bad roads prior to posting of restrictions as well as after they have been posted," Olson said. It is expected that the Minnesota department of transportation will place road restrictions in this area on March 13.

"All unposted roads will be limited to five tons per axle during the restriction period," Olson added. "It is also possible that some roads may need to be closed to all but local traffic," he said. "Hopefully, warm weather will dry up the roads without too many frost boils and closed roads."

LEC Prisoner Attempts Escape From Officers

Justin Brierly, 18, Thief River Falls, was arraigned before Judge L.G. Jorgenson last Wednesday and charged with assault in the fourth degree, consumption of an alcoholic beverage by a person under the age of 21, and escape from custody. The charges against Brierly stem from an arrest made March 1 and then Brierly's attempt to escape from custody.

Law enforcement center reports indicate that an officer observed four males wrestling in the middle of North Atlantic avenue in the 600 block last Sunday. As he approached, a bottle of liquor was thrown to the side. One individual continued to drink from a bottle of liquor. Blake Olson, 18, Thief River Falls, and Brierly were taken into custody. Olson was charged with disorderly conduct and consumption of an alcoholic beverage by a minor. The two other individuals fled from the scene.

The law enforcement center reports that as the police vehicle transportating Brierly arrived at the center, Brierly jumped over the front seat in an attempt to escape. Officer Jeff Sebenaler attempted to restrain him, but Brierly got away from him. Officer Allen Melbye was able to catch Brierly, but Brierly continued to struggle until Sheriff Deputy Mike Hruby arrived to assist Officer Melbye.

Officer Sebenaler was injured in Brierly's attempt to escape. He had a cut finger and sore ribs from being kicked. The injuries were not serious enough for Officer Sebenaler to miss any work.

RBA Promotes Wearing Green For March 17th

Retail Business association (RBA) of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce will promote use of green for St. Patrick's Day March 17. Employees are encouraged to wear green and store specials with green are being promoted. "Let's show our customers we appreciate their 'green' and that shopping in Thief River Falls is fun," said Jeff Hendrickson, RBA chairman.

OTH-B Environmental Statement Delayed

Because of the large number of comments and questions submitted to the U.S. Air Force systems command, the final environmental impact statement on siting of the Over-the-Horizon Backscatter radar system has been delayed until late April or early May.

Kevin Gilmartin of the office of public affairs at Hanscom Air Force base in Massachusetts said that the document was scheduled for release this month, but the large volume of comments and questions sent by residents in potential radar locations will take at least six weeks of additional time to analyze and address thoroughly.

The final environmental impact statement will recommend the preferred study areas for location of both the transmit and receive sites of the OTH-B radar system. A record of decision on the final site areas will be announced after a 30-day waiting period following release of the impact statement.

"We want to insure that we have a complete and credible document that answers all the comments received," stated Col. James A. Lee, program director for the air force. "The extended comment period and extra public hearings last fall brought in much more mail than we originally expected. We are glad that everyone had an opportunity to voice opinions on the proposed radar system, because that is the intent of the environmental impact analysis process."

Col. Lee has been in Thief River Falls on several occasions to discuss the proposed project which would involve installation of a radar surveillance system to detect, track and provide warning of aircraft and cruise missiles approaching the United States from the south. Similar systems are in place, under construction or planned for coverage to the east, west and northwest. The system is a long range, wide area system which can provide surveillance at all altitudes to ranges of 2,000 statute miles.

The Thief River Falls area has been considered for installation of a receive site which would require about 2,400 acres of land. The site has been a subject of considerable controversy involving those who believe it to be a passive installation providing additional employment in the area and those who are concerned about its impact on the area in a number of ways.

Gilmartin told the Times in a special telephone interview Friday that some 800 letters had been received by the air force and that all had to be included and answered in the final environmental impact statement. Some of the letters were multi-page, he said, and they are all in addition to transcripts of hearings, petitions, and other information which is included in the final report. All questions presented are to be answered in the report.

Once the final EIS has been completed, it is sent to the USAF headquarters at the Pentagon in Arlington, VA, for review and approval. At least 1,000 copies are expected to be printed and distributed following final approval.

Gilmartin said the EIS is being prepared through Col. Lee's program office, along with the OTH-B contractor, SRI International.

Future Fuel Inc. Seeks Standard Regulations

Don Grabanski, Pennington county commissioner, said they got their point across with the Minnesota pollution control agency and the Minnesota waste management board at a meeting recently held in St. Paul.

Grabanski, Commissioner "Skip" Swanson, Rick Nordhagen and Dave Forsberg were in St. Paul recently in behalf of Future Fuel. Their message was to tell the Minnesota Pollution Control agency to "back off" so they can get the project going.

Minnesota Pollution Control agency sent a letter to Reuter's and Future Fuel earlier this year which set strict requirements on how and where they burn refuse-densified pellets. The requirements have been so difficult to meet that Future Fuel is having a difficult time marketing the pellets, Grabanski said. "For us to meet the bill, the project has to sell in the market," Grabanski told board members.

Grabanski told the board Future Fuel is willing to work with everyone, but for Future Fuel to operate it needs room to get the project completed. He said there has been good cooperation between agencies in the past, with few exceptions.

Grabanski said he would rather live next to a plant burning Future Fuel pellets than a coal-burning plant or nuclear power plant, yet those plants are operating daily and refuse burning plants are having a difficult time even getting started.

Grabanski said the problem isn't really whether the pellets should be tested, but to what degree and for compliance with what standards. The PCA, Grabanski said, basically told Future Fuel and Reuter's that each facility that burns pellets must meet stringent and expensive requirements. Allowing one or two tests with the same equipment to represent all or a larger number of users is not possible. Each user must meet stringent and expensive testing requirements. Grabanski said that the testing requirements are not only too severe, but the PCA has not set any standards for Future Fuel or Reuters to meet.

Lisa Thorvig, chief of the regulatory compliance section of the air quality division at MPCA, told the board that each incinerator would have to be tested because they operate under different circumstances. She also said the pellets would have to undergo testing because pellets are not composed of consistent materials. The type of garbage used to make the pellets is always different.

Thorvig said she worked in the solid waste division prior to coming to her current position. When she worked in solid waste they were told to back off on their requirements for landfills. They did, she said, and now ground water problems exist all over the state. She said she doesn't want to

Cook's Choice

The American Institute for Cancer Research sends The Times a bulletin now and then. I think this one is interesting.

It's not fair. The most important meal of the day comes when many people are still half asleep. It's breakfast, of course, a meal that should send you and your family off in the morning with one-fourth to one-third of your daily nutrition requirements.

Each member of your family needs a well-balanced meal to start the day. And with the busy, erratic schedules of active families — late nights at the office, evening basketball practice, night classes, etc. — breakfast is one of the few meals a family is likely to eat at home.

The key to preparing nutritious and appealing breakfasts is to plan ahead to save time in the morning. Set the table the night before, and put out cereal boxes and other items that don't require refrigeration. Pre-preparation can be a real timesaver: chill fruits and juices, mix up pancake batter, or put together a fruit compote before you go to bed.

Breakfast doesn't have to be a bore. The following recipes will help you wake up sleepy morning appetites with wholesome, nutritious breakfasts:

CARROT BRAN MUFFINS

These whole grain muffins are a sweet, moist breakfast treat. Bake on the weekend and freeze; then just defrost and reheat briefly for a quick, warm and nutritious weekday breakfast. The whole grain provides healthful fiber and the carrots are a great source of beta-carotone, a form of vitamin A that helps lower your risk of many cancers.

1 cup bran flakes cereal, crushed
1¼ cups whole wheat flour
¼ cup packed brown sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1¼ cups skim milk
1 egg
3 tablespoons oil
1½ cups grated carrots (about ½ pound)
¼ cup raisins (optional)

Thoroughly combine cereal, flour, sugar, baking soda, baking powder and spices in a large bowl. In small bowl, mix together milk, egg and oil. Stir into dry ingredients; mix well but do not overstir. Add carrots and raisins. Spoon batter into lightly greased muffin pans.

Bake at 400 degrees about 15 minutes, or until toothpick inserted in middle comes out clean.

This will yield 12 muffins, with about 4 grams of fat each and about 130 calories each.

OATMEAL PANCAKES

Oatmeal adds an interesting new flavor to a traditional breakfast favorite. This recipe is designed to be low in fat, so don't add extra butter or margarine at the table. Instead, top with fresh fruit, applesauce or syrup.

1½ cups quick cooking oatmeal
¾ cup unsifted whole wheat flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 tablespoons oil
2 cups buttermilk or 2 cups skim milk with 2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 egg
optional flavoring: 1 teaspoon vanilla; ½ teaspoon maple flavor, cinnamon or nutmeg

Combine oatmeal, flour, sugar, and baking soda in bowl. Add oil, milk, egg and any optional flavorings desired. Stir vigorously until thoroughly mixed. Let batter stand at room temperature for 30 minutes.

Drop mixture from spoon onto preheated griddle or skillet. Bake until bubbles form, then turn and bake on other side. Serve and top with favorite syrup or fruit topping.

This will give about 8 pancakes, 4 inches in diameter, of about 170 calories and 6 grams of fat each.

Report Shows State Needs More Volunteers

Although an estimated 1.6 million Minnesotans volunteer their time to help others, more volunteers are needed to meet the rising demand according to a report issued recently by the Minnesota office on volunteer services, department of administration.

The report "Volunteers — The Best of Minnesota: A Report on the State of Volunteerism in Minnesota 1987," is the first of its kind for the state.

"We are confronted today with a need to improve and expand voluntary efforts," the report says. "A knowledge of our past, understanding of our current situation and identification of challenges for the future will help us to collectively set and accomplish measureable goals."

The report notes that Governor Rudy Perpich has designated 1987 as "The Year of the Volunteer" in Minnesota, calling for "new heights in leadership and service through a spirit of giving and teamwork."

The report identifies some of the numerous ways volunteers serve children, adults, senior citizens, the disabled, the poor, and the entire community. "Volunteers today are not only maintaining traditional services . . ., they are also being called upon to meet new and increasing needs," according to the report.

Chronically high rates of unemployment, continued aging of the U.S. population, growing concern about the state of public education, and further cuts in government spending are among the trends cited which are leading to increased need for services.

In order to meet these needs, the report says, the capabilities and limitations of the volunteer community must be recognized, and the level of volunteerism must be raised.

The history of volunteerism in Minnesota is traced from the days when residents helped one another to clear land and raise barns, to the development of schools, hospitals and fire departments. "Minnesota's volunteer leaders have a history of pioneering volunteer initiatives . . . that have been replicated throughout the country," the report says, adding that national volunteer leaders recognize Minnesota as "being in the forefront of volunteerism in the country."

Looking toward the future, the report identifies issues and concerns impacting volunteerism, such as the "high cost of caring," the impact of the tax revolt and new trends in employment and corporate volunteerism. "Volunteer directors and leaders need to collectively address those concerns which affect the willingness or ability of volunteers to serve," says the report.

The report recommends increasing the extent of volunteerism in Minnesota by 50 per cent within the next three years. This would mean increasing the number of volunteers from 1.6 million to two million, and the average number of hours served by volunteers from 3.5 hours per week to 4.4 hours per week.

The report also makes the following recommendations for the next three years:

- Obtain statistical data on volunteerism in Minnesota.
- Issue a report on the state of volunteerism at least every other year.
- Initiate public education programs on volunteerism.
- Identify and cultivate leadership in the voluntary sector.
- Encourage greater cohesiveness among volunteer organizations.

Copies of the report are available by contacting the Minnesota Office on Volunteer Services, Department of Administration, 500 Rice Street, St. Paul, MN 55155.

MN Health To Promote Nutrition

By making changes in what they eat, Minnesotans can significantly lower their risk of developing major health problems like heart disease, stroke and cancer, according to Sister Mary Madonna Ashton, Minnesota commissioner of health.

To help them make those dietary changes, the department is launching a major health promotion effort, focusing on nutrition.

Commissioner Ashton's announcement of the new initiative coincides with the release of a 200-page report titled "Healthy by Choice: The Minnesota Plan for Nutrition and Health." The report was prepared by a 52-member technical advisory committee, set up by the department in 1985.

The department's nutrition initiative will be based on the report, which discusses a number of major nutrition-related health problems affecting Minnesotans, and proposes a series of guidelines aimed at helping people improve their diets. The report also includes a series of 38 action recommendations, designed to help people make the changes suggested in the guidelines.

The initiative will need to be organized as a community-wide effort, Commissioner Ashton emphasized. "We must be prepared to mobilize the people of Minnesota" on behalf of the initiative, she said. "The job is beyond the reach of any single agency or organization acting alone."

Heart disease, stroke and cancer are the most significant diet-related problems discussed in the advisory committee report. They are Minnesota's leading causes of death, together accounting for nearly three-fourths of all deaths in the state.

Heart disease and stroke are strongly associated with a number of underlying conditions, the report noted, like high blood pressure, high blood cholesterol, diabetes and obesity. Those conditions are, in turn, associated with dietary factors such as eating too much fat, drinking too much alcohol, consuming too much salt or simply taking in too many calories.

It has been estimated that more than a third of all cancers could be prevented, the report said, if people ate less fat and more fiber — including fruits and certain kinds of vegetables.

Other diet-related health problems cited in the report include osteoporosis, a bone disease primarily affecting older women, which has been linked with low calcium intake.

Commissioner Ashton cautioned that the report's nutrition guidelines provide no fast and easy answers to specific health problems.

"We have no simple solutions to offer," she said. "We can't prescribe any special foods — or vitamins, or unusual diets — that will magically solve everyone's health problems." Instead, the guidelines focus on helping people change their overall eating patterns. The guidelines call on Minnesotans to:

+ Avoid eating too much fat, saturated fat, or cholestrol;

+ Eat foods every day that provide a good source of fiber;

+ Avoid too much sodium;

+ Eat a variety of fruits and vegetables every day;

+ Use sugar only in moderation;

+ Take in adequate amounts of calcium every day; and

+ Use alcohol with caution and in moderation.

The report's action recommendations, which emphasize educating people about the guidelines, fall into four areas. These include:

(1) Community-based efforts to provide nutrition education to consumers, in locations like grocery stores, restaurants, cafeterias and food shelves;

(2) Broader health education efforts, including worksite health promotion programs and a mass media public information campaign;

(3) Broad-based efforts to provide nutrition education to Minnesota's young people — through the schools; and

(4) Efforts to train and mobilize Minnesota's health care professionals as nutrition educators, with major efforts to be aimed at physicians, nurses, dietitians, dentists and dental hygienists.

The INSIDE SCOOP

by GAYLE BORCHERT

Much is happening this week at Lincoln. First, I must apologize. Through some error the answers were left out of last week's column. So I'll try again. Look to the bottom of the column this week for them.

Monday, March 9, is the annual Mothers' Banquet put on by the Sports Boosters. All mothers of Lincoln athletes are invited to attend. Guest speaker at this year's banquet is Marilyn Haggerty from Grand Forks. This is put on for appreciation of all that mothers do in helping their students participate in athletics.

About two weeks ago, three students from the Lincoln high school wind ensemble were participants in the Winona Honors Band. These students were Kraig Anderson, Paulie Wegge and Paul Spyhalski. These students put in a good 12 hours of practice in the two short days they were there. They also performed in the honors band concert.

With spring almost here, the coaches of spring sports have decided to get a jump on the snow melting. Track and girls' and boys' golf meetings were scheduled last week. All students who were interested attended.

If any students missed the meetings they can contact the coaches to find out what went on.

Practice for the musical, "The King and I," is still going on at Lincoln. The countdown is only three weeks until the big event. I'll try in the upcoming weeks to catch up with Mrs. Stock, the director of the musical, for an interview.

Weightlifters at Lincoln are working toward the weight meet planned on May 11.

The answers to last week's quiz are as follows:

(1) Girls basketball team
(2) the school newspaper
(3) their crutches
(4) six
(5) tournament season
(6) The King and I
(7) The sophomores
(8) Lincoln high school marching band

ON EXHIBIT at Franklin middle schol through March 13 from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. is a 39-photo display from the Minnesota historical society which depicts the city of Alexandria in 1876. Photographer Newton J. Trenham took the photos that year on a building-by-building basis when the city was 18 years old. Founded at the halfway point between Red River and St. Cloud, Alexandria had been a depot for Red River carts and stagecoaches for many years. Between 1865 and 1871 its land office was one of the busiest in the state. The photos are on display in the classrooms immediately to the right of the entrance at Franklin school.

Business Venture Scholarships Are Now Available

For the seventh consecutive year the Business Economics Edution foundation is offering 500 scholarships to high school sophomores, juniors, seniors and teachers that will enable them to participate in its Minnesota Business Venture program.

Offered twice over the summer, July 26 - August 1 and August 2 - 8, the program brings students and teachers from across the state together with businessmen and women to explore the world of business. The seminar takes place on the campus of St. Olaf college in Northfield.

Students and teachers follow through the program in small groups that are led by business people. These men and women live on campus and act as resident business advisors, providing opportunity to learn about business in a hands-on environment.

Individuals applying to the program must have a sincere interest in being part in an intensive week-long seminar. The schedule is full from morning 'til night but provides free time and recreation. There's always a mix of people that creates an atmosphere for discussion.

Participation is limited to 225 students and 25 teachers per session. Students pay $50 to attend and there is no charge to teachers. Teachers may also register for three graduate credits offered by the University of Minnesota.

Students and teachers interested in applying should see their principal or counselor or write directly to Minnesota Business Venture, c-o Jeff Lovich, 518 Wyman Buidling, 400 North 1st Avenue, Minneapolis, MN 55401 or call (612) 337-5252.

association will sponsor a farmer appreciation supper from 5 to 7 p.m. at the school and the public is invited to attend and view the displays which will be set up in the gymnasium. There will be elementary school basketball games during the evening. Further details will be announced later.

Several of the public opinion letters written by fifth graders at Goodridge have been selected by Mrs. Anderson for publication. Those letters are as follows:

Dear Editor:

I think we should get more money for our crops. If we get low prices for our crops people will be poor and will leave. So if we get more money people will stay.

Your friend,
Brad Philipp

Dear Mr. Editor:

I think people should get better prices for their grain because people all around where I live are groaning because they didn't get very good prices for their grain.

A farmer's son,
Wayne Iverson

Dear Mr. Editor:

I think that the cattle farmers should get more money for their cattle. About 2 weeks ago we sold 5 cows. They were about 1100 to 1200 pounds. We only got 40 cents to 45 cents a pound. I think we should have gotten more.

Your friend,
Mike Arveson

Dear Mr. Editor:

I think the farmers should get more money for their crops because they work hard out in the fields and get very sweaty. They should get more money because everything they purchase to farm with costs more than what they get in return for their crops.

A farmer's daughter,
Kristy J. Johnson

Dear Mr. Editor:

I think grain prices should be higher because we're only getting about $2.80 per bushel for wheat. All that money goes on parts and machinery. I think wheat should be about $5.00 per bushel, corn $4.50 per bushel, and sunflowers $22.50 per hundred pounds.

Your friend,
Jason Kotrba

Future Fuel Inc. Seeks Standard Regulations

look back in several years and say the same of burning refuse-densified fuel.

Thorvig told the board that test results from the burning of pellets will be used to set standards for all burning. She said it is the start of setting stricter standards in Minnesota. She also said she suspects that the federal government will be coming out with its own regulations on incinerators as well.

Thorvig said 13 facilities in Minnesota are permitted to burn refuse densified fuel, but not all are in operation and not all plan to continue operation.

She said only Reuter's and Future Fuel have permits to make pellets. It is unlikely, she said, that these permits will ever be issued again without the applicant identifying a market first.

In Grabanski's statement to the board he identified a viable market for pellets with area schools, the hospital in Thief River Falls and a large potential user in North Dakota. In addition he provided the board with information on a study of similar pellets in Iowa, which Thorvig rejected because she believes they don't have the same garbage. He also said that the restrictions placed on the sale of pellets has damaged the market for the pellets.

In his closing statements, Granbanski said he does not plan to give up, but will fight for the project until it is all cleared up.

Infections from Contact Lenses
About a year or two ago, major medical centers around the country began to recognize an increased incidence of infectious ulceration of the cornea in persons who wore soft contact lenses. A high percentage of these infections were in persons wearing extended wear soft contact lenses - the kind that can be worn two to four weeks without removal. The daily wear soft contacts - which must be taken out every night - were less of a problem.
Additionally, the bacteria and fungi causing these infections can be virulent, sometimes causing a permanent reduction in vision due to scarring of the cornea. The cornea is the clear dome-shaped structure covering the pupil and iris.
A study recently published in the American Journal of Ophthalmology showed that these corneal ulcers occurred in wearers of daily wear soft contact only when the patients did not use proper hygiene when caring for their contact lenses. Improper techniques included failure to wash hands before handling the contacts, wearing them overnight, not using a disinfecting system, or having a contaminated case. In contrast, 40% of the extended wear contact patients who got corneal ulcers had followed proper cleaning techniques.
This suggests that daily wear soft contact lenses may be safer that extended wear lenses. Extended wear lenses are still O.K. to use, provided the wearer is educated regarding the possible risks. The bottom line - report to your eye doctor if you experience any unusual eye pain or loss of vision.

TIMES Around The Region

by Sharon LaCoursiere

Skunk Busters

Hallock — February 28, at 7:25 p.m., the Kittson county sheriff's department received a call from Joy Jauhola, who reported that she needed assistance with a skunk in her living room closet. After establishing that, yes, it was a real, live skunk that had entered the dwelling through the basement, and yes, it was firmly ensconced in the living room closet after seeking shelter there when Ms. Jauhola tried to remove it from the home in a clothes basket, Sheriff Hunt and Deputy Thompson made ready to brave the elements and render assistance. They called in "local skunk experts" Earl Hunt and Foster Hudson to accompany them on their skunk search and seizure quest. Roads in the area that evening were blocked with heavy snow so Earl Hunt and Hudson, armed with their skunk-catching equipment, came in a four-wheel drive vehicle to fetch the sheriff and deputy from the sheriff's office and transport them through the blizzard and over the drifts to the Jauhola home. The group arrived to find the skunk sleeping peacefully in the closet. In fact, he was so fast asleep that Deputy Thompson had one difficult time waking him up so that Hudson could get him into a live trap he had ready and waiting — baited with bits of sausage and bacon. The sheriff's department report in the Kittson County Enterprise stated, "The skunk was then removed from the home." In other words, the sojourn of the sleepy, sated, little stinker was suspended without further ado, and he was forced to seek solace in a more suitable sanctuary. We would surmise the squatter succumbed without a spontaneous spraying spree.

"In moments of peace, I will often stare into nothingness and wonder where my future might take me and what I may share with the world from which I have come.

"As my cluttered mind wanders to and fro, no movement does my relaxed body show, and the quiet, serene trance that holds me so will not end 'till solution is won.

"Of all the ideas I may chance to ponder, from ancients to exploring the 'Wild Blue Yonder,' there's no single thought to me that is fonder than bringing all nations together.

The world's great weapons, of which we have plenty, outweigh our agreements which might number 20. If a peace-loving saint from the heavens was sent, he might iron out all the bad weather."

Discussion & Dissention

Karlstad — The Karlstad city council tabled discussion on whether or not to change a city ordinance which regulates the sale of off-sale liquor. George and Shirley Koland have requested the change in the regulations so that they could open an off-sale liquor establishment along with a small processing plant. Mayor George Wikstrom voiced his opposition to the change in the ordinance and other council members brought forth opposition they had received from citizens. Mr. Koland stated that he was basing his argument on election results which indicated that the people of the community were for the sale of liquor in Karlstad. He said, "This is an obstruction of the democratic process, and if the mayor is going to use it as a political pawn. . .that's just a bunch of political shenanigans." Councilman Gene LaDoucer then moved to table the matter until a full council was present.

In another area accident, two Karlstad women, Lucy Walz and Alice Bogestad, were riding in Bogestad's 1977 Chevrolet, driven by Walz, when it was struck in the rear by a 1986 Ford pickup driven by Dennis Nyberg of Deerwood, as both vehicles met a snowplow on highway 11 near Donaldson. Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Reform Doesn't Mean Fair

In one of his last contracts with the public during his term as Minnesota state treasurer, Bob Mattson warned against recommendations made by the Bipartisan Commission on Election Reform. His message is that proposed reforms are merely high-handed efforts to consolidate power within the political parties.

"The recommendations offered by the commission . . . merely strengthened the hand of the 'party regulars' at the expense of ordinary voters, most of whom do not identify with either the DFL or IR parties," he said. The commission is chaired by former IR governor Al Quie and DFL Minneapolis mayor Don Fraser.

The commission proposes moving the primary election from September to June, restricting access to each party's primary election ballot and change the method by which candidates' names appear on the primary election ballot. Mattson commented on the proposed changes as follows:

I have long advocated an open primary election with no party endorsement, the process used in a vast majority of the other 49 states. Moving the primary from September to June is wrong and a step backward. The election season in Minnesota is already too long and too expensive.

Perhaps the worst of the Commission recommendations came in the area of restricting access to primary election ballots. The Commission suggested that no one could file for statewide office unless they were endorsed at either the DFL or IR endorsing convention, received at least 30 per cent of the delegate votes at the convention, or filed a petition with anywhere from 12,000 to 15,000 names. This is a high-handed and thoroughly elitist idea, designed exclusively to ram "endorsed" candidates down the throats of the voting public.

Under current law, anyone may file for statewide office by paying a $150 fee or by submitting a petition with 2,000 names. If the Commission recommendations were now the law, it would have been virtually impossible for several Minnesota politicians ever to have run for office. These include Governor Perpich, who challenged the DFL endorsed candidate in 1982; Eugene McCarthy, George Latimer, Bob Short, Wheelock Whitney, James Lindau, and myself.

To do as the Commission has recommended to be eligible to run for office would take a full-time effort, at great expense, for at least one year and would exclude most worthy candidates not willing or able to submit to the party endorsement system. The Commission recommendation would restrict candidacies to people who are independently wealthy, unemployed, or already holding public office.

Finally, to help "endorsed" candidates, the Commission recommended that endorsed candidates names appear at the tops of the primary election ballot, with the word "endorsed" after his or her name. This would greatly benefit both political parties by eliminating the need to produce and mail sample ballots. And it would save both parties lots of money.

These recommendations are now being "studied" by the central committees of both the DFL and IR parties. The final recommendations will be proposed to the 1987 legislature for changes in current law.

Future elections in Minnesota should be open, fair, and attainable to all interested candidates. Implementation of any of the Commission recommendations would retard fairness, openness and attainability. They should be soundly rejected.

Political Doubletalk

Following comments were written by Peter Bodley in the Anoka County Union:

There have been two recent incidents, one at the federal level and other at the local-state level, to show why politicians are generally held in low esteem by members of the general public. Both are good examples of what is known as political doubletalk, meaning the politician says one thing and does another.

At the federal level, the House of Representatives voted to kill a pay raise for itself and members of the U.S. Senate that had been approved in the session last year. The Senate had earlier voted to reverse the pay increase. The problem with the House vote, and the epitome of political doubletalk, was that it took place a day after the raise went into effect; that's right the day after. Opponents had sought to get a vote before the pay increase became effective, but it was blocked by the House leadership until the day after. By then, of course, safe in the knowledge that they had the raise anyway, Congressmen in large numbers voted against it. Not only was it political doubletalk, it was also a prime example of political arrogance and hypocrisy.

It was also a message to voters that Congress cares very little about the burgeoning budget deficit, about as much as the Reagan administration seems to, despite the pronouncements from both quarters. Normally, when a private sector business finds itself looking at a loss, then employees' wages are frozen or cut. Not so in government; the raises go on whether or not the government unit is running a deficit or not. If the House had really meant to block the pay raise it had voted for itself last year, it would not have waited until after the raise went into effect to do so.

There is a local example of political doubletalk, too, involving Governor Rudy Perpich. Back in September when he attended the groundbreaking of the Minnesota Medical Enterprise Park in Coon Rapids, Perpich promised to recommend to the 1987 legislature that the park be designated an economic opportunity zone to make it eligible for tax breaks to entice medical technology business and industry.

But when Perpich presented his budget proposals to the legislature last month, there was no mention of the opportunity zone; indeed, Perpich was proposing to eliminate the existing opportunity zones in state, after which the medical enterprise park zone would have been patterned. Existing opportunity zones for the most part are in communities that are in the state's borders to enable them to compete with communities in neighboring states.

Apparently, Perpich conveniently forgot what he had promised in September. He cannot claim that he did not make the promise because the city of Coon Rapids has a transcript of his remarks, and they were also duly reported in the Coon Rapids Herald. But the Perpich administration has turned a deaf ear to the Coon Rapids request. If politicians, in general, and Perpich, in particular, are going to promise things during an election campaign, which was underway in September last year, then they should do their best to keep them; otherwise they should not promise anything at all. Whether the city will succeed in persuading the legislature to approve the opportunity zone is open to question, but it would have helped if Perpich had lived up to his promise. Politicians lose credibility when they say one thing and do another; Perpich is no exception.

A father was explaining ethics to his son. "Ethics are vital to civilized living," he said. "For example, today a friend paid me back for a loan with a $100 bill. As I was putting the money in my billfold, I noticed that he had given me two $100 bills which had stuck together. Immediately a question of ethics arose: "Should I or shouldn't I tell your mother."

More Justice Needed
by Jon Rangstad, President Minnesota Ass'n. of Professional Insurance Agents, Inc.

As often happens in democracies, the American public is ahead of its leaders. Three years ago a Gallup study found that "the public believes our civil justice system is too expensive and fraught with too many lawsuits." The study found there is a conviction in this country "that too many of those lawsuits are unwarranted."

A recent Roper survey found that 80 per cent surveyed believed lawyers are encouraged to sue for inflated amounts because of contingency fees. And 79 per cent believed that contingency fees encouraged people to file lawsuits even if they don't have a strong case, because they have nothing to lose.

Why has the public become so cynical?

Because more money is being spent at some toxic waste dumps on deciding who should pay for cleaning them than on actually doing the work;

Because it costs 63 cents to give 37 cents to an asbestos victim;

Because the average amount awarded in a medical malpractice case increased by more than 400 per cent over the span of a decade;

Because the number of cases being lidigated lasting 20 days or more doubled between 1973 and 1983.

We've been on a binge and are waking up to the hangover.

At its best, our civil justice system assures each of us our day in court if we need one. But at its worst, the system is an expensive charade and a costly avenger. The system undermines the essential concept of personal responsibility with the cost incurred by each of us by buying asset protection insurance called liability.

We should be able to curb some of the system's excesses by restoring the notion of fault in the following areas:

(1) We can hold defendants liable to the degree if their fault, and no more.

(2) We can restore the original intent behind punitive damages.

(3) We can put reasonable limits on pain and suffering.

(4) We can eliminate double payments for the same loss.

(5) We can reduce legal costs.

The public has spoken. Consumers want a fair, efficient and predictable civil justice system. And they want it before abuses of the tort system further deteriorate the quality, safety and security of our lives. We hope that the leadership within the Minnesota Trial Lawyers association will listen to what the public is saying and help all of us correct the civil justice system throughout the Unitd States.

Sincerely,
Jon Rongstad
President

to the Editor

To The Editor:

On behalf of the girls basketball team and our coaches we would like to thank everyone in the community for their support during the past season. We especially appreciate the crowd's enthusiasm. It was so helpful to feel the support of the fans behind us every minute showing the Prowler Pride.

A special thanks to the local businesses who displayed good-luck posters, advertized on our programs, and those who supported the radio coverage. We would also like to thank the Pizza Hut, Paint & Glass, and Bill Dee for their special contributions. Last but far from least, we thank Don Howe for his play by play coverage of our games.

The community's enthusiasm helped bring us a successful season and we couldn't have done it without your terrific support.

To The Editor:

Today our local schools along with all schools are faced with a greater need for providing disciplinary action for misbehavior than ever before. With the increased economic stress and the break-down of families, students have become affected. Thief River Falls schools, along with the community, have recognized the need, and spent considerable time this year in discussion, committee work, and both group and public meetings on the subject of discipline.

Discipline problems, which once existed among teenage students, are now occurring at a much earlier age; middle school, grade 6-8 range and even the elementary level. The middle school needs a person who can be available on the spot to deal with a situation when it happens, not later. This job along with some additional duties is a full-time position, not one to be taken care of when the other administrative duties of the principal in the running of a school are completed.

Mr. Bill Hohne has done an excellent job of setting up and administering such a program at Franklin middle school. At the present time plans are being considered to terminate the assistant principal's position at Franklin. I ask you as parents, school board and administrators to recognize the need and reconsider the cut of the position.

Mrs. Ardis Botner

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

by Gretchen Beito

Recently Lydia Dahlen, former director of nurses at Northwestern hospital, spoke to a church women's group. Reflecting on 49 years spent in the nursing profession, Lydia titled her talk: "Then and Now". In observance of 1987 Women's History Week, March 8 to 14, excerpts from her talk are published here.

LYDIA DAHLEN

I wanted to be a nurse ever since I was four and a half years old. My maternal grandmother was terminally ill, and so my mother employed a nurse to take care of her in our home in Detroit Lakes. I was fascinated by the nurse's starched apron that rustled as she walked. She was my ideal.

Thirteen years later my dream came true when I entered the St. Paul Hospital School of Nursing in 1923. It was quite a change too go from the protection of your own home into hospital life. The medical world was a different world. One does adjust, however, to the routine of a hospital. Everything was new to me, such as procedures like bed baths and enemas. The most difficult enema was the turpentine one called Nobles.

Poultices were used for everything from infected wounds to aches and pains. A poultice was made of something that would hold heat, like bread or cereal. A mustard poultice was used for bronchitis. It was made from flour and powered mustard. The formula was three tablespoons of flour mixed with a tablespoon of powered mustard and tepid water. This was placed on a piece of folded muslin. Vaseline was put next to the skin, then the poultice. It would be left on until the skin had a healthy pink. The patient would get a tingly feeling. However, if you left it on too long, a blister would form. When the poultice was removed the skin was washed with soap and water.

There was much isolation technique those first years, for typhoid fever was fairly common. The procedure used with bed pans and urinals seems antiquated today. It is hard to believe that they were placed into the sterilizer first, then boiled, then finally cleaned.

Our day was long, 12 hours, from 7 to 7. We would work on the floors for nine hours, go to class for two hours and have one hour free. Class was considered time off duty. This was practically the routine we followed for the next three years.

We had one-half day off once a week, a half-day off Sunday for either the afternoon or morning shift. We were given a total of eight weeks' vacation in three years.

Graduation Day was May 12, 1926. I was a graduate nurse. I had my white cap.

The following September I went to the State Capitol to take the state boards, which took two days. After I passed those, I was a registered nurse (R.N.).

What I would like to tell you about is then and now.

The procedures, methods and routines changed over the years. Then, only doctors took blood pressure. Now, R.N.'s, L.P.N.'s and students take them. There is hardly a bed bath given today — the procedure is self-help, shower or tub bath.

The old bed pan is almost a forgotten item. Most everyone has bathroom privileges.

Before World War II there were few actual medications or drugs. We administered a lot of aspirin. The cough medicine was a salty-tasting liquid called Brown's mixture. Cascara and milk of magnesia were other medications.

Few surgical procedures were done — they were limited to tonsillectomies, appendectomies and rivresection or a draining of abscesses, so the main role of a nurse was to help patients feel better. We were to help them cope with hospitalization. We were supposed to have something to say, to talk with them while we took care of them. Sometimes student nurses were required to write down what they had said.

If patients were critically ill or injured, I would stay with them, hold their hand, and let them know I was with them. Sometimes all I would do was to place my hand on their shoulder, and be there. Sometimes just holding their hand was enough. Other times it would help to talk to them. And, of course, there were the poultices and mustard plasters.

Nursesjgave each patient backrubs twice a day, and added a little extra T.L.C. A nurse was successful if she helped her patient relax. We felt successful if we saw him or her settle down and have a little nap. Reports were at a minimum — we were expected to do those things in three minutes.

Besides keeping an eye on patients, we would make rounds three times a day: first thing in the morning, again with the doctor and again after dinner.

The big change came after World War II. Nursing had to keep up with all the advances in medicine and surgery. Use of penicillin became routine. The intensive care units became a necessity. Tremendous strides were made in the nursing care of cariac patients.

Some of the new procedures I learned over the years were intravenous feeding, gastric section, tube feeding, oxygen therapy, early ambulation after surgery, giving medication by intravenous route.

Nowadays the student nurses have an eight-hour day. Their class time is part of their work time.

The list of "nows" grows and grows. The nurse, to keep active and in good standing, must keep up with seminars, workshops and return to school for further study.

I took off my cap in 1972 and I leave more "nows" to the nurses who are active today. The year is 1987.

Lydia's nursing career spanned 49 years and several continents.

The Dahlen family moved to Thief River Falls in 1912 where her father was vice president of People's State bank.

After Lydia graduated from the St. Paul Hospital School of Nursing, she worked in Chicago at Children's Memorial hospital on the cardiac floor. When World War II broke out, she enlisted and served in the Army Nurse Corps for four and a half years in the New Hebrides near Australia. After the war she worked at Ventura, CA, for a year. She then returned to Thief River Falls to work in the Bratrud clinic. She also cared for her mother who fractured her hip a few days after Lydia's return here.

When the Bratrud clinic closed in 1955, Lydia became Northwestern hsopital's in-service director. Ten years later she was promoted to director of nurses at Northwestern and served as director until her retirement in 1972. By then the last wing of the present hospital, the CNC unit, had been added.

Lydia says, "When I think of all the people who have crossed my life and that I have known, I am overwhelmed."

Daniel Drevlow, "A Time To Remember" memorial chairman for Pennington county.

"A memorial gift to the American Heart association is a meaningful way to express sympathy while also helping to continue the fight against America's number one killer — heart disease," Drevlow said. Gifts made to the memorial program are used to fund heart research, professional and public education and community programs in Minnesota.

SDA Principal Participates In School Evaluation

Duane Madden

Duane Madden, principal of the Thief River Falls Seventh-day Adventist elementary school was invited to participate recently in the evaluation of a parochial school in Grand Forks. Madden, who has 17 years of teaching experience, said that this was the first time he participated in a formal school evaluation as a member of the evaluation team. He joined Trudi Smith, a teacher from Fargo and Larry Hufisinger, educational superintendent for the North Dakota conference of Seventh-day Adventists in evaluating the Grand Forks SDA school.

"All schools in the adventist educational system are evaluated every three to four years," he commented. "The areas that we concentrated on were: facility and services offered, curriculum and instruction, philosophy and objectives, administration and finance, school resources and library. Commendations and recommendations were made to the school board based on those categories."

Madden continued by saying that the experience had been a beneficial one. "Visiting another school and meeting other teachers is a good way to get some ideas. And it serves as a reminder of things you can do in your own school. It also helps one appreciate one's own school and community," he said.

Krohn Herd Tops Pennington DHIA During January

Duane Krohn dairy herd at Viking led the Pennington county Dairy Herd Improvement association for January with an average of 60 pounds of milk, 3.23 test and 1.94 pounds of butterfat per day, according to Jerry Hamre and Sonia Iverson, supervisors.

Other herds in the top 10 with pounds of milk and pounds of butterfat listed respectively are the following:

Gene Nelson, 58.3 and 2.29; Mylo Carlson, 58.2 and 2.42; Walter Brothers, 52.2 and 1.86; Mark Hanson, 51.9 and 1.69; Marvin Koop, 48.3 and 1.67; Leonard Geske, 46.4, and 1.56; DKG Lundeen Farms, 45.4 and 1.48; James Muzzy, 44.0 and 3.95; and Merle & Perry Lundeen, 43.1 and 1.52.

Sincer herd averages involve all the cows in the herd, if a farmer has many dry cows, his production average will be low. There were 29 DHIA herds and two owner-sampler herds on test with the association in January.

North Sub-Region 8AA Basketball Tournament Match-Up . . .

Bemidji Beats TRF Girls 47-45 In Overtime Semifinal

A game fourth quarter Thief River Falls rally enabled the Prowlers to catch Bemidji, but the Lumberjacks weathered the storm and pulled out a 47-45 overtime victory in a 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament semifinals game Thursday.

It was just the second loss of the year for the Prowlers, who went 19-0 before losing their regular season finale, a 56-53 decision to Fergus Falls 13 days earlier in front of a standing room-only Lincoln High School gym crowd.

Thursday's post-season match-up didn't sell the place out, but another large crowd was on hand, and they saw a frantic finish as the Prowlers overcame a 12-point third quarter deficit to gain a 36-36 tie at the end of regulation time, fell behind by seven points at the start of the three-minute overtime, but took the Lumberjacks to the final horn before a game-ending turnover ended the dramatics.

It was a tough night offensively for the Prowlers, who trailed 10-5 at the end of the first quarter, were behind 18-14 at halftime and looked at a 34-22 deficit with 1:06 left in the third quarter.

Part of the problem, said Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer, was the Prowlers' inability to line up a scrimmage or two during the nearly two-week lay-off. "That was a major concern," he admitted. "The offense is the first thing to go in that situation. The defense was fine — we held them to 18 points in the first half but we couldn't do anything offensively."

Just like the Fergus Falls game, Thief River Falls had trouble at the free throw line. The Prowlers were just 2-for-10 at the charity stripe in the first half, including misses on the front end of four bonus opportunities. And they were a not-so-great 6-for-27 from the field (22 per cent).

That started to change down the stretch. A long jumper by guard Kelly Cornell with 24 seconds left in the third quarter, plus her 15-footer at the buzzer, gave the Thief River Falls offense a jump-start for the fourth quarter.

It became a full-scale comeback when the Prowlers put together a string of eight unanswered quarter-starting points to gain a 34-34 tie with 4:51 left as guard Brenda Russell dropped in a fast break lay-up, then sank four free throws that were followed by a long Cornell jumper for the tie.

Bemidji's Traci Fausher drove the base line with 3:13 to play to give the Lumberjacks a 36-34 lead, but Cindy Kruta, the third member of the three-guard Thief River Falls line-up, connected from the side with 1:43 on the clock for the tie.

There was no more scoring in regulation time, but certainly plenty of excitement. Fausher missed a bonus free throw try with 48 seconds left, and Thief River Falls controlled the rebound. The Prowlers held the ball until Cornell put one up from the outside. She missed, but the ball went out of bounds, and the Prowlers maintained possession with three seconds to go. Russell tried for the game-winner from long range at the buzzer, but missed the mark.

Bemidji took off in sprinter's speed to start the overtime as sophomore Becky Wilson grabbed the opening tip-off and drilled a 12-footer in a quick 11 seconds. She then stole the ball and banked a short shot off the glass for a 40-36 lead with just 26 seconds elapsed. Forty-eight seconds later Wilson was at the free throw line. She made the front end of the bonus opportunity, missed the second shot, but Bemidji controlled the rebound, and wound up with Diane Lindstrom back at the free throw line, where she made two shots for a 43-36 bulge with 1:39 left.

Cornell sank a short base line jumper on the next Thief River Falls possession, but Lindstrom added two more free throws when the Prowlers were forced into a must-foul situation for a 45-38 difference with only 1:20 to play.

Thief River Falls' Tammy Beito, a sophomore with little varsity experience, came up with a big basket off an offensive rebound with 1:10 showing, and Russell made two free throws for a now-close 45-42 game with 37 seconds remaining.

Wilson countered with two free throws with 31 seconds left for a 47-42 gap, but Thief River Falls still had a shot at it when Cornell swished a long jumper from the side with 25 seconds left, and Bemidji missed two bonus free throw opportunities in the final seconds.

Rushing the ball downcourt, Cornell drew a foul on a drive to the basket with four seconds to play. She made the first free throw, then purposely banged the second shot off the rim. The play worked when the ball was awarded to the Prowlers out of bounds after a quick scramble for the rebound.

There were still three seconds left in the 47-45 game for the Prowlers to have a shot at a possible tie, but they never got the chance. The in-bounds pass was mishandled and went out of bounds: Bemidji ball, two seconds left.

"Both times (end of regulation time and end of the overtime) we had it the way we wanted it," explained Schafer, talking about the way the play developed.

Wilson wound up with a game-high 19 points. Fausher had 16. Russell and Cornell scored 18 and 16 points, respectively, for the Prowlers.

Thief River Falls finished 17-for-66 from the field for the game (26 per cent) and 11-for-23 at the free throw line (48 per cent). "Against Class AA team, you've got to be hitting, both from the field and at the free throw line," noted Schafer. "You're not going to win many ball games shooting like we did the last two games. That's the most frustrating thing about the two losses because we shot decent all year."

Bemidji was 19-for-37 from the field (51 per cent) and 9-for-21 at the line (43 per cent). Thief River Falls had a 26-22 rebound edge, and Bemidji had more turnovers, 18-9.

Bemidji took a 12-9 record into the North Sub-Region 8AA finals Saturday against Fergus Falls. The Lumberjacks, who lost 45-40 and 45-35 regular season games to the Prowlers, lost five of their last six regular season starts before the No. 3-seeded Bemidji outfit eliminated the No. 2-seeded Thief River Falls squad.

TRF Boys Take On Lakers

Post-season play starts Tuesday for the Thief River Falls boys as the Prowlers travel to Detroit Lakes for a North Sub-Region 8AA high school basketball tournament game.

Coaches seeded the tournament draws in a Wednesday night vote, and the order of positions went as expected: 1 — Bemidji; 2 — Moorhead; 3 — Fergus Falls; 4 — Detroit Lakes; and 5 — Thief River Falls.

Tuesday's Thief River Falls-Detroit Lakes winner will move into the semifinals Thursday when either the Prowlers or Lakers will be at Bemidji. Fergus Falls drives to Moorhead for the other semifinal encounter.

Saturday's championship game will be played at a neutral site.

All games have 7:30 p.m. starting times. Tickets will be priced at $3.50 for adults and $2 for students.

Thief River Falls finished its 1986-87 regular season schedule with a 12-8 record, including four straight wins at the end of the year. But the Prowlers were just 1-4 against North Sub-Region 8AA competition, beating Bemidji 68-61 while losing to Moorhead 69-45, Detroit Lakes 67-62, Fergus Falls 54-41, and Bemidji 67-64.

That loss to Bemidji Feb. 13 put the Prowlers at 8-8 for the year after a 6-1 start, but Thief River Falls finished strong, collecting one-sided wins over East Grand Forks 72-50, Middle River 70-36 and Argyle 63-45, then knocking off a one-beaten Warren team 41-40 last Tuesday.

"We feel good about ourselves going into the tournament," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "We beat Bemidji, the No. 1 seed, at Bemidji, and when they came here Bemidji shot extremely well and still only beat us by three."

It's a wide-open North Sub-Region 8AA tournament field, figured Hunt.

Detroit Lakes will be a challenge, he warned. The Lakers have two top-notch individual players in 6-8 junior Paul Nickolauson and 6-2 senior James Landsem, who has been selected to play in the annual Metro vs. Outstate all-star game later this month. Those two were key performers' in the Lakers' win here Jan. 6. Landsem scored 21 points that night and Nickolauson had 20.

"We're going to have to play extremely well," Hunt said.

Nordics Win District 32A

Strong defensive play by Marshall County Central shut down Roseau Friday as the Nordics beat the Rams 47-31 in the District 32A girls high school basketball torunament finals at Stephen.

The Nordics' 21st straight win produced their first district title since 1981. They'll meet District 31A winner Plummer in the opening round Region 8A tournament semifinals Friday at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Both teams started slowly as Marshall County Central took an 8-4 first quarter lead. The Nordics' offense got untracked after that, but the Marshall County Central defense kept the Roseau offense under wraps all night, leading 24-9 at halftime and producing a 33-11 spread midway through the third quarter that wound up 38-23.

"The kids played well," said Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "They played some really good defense."

Offensively, Jodi Foss led the Nordics with 15 points, while Andrea Kragness netted 13 and Natalie Ueland had 10. Sara Huglen led Roseau with 10 points.

Marshall County Central was 18-for-44 from the field (40 per cent) and 10-for-22 at the free throw line (45 per cent). Roseau was 12-for-50 from the field (24 per cent) and 7-for-12 at the line (58 per cent). The Nordics had a 23-20 rebound edge. The turnovers were even at 15-apiece.

It was the third win for the Nordics over the Rams this winter, following regular season 50-40 and 57-52 decisions.

Cards Win First 31A Title

Playing the role of giant-killer for the second straight game, the Plummer girls won their first-ever District 31A high school basketball tournament title Saturday with a 41-33 win over Crookston at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Seeded No. 3 in the tournament despite a much better record than either No. 2-seeded East Grand Forks or No. 1-seeded Crookston, Plummer showed that its 18-2 record was for real by knocking off the Green Wave 55-53 in the Thursday semifinals, then took care of the Pirates to reach the 1987 Region 8A tournament field.

Key to the Cardinals' success against the Pirates was their defensive play, pointed out Plummer coach Rick Koivisto. "I thought we played pretty good defense," he mentioned. "We're not generally known for our defense — we normally just try to out-score people."

Crookston scored the first basket, but the Pirates' only other lead in the game came on a basket that ended the first half, making it a 17-16 game. The Cardinals had a 28-23 third quarter lead and controlled things most of the second half.

Janelle Konickson and Robin Brantl scored 14 and 13 points, respectively, for the winners. Lisa Rodella scored 13 points to lead Crookston.

Plummer was 14-for-35 from the field (40 per cent) and 13-for-27 at the free throw line (35 per cent). Crookston was 16-for-46 from the field (35 per cent) and 1-for-5 at the line. The smaller Cardinals were outrebounded 33-17. The Pirates had more turnovers, 16-12.

A Saturday afternoon movie matinee may have helped supply the underdog Plummer girls with a boost of confidence needed to upset Crookston 41-33 later that night in the District 31A high school basketball tournament championship game at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Head coach Rick Koivisto took the Cardinals to Grand Forks that afternoon to see newly-released "Hoosier," a movie based upon a true story about how a tiny town became a state champion in basketball-crazy Indiana.

Plummer took the role of that little Indiana town that night against the larger Crookston team, beating the No. 1-seeded Pirates 41-33 for their first-ever district title. Two nights earlier they knocked off No. 2-seeded East Grand Forks 55-53 to earn a championship game berth for the first time.

Region 8A tournament will be played Friday and Saturday back at UMC, with the 20-2 Cardinals taking on 21-1 Marshall County Central in an 8:45 p.m. semifinal game Friday night. Win-E-Mac goes against Littlefork-Big Falls in the 7 p.m. opener that night.

Prowlers Finish 19-2

A super season ended all too quickly for the Thief River Falls girls Thursday when the Prowlers lost a tough 47-45 North Sub-Region 8AA high school basketball tournament overtime game to Bemidji.

Coach Tom Schafer's Prowlers captured the attention of the community this winter by piecing together a 19-game winning streak. The fans filled the Lincoln gym to capacity for Thief River Falls' final regular season game Feb. 20 when the Prowlers were trying to complete a perfect 20-0 season, plus win the No. 1 seed in post-season tournament play.

They failed on both accounts, but they didn't go down without a fight, losing a close 56-53 contest to the Otters. It was a memorable evening for the Thief River Falls girls basketball program.

Another large crowd turned out Thursday night when the Prowlers hosted the Lumberjacks. Again the Prowlers failed to win, but they played hard and went out a class act. Officials Nick Neibauer and Dave Kjos complimented the Prowlers afterwards when they told friends they were very impressed with the players' exemplary conduct. They were winners, whether the scoreboard showed it, or not.

Thief River Falls finished 19-2, and the two losses were by a total of five points. It was a banner year, but the frustration of knowing that greater accomplishments were within reach still hangs over the team.

"I don't think we ever had a clearer shot at winning a sub-region or region title," acknowledged Schafer. "There were no dominant teams this year. We had a real shot."

Eagles Lose 53-52 In District 32A First Round . . .

Buzzer Shot Stops Grygla

First winning season in the 13-year history of the Grygla boys high school basketball team came to an abrupt end Thursday in the opening round of the 1987 District 32A tournament when Troy Boroski of Kittson County North hit an 18-foot shot at the final buzzer to beat the Eagles 53-52 at Roseau.

Grygla finished 11-9.

It looked like the Eagles' season would extend at least into the Saturday quarterfinals when Grygla sat on a 50-42 lead with 3:22 remaining in the game. But Kittson County North ran off nine straight points over the next two minutes for a 51-50 advantage. Grygla's Jason Engelstad put his team back on top 52-51 by hitting a basket with nine seconds left, only to have Boroski wheel around and throw in his game-winner under heavy guard on an in-bounds play at the end.

The two teams had played to a 6-6 first quarter draw. Grygla went ahead 21-20 at halftime and had a 38-34 third quarter lead.

It was a tough loss to take, admitted Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "We were pretty tight in the first quarter, but we started to come around and we did a lot of good things," he said.

Jim Diamond of Kittson County North led all scorers with 25 points. Teammate James Stewart had 12. Reed Engelstad led Grygla with 17 points, while Thor Smerek contributed 16 and Jason Engelstad netted 12.

The Eagles, who have won just three post-season games in history, went 25-for-51 from the field (49 per cent) and 2-for-8 at the free throw line. Kittson County North was 22-for-54 from the field (41 per cent) and 9-for-12 at the line. The Eagles had a 27-23 rebound edge. The turnovers were even at 12-apiece.

Tri-County . . . . . . . . . . . . . 50
Middle River . . . . . . . . . . . . 39

Middle River was within 41-39 of Tri-County with less than two minutes remaining in their Thursday night District 32A tournament opening round game at Roseau, but then surrendered nine unanswered points in a 50-39 loss to the Rabbits.

"We played a very good ball game," reported Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "I was very pleased with their performance. We played our best team game of the year. We played excellent defense; I was really proud of the way the kids played defense."

Tri-County had quarter leads of 10-7, 23-29 and 36-33. The Rabbits couldn't shake the underdog Skippers until Tri-County standout Brandon Bergeron broke loose for 10 of his game-high 17 points down the stretch. The 6-6 senior had been shut down most of the night by the tough Middle River defense, and four first half fouls. But he made it through the second half without drawing another personal despite plenty of body contact around the basket.

Down 41-39, Middle River ran into trouble when Tom Gullikson picked up his sixth personal foul with 1½ minutes left. Bergeron made both free throws, then added the field goal on the ensuing possession for a sudden 45-39 gap.

Rick Thompson joined Bergeron in double figures for the winners with 11 points. Brad Kilen led Middle River with 16 points, while Gullikson collected 13.

Middle River was 15-for-42 from the field (36 per cent) and 9-for-13 at the free throw line (69 per cent). Tri-County went 19-for-41 from the field (46 per cent) and 12-for-21 at the line (57 per cent). The smaller Skippers managed to win the rebound battle 27-24. They also topped the turnover charts 14-13.

Strandquist . . . . . . . . . . . . 55

Danni Halvorson went 6-for-6 at the free throw line down the stretch to keep upset-minded Strandquist at bay Thursday as Marshall County Central escaped with a 60-55 opening round District 32A tournament win.

Halvorson was the only Marshall County Central player hitting his free throws. The rest of the crew went 2-for-12 at the line. Strandquist was a productive 17-for-22.

"They (Strandquist) played very well," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We shot the ball well, but we weren't as aggressive as I would have liked, and the difference at the free throw line was a real key."

Marshall County Central was 26-for-50 from the field (52 per cent). Strandquist was 19-for-45 (42 per cent).

Halvorson had a game-high 22 points for the Nordics, who led at the quarter stops 16-12, 35-26 and 48-36. Kelly Dahl added 11 points to the winners' total. Palmer Reese scored 16 points for the Warriors. Brian Kasprowicz and Brian Larson both netted 11.

Stephen Beats MCC Boys . . .

Nordics End 11-11

A slow start cost Marshall County Central Saturday as the Nordics fell to Stephen 55-47 in the District 32A boys high school basketball tournament.

Stephen jumped out to an 18-6 first quarter lead, and led by as many as 14 points before Marshall County Central pulled within 24-19 at halftime. The Nordics cut the gap to 37-35 in the third quarter, and the lead changed hands several times in the early stages of the fourth quarter before Stephen took control against the tiring Nordics.

"We just didn't come out of the blocks very well," explained Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "That was really disappointing, considering what was at stake. Just to catch up was quite an accomplishment — they really played hard. But it just took to much out of us to catch up. We didn't have anything left."

Danni Halvorson led Marshall County Central with 14 points, while Darin Rokke netted 13 and Lee Pemberton had 10. Chad Kuznia of Stephen matched Halvorson's 14 points, with Dustin Pagnac getting 12 and Matt Swendseid 10. Pagnac scored 10 of his 12 points in the Tigers' first quarter attack when they were 9-for-11 from the field.

"The first - quarter was devastating," said Ueland.

Stephen wound up 21-for-34 from the field for the game (62 per cent), and whipped Marshall County Central on the boards 35-17. The Tigers were 17-for-38 from the field (45 per cent). At the free throw line, Marshall County Central was 13-for-17 (76 per cent), and Stephen was 13-for-20, (65 per cent). The Nordics topped the turnover charts 17-14.

Marshall County Central finished the year at .500. The 55-47 season-ending loss to Stephen was close to matching a 55-42 final when the Tigers beat the Nordics in a Feb. 20 regular season meeting.

Cardinals Win District 31A Semifinal Game 55-53 . . .

Plummer Girls Beat EGF

Plummer came up with a major athletic accomplishment Thursday by beating East Grand Forks 55-53 in the 1987 District 31A girls high school basketball tournament semifinals at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

It was the Cardinals' fifth semifinal appearance, but their first win ever at that level of post-season play. And it came against one of the two District 31A "Big Schools," the defending Region 8A champion Green Wave, a runner-up finisher at the 1986 Minnesota Class A state tournament.

The other half of the Big Two combination — Crookston — awaited Plummer in the Saturday night finals at UMC. The Pirates beat Oslo 52-37 in the first Thursday semifinal.

"I thought we played pretty well," said Plummer coach Rick Koivisto, whose team had quarter leads of 17-16, 38-30 and 50-47. The Cardinals led by as much as 46-33 at one point in the third quarter by forcing East Grand Forks mistakes with an effective press, and by shooting well from the field and at the free throw line.

The momentum changed in the fourth quarter, though, when Plummer went to a delay game. It would have worked well, explained Koivisto, but the Cardinals made just three of 13 fourth quarter free throws after backing the Green Wave into a must-foul situation.

East Grand Forks never did take the lead, however. "That was the key," acknowledged Koivisto. "We were never behind."

Both sides had three double figure scorers. Janelle Konickson led the Cardinals with 16 points, while Renae Walter netted 12 and Robin Brantl had 11. Sara Syvertson matched Konickson's 16 points, while Mary Beth Zeleny had 14 and Diana Chase contributed 10.

Plummer was 22-for-47 from the field (47 per cent) and 11-for-24 at the free throw line (46 per cent) after an 8-for-10 first half at the line. East Grand Forks was 23-for-54 from the field (43 per cent) and 7-for-16 at the line (44 per cent). The Green Wave had a 31-22 rebound advantage, and also had more turnovers, 17-12.

Scoring

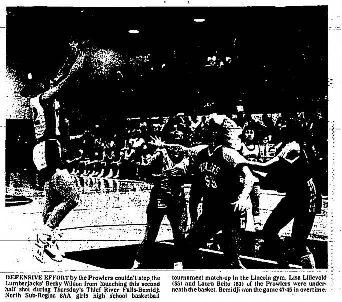
EGF — Sara Syvertson 16, Diana Chase 10, Mary Beth Zeleny 14, Nicole Streit 4, Denise Hawthorne 9.



DEFENSIVE EFFORT by the Prowlers couldn't stop the Lumberjacks' Becky Wilson from launching this second half shot during Thursday's Thief River Falls-Bemidji North Sub-Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament match-up in the Lincoln gym. Lisa Lillevold (55) and Laura Beito (53) of the Prowlers were underneath the basket. Bemidji won the game 47-45 in overtime.

District 31A Boys Start Tournament Play . . .

Plummer, Goodridge Win Friday

Plummer doubled East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 20-10 in the first quarter Friday and breezed to a 72-41 win in the opening round of the 1987 District 31A boys high school basketball tournament.

Coach Jim Baron started substituting early as the Cardinals took a 40-16 halftime lead. They were ahead 54-28 as the third quarter ended.

Shane Freyholtz scored 14 points for the winners, while Roger Carlson netted 13, Wade Grinde 10, and Dan Wichterman 10. Brian Wavra scored 14 points for the Eagles.

The 72-41 final was close to duplicating a 72-44 Plummer win the last time the teams met Jan. 6. The Cardinals will take a 15-5 record into the District 31A quarterfinals tonight (Monday) against Climax, an 8:45 p.m. game at Warren.

Plummer was 30-for-58 from the field (52 per cent) and 12-for-22 at the free throw line (55 per cent). Sacred Heart was just 11-for-35 from the field (31 per cent) and 19-for-28 at the line (68 per cent). Plummer had a 45-24 rebound advantage. Sacred Heart topped the turnover figures 18-17.

Goodridge gained possession with 25 seconds left in the game and worked the ball for the final shot. "The kids played it to perfection," pointed out Goodridge coach John Rahn.

Groven finished the game with 29 points, along with 11 rebounds. Roger Coan scored 11 points for the Huskies, while Tommi Quam had a 10-point, 10-rebound game. Roy Huot led Red Lake Falls with 15 points.

Red Lake Falls had an 18-12 first quarter lead and a 29-27 halftime edge. Goodridge pulled within 40-39 in the third quarter.

Goodridge was 21-for-59 from the field (36 per cent) and 11-for-11 at the free throw line (73 per cent). Red Lake Falls was 21-for-39 from the field (54 per cent), but the Eagles were limited to 12 second half field goal attempts, hitting nine of them, to go along with a 5-for-8 free throw effort after intermission.

The Huskies are just 5-15, but they've won three of their last four outings, including a 49-47 double-overtime win over Red Lake Falls in the 1986-87 regular season finale a week before their post-season meeting.

Condemned Homes In TRF To Be Taken Down

Thief River Falls city council at its Tuesday night meeting passed a motion to enter into an agreement with First Federal savings and loan association in Thief River Falls to clean up and remove condemned houses in Thief River Falls. They also decided to install a barricade above the dam, and called for bids on repairs to the power plant, which could cost as much as $20,000.

An agreement between Thief River Falls and First Federal stipulates that the city will be allowed to enter upon property now held by First Federal and remove condemned houses. Cost of removing the condemned houses, located at 932 North Horace avenue and 826 North Dewey, will be assessed to the real estate taxes on the property. The agreement further states that the city shall remove the houses in a safe and proper manner and any basement areas shall be backfilled and leveled to protect persons upon the premises.

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser, representing the public safety committee Tuesday night, proposed that a safety barricade be installed above the dam on Horace avenue south.

Froschheiser said the safety committee recommended that the city install posts with cable that has reflectorized warning markers attached, back from the bank approximately 30 feet. In addition he requested that the city park department plant some type of fast growing tree on the bank area so that the natural barricade would eventually be replaced.

The plan was praised by council members who have heard requests from the public to improve safety at the steep bank and turn it into a small recreation area. In addition to the safety improvements, plans are being made to create a foot path in the area and possibly an observation area with a railing.

After studying the situation at the power plant in Thief River Falls, utility committee chairman Ken Murphy said cracks and problems seen in the structure were due to settling and the power plant is now stable, but repairs need to be made. Murphy recommended money from the contingency fund agreed to in the budget, be used to fund the project. He estimated that the "face lifting" project would cost between $18,000 and $20,000.

Jim Walker of Stewart and Walker, the firm hired to serve the city's interests, agreed with Murphy's assessment, but added that the work is not just the fixing of a few cracks. Walker said the repairs would be "a tough little job" because it requires some specialty work.

Work at the power plant would

Northwest Medical Center Less Affected, But . . .

Rural Hospitals Hurt By Medicare Payment Plan

While many of Minnesota's small and rural hospitals are in severe financial jeopardy because of inequities in Medicare's prospective payment system, Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls is affected to a lesser extent than a number of others, according to Richard Spyhalski, president.

The prospective payment system of Medicare pays rural hospitals less than urban hospitals for the same care, and this has been a severe blow to the smaller medical facilities, according to a special task force of the Minnesota Hospital association (MHA).

"Only areas which have 50,000 or larger populations are considered urban areas under the Medicare system," Spyhalski said. "While Northwest Medical center is part of the rural hospital group which receives smaller payments, we have more resources in this medical community to counter that situation. Among these are the availibility of medical specialties in addition to family practitioners and therefore we receive referrals from other physicians and hospitals."

Spyhalski said that the payment disparity certainly has an impact on the hospital, but not to the extent that hsopitals served only by family practitioners are affected. He said he believed the basis for the Medicare disparity was flawed information compiled by the agency in its compilation of medical costs. Among situations not considered by the agency was that rural hospitals have more part-time help and that this situation affected the cost averaging.

Patient load at Northwest Medical center has declined annually as the community has experienced population loss and the effects of health maintenance organizations and the diagnostic related groups (DRG) program of Medicare which prescribes length of hospital stay for specified procedures. New medical technology which reduces length of hospital stay or permits treatment on an out-patient basis has also reduced the patient load.

MHA created a small, rural task force in the fall of 1986 to study the problems of rural hospitals. One of the major conclusions of the task force is that Medicare's practice of paying rural hospitals less than urban hospitals solely on the basis of

'87 Spring Road Restrictions To Begin On Friday

Spring road restrictions for the Minnesota north zone will become effective on Friday, according to Bob Wolfe, Mn-DOT district engineer in Bemidji.

Minnesota north zone includes all state trunk highways north of Highways 10, 210 and 39, passing through Moorhead, Brainerd and Duluth. Spring road restrictions are already in effect in other areas of the state.

Wolfe said that fewer roads will be posted this year than in previous years. Only 26 per cent of the state highways will be posted in northwest Minnesota this year compared with 58 per cent that were posted last year. Roads not posted will carry the normal 10-ton capacity.

Anyone wanting additional information, including the 1987 spring road restriction map, should contact the Mn-DOT permit office in Crookston (218) 281-3503 or Bemidji (218) 755-2942.

Co. Commissioners Hold Back Action On Elm Lake Project

Pennington county commissioners held a meeting Tuesday in the court house in Thief River Falls. Among the many items discussed were a renewal contract with Life Star ambulance, the Elm Lake project, a civil defense grant and the posting of load limits.

Commissioners did not take any action for or against the Elm Lake project. DelRay Larson, Marshall county commissioner, told the Pennington county commissioners that Marshall county had passed a resolution against the project. He noted that several townships had also raised objections and adopted formal resolutions against the project. He was at the meeting to learn what Pennington county commissioners thought of the project. The commissioners, however, did not take any action for or against the project.

Renewal of a contract which would qualify Life-Star ambulance for funds from the Quin county board of health, was tabled until the next meeting when comments could be presented by Sheriff Bob Wold. Ken Olson, county auditor mentioned that Life-Star ambulance was also considering hiring two new paramedics.

County Engineer Wayne Olson was instructed by the commissioners to start posting load limits on roads. The commissioners also instructed the engineer and auditor to advertise for re-graveling bids to be opened on April 14 at 11 a.m. The re-graveling is for county roads.

A purchase order for 12 railroad box car floors was approved. The box-car floors are used for bridges across small ditches. The county auditor said that a stable bridge can be created from combining two box-car floors. Pennington county has used box-car floors for similar projects in the past year. The auditor said that by using box-car floors the county will save a lot of money.

Former Sheriff Chuck Richards, current civil defense director, appeared before the commissioners to request the signing of an agreement which would complete a re-application for funds totaling $4,000 from the Minnesota department of public safety under the emergency management association agreement.

The commissioners also passed a motion to start writing a grant application for equipment to do complete composting at Future Fuel. The

TRF School Board Reviews Projected Enrollment Drop

Projected drop in enrollment for the 1987-88 school year received extended discussion Monday evening at the board of education meeting for School District 564 in Thief River Falls.

Following the discussion, the board indicated by straw vote that the next year's budget should be based on an enrollment of 2,770 pupil units. That figure would be about 98 pupil units less than projected in budgeting for the 1986-87 school year, and such a drop in enrollment would translate into a reduction of well over $200,000 in state foundation aid.

Supt. Leo Ruberto reviewed his proposed list of budget cuts for 1987-88 which was requested by the board at its last meeting and which totals $237,430. Formal resolutions regarding these cuts will be presented for action by the board at the next meeting.

Agreement was approved with the Thief River Falls Education association to change the date for formal approval of the 1987-88 school calendar to May 1. Delay is due to the legislature's reconsideration of the mandatory school opening date after Labor day.

The administration was authorized to post for a high school assistant boys basketball coach and boys tennis coach for the 1986-87 year. Lynn Dyer was assigned as head boys and girls cross country coach at the high school. Melinda Treitline was hired as temporary business department aide.

Proposed cuts totaling $267,247 at the AVTI for the 1987-88 school year were proposed. Approval was given to expand approximately $425 to send the Franklin school Mathcounts team to the state competition.

Next meeting of the board will be March 23 at 7:30 p.m. in the board room following a meet and confer session at 7 p.m.

GIRL SCOUTS in Thief River Falls and their leaders gathered at Redeemer Lutheran church Monday evening for their annual banquet. Among awards presented were a 10-year leadership pin to Kittie Cornell and recognition to Shelly Vedbraaten for having sold over 2,000 boxes of cookies during her eight years in the scouting program. Shelly and Andrea Erickson were also recognized for being representatives of Minnesota at the special 75th anniversary observance of Girl scouts in Washington, DC.

Rural Hospitals Hurt By Medicare Payment Plan

geography is unfair and should be modified to better recognize each hospital's cost-of-doing-business.

The report notes that since the prospective payment system began in 1983, all hospitals, urban and rural, have been forced to live with inadequate Medicare payments and annual rate increases that have failed to match hospitals' increased costs. The urban-rural distinction only intensifies the problem for small, rural hospitals.

The findings and recommendations of the task force were released Monday in Minneapolis at a joint press conference with Sen. David Durenberger. At the press conference, Sen. Durenberger announced his plans to introduce in the Senate on Tuesday the rural health services transition act of 1987, a bill that would provide annual grants of up to $50,000 to small, rural hospitals to help them implement new types of health services in their communities.

The small, rural task force report underscores the severe financial stress faced by many of Minnesota's small and rural hospitals:

+ A total of 34 hospitals have lost money at least four out of the last eight years; 29 are hospitals located in communities of less than 6,000 people;

+ Nearly one-third of Minnesota's hospitals with less than 50 beds suffer net income losses each year;

+ In 1985, 70 per cent of all hospitals with less than 100 beds either lost money or barely broke even in their primary business of inpatient hospital care.

In the last few years, four small and rural hospitals have closed, the most recent of which was Community Memorial hospital, Clarkfield, in February. The large financial losses suffered by the hospital and low occupancy rates were two of the main reasons for its closure.

"The potential for increased hospital closures in rural areas is great," noted Carol Kiecker, chairman of the task force and regional vice president of the Health Central system.

Medicare, the federal program that pays for the health care of the elderly, represents more than 50 per cent of the average small, rural hospital's business. "But Medicare is not the only payer to have such an adverse affect on small, rural hospitals," Kiecker noted. "Medicaid, the state program which pays for care for the poor, typically pays hospitals only 70 cents for every dollar billed. Fifty-two rural hospitals are paid less than 65 cents on the dollar by Medicaid."

Although recommendations for more equitable payment figure prominently in the task force report, it also encourages small, rural hospitals to develop affiliations with larger hospitals or with other health care providers in their communities.

"Small and rural hospitals aren't expecting a bail-out from anyone," Kiecker said. "All we are asking for is fair treatment."

Rural hospitals typically are one of the largest employers in their communities, and the loss of a hospital can have a devastating economic impact on a community, Kiecker noted.

"But the even greater question is one of continued access to health care services for rural Minnesotans," she added.

Condemned Homes In TRF To Be Taken Down

include repairs due to erosion, minor settlement cracks, drainage and some modifications to the roof and repairs to a rusted-out door. In addition precautions would be taken to ensure that future problems with erosion would not take place.

Councilman Milan Borsheim, acting mayor in the absence of Mayor Bob Carlson, said he was willing to agree that parts of the repair work would require specialty work, but he thought it was ridiculous when they keep adding little items to the list which could be done by skilled workers at the power plant.

A motion to call for bids, which could be rejected or accepted, on April 22 was passed by the council.

During the short meeting Tuesday night, the council agreed to sign and return a copy of the new compliance agreement between the city and the Minnesota department of health concerning the water treatment plant.

Repairs to the water treatment plant to bring it into compliance with current regulations have been considered. Failure to come into compliance could mean fines or a lawsuit filed by the federal Environmental Protection agency, which monitors water safety levels. The water treatment plant in Thief River Falls has not been able to come into compliance with state or federal regulations on water turbidity — fine suspended particles found in drinking water.

Enterprise zone credit applications for three local businesses were accepted Tuesday night. The council accepted the application of High Performance Engineering for $4,500; Land O'Lakes, Inc. (Bridgeman's) for $5,503; and Altra Power battery company for $2,520. Acceptance of the applications guarantees refunds in the amount requested from the State of Minnesota.

Because of the governor's proposed legislation, which would phase out the enterprize zone credit system, Don Stewart, community development director, said hurried enterprise zone credit agreements were made with Future Fuel, Inc. and High Performaance Engineering. The agreements were accepted in a motion which granted the mayor and city clerk permission to execute the agreements.

A resolution calling for a continuation of the essential air service program was also approved. The city council accepted a resolution that Thief River Falls supports the enactment of a new and revised essential air service program which will assure more adequate service and fuller traffic development at small cities and provide for greater participation by local interests developing and carrying out such a program. The resolution, which is being circulated among many small cities, responds to an attempt to terminate the program before it runs out in two years.

In other business the council approved a bill from the Pennington county law enforcement center of $39,226.16; approved a Minnesota municipal money market fund joint powers resolution; decided to put up for sale as surplus property a 1972 Chevrolet pickup; approved the appointment of Joe Borchardt to replace Barry Fellman as arson inspector on the fire department beginning April 1 when Fellman plans to retire; and approved a motion to grant Northern Woodwork $23,950 on terms of six per cent interest for a 10-year period according to a revolving loan fund application.

Co. Commissioners Hold Action On Elm Lake Project

commissioners are looking for total grant monies for the project.

In other business the commissioners: agreed to abatements and corrections in tax statements for Hydra Mac Inc., Norton Nelson life estate and Jim Haugen; agreed to sell an IBM 34 computer to the highest bidder ($1,000); opened bids for a Tandem truck which were all rejected and not be re-bid; granted a Millyard subdivision plot correction for area occupied by Nash Finch property and the Thief River Falls water treatment plant.

Provider Network Is Proposed By Medical Ass'n.

James F. Knapp of Detroit Lakes, president of the Minnesota Medical association (MMA), has committed the MMA in testimony before the House appropriations subcommittee on health and human services to work closely with the Minnesota department of human services and Minnesota counties to establish a primary provider network to serve the medical needs of needy patients covered by Medicaid.

"Such a network," Knapp said, "would assure that Medicaid patients receive appropriate medical care while at the same time respond to the state's budget problems by reducing program costs."

The proposal was prompted by MMA's concerns that Medicaid patients might suffer if Governor Rudy Perpich's proposed $10 million cut in Medicaid is enacted by the legislature. Medicaid benefits are provided to the aged, blind, disabled and AFDC recipients.

Goals of MMA's plan would be to preserve the benefits of the doctor-patient relationship and to avoid the problems of both over and under-utilization of services by patients. The primary provider network also allows counties to adapt the program to meet the needs of its particular patient population. MMA's proposal offers the state and the counties another option to utilize in providing medical care to Medicaid patients.

For the past five years, Itasca county has provided a similar program to Medicaid patients and it may serve as a model for organizing similar plans throughout the state. Such model plans in other states have achieved up to 10 per cent savings in Medicaid costs.

Governor Rudy Perpich, the Minnesota department of human services, provider groups and county representatives will be invited to a series of meetings during the next six weeks to work out operational details of the proposed network.

Plan Tornado Awareness Week For March 15-21

Tornado awareness will be stressed during Minnesota Tornado Awareness week, March 15-21, as proclaimed by Governor Rudy Perpich.

A statewide tornado drill has been scheduled for Thursday, March 19, according to emergency services director Tom Motherway of the Minnesota department of public safety. This is the seventh annual statewide drill to be held.

Minnesota division of emergency services, in cooperation with the National Weather service and the American Red Cross, has developed the schedule for the drill. Local government, health care facilities, business and industry and more than 450 school districts throughout the state will be using this occasion to test their emergency plans and procedures prior to the onset of the severe weather season.

The National Weather service forecast office will initiate the drill by issuing a test "tornado watch" message at 8 a.m. on March 19. The statewide emergency broadcast system (EBS) quarterly test will be conducted at 1:15 p.m. to coincide with the drill. Individuals should monitor their local EBS station for a special tornado awareness message at that time. At 1:21 p.m. the National Weather service will issue a test "tornado warning" message and all communities will activate their outdoor warning systems. At that time, facilities all across the state will be testing their emergency plans.

It is important to remember that a tornado watch means that weather conditions are favorable for the development of tornadoes. A tornado warning means that a tornado has actually been sighted and the public should take cover. When a tornado warning is issued, warning sirens in the affected area are sounded.

The general public should use this occasion to increase awareness of these storms and review the procedures to be followed at home. Persons wishing information regarding tornado and severe thunderstorm safety rules, should contact their local Emergency Management Office, or write to the Division of Emergency Services, B-5 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

FmHA To Sell Properties Acquired From Borrowers

After a two year moratorium Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has been authorized to sell their farm inventory property acquired by the agency from borrowers, according to Russ Bjorhus, state director for FmHA in Minnesota. There are presently 184 farm properties owned by the agency of which 40 are small tracts of under 38 acres in size.

The agency is required first to offer inventory property to previous owners to buy or to lease with an option to buy. If the property is suitable for the farm ownership program, it may be sold on terms to an eligible farmer. Special emphasis will be given to beginning farmers who are eligible for the farm ownership program.

Farms that are not suitable for the farm ownership program will be sold as surplus property by advertisement for cash or on terms available to ineligible applicants.

All inventory farm properties will be for sale, but sales will be spread throughout the year to minimize any influence on the local real estate markets.

Genereux Attends National Farmers Union Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Genereux of Thief River Falls have returned from attendance at the 85th annual convention of the National Farmers Union conducted March 1-4 at Fort Worth, TX, where they were among more than 1,000 members and delegates.

Policies adopted at the convention call for national farm policy to have a goal of assuring family farm producers a "reasonable livelihood." A six-point program recommended to replace current law was adopted as follows:

(1) Long term farm programs must replace short-term law.

(2) Minimum price support levels should be established at either 110 per cent of production costs or 75 per cent of parity.

(3) Producers should be given an opportunity to vote on a mandatory market management system—including quotas and certificates.

(4) A national emergency food reserve should be isolated from the marketplace.

(5) The role of USDA's Commodity Credit corporation should include negotiations of long-term aggeements with importing nations.

(6) And "tiered marketing quotas, set-asides and price supports, together with realistic overall and per-program limitations" must be required so that "the principal assistance is targeted to family-scale farming operations."

While endorsing the concepts of the Harkin-Gephardt farm bill, the convention left the door open for seeking other improvements in national farm policy, according to Cy Carpenter, formerly of Thief River Falls, president of the more than 250,000 family member organization.

In an address to the convention, Save the Family Farm Act cosponsor Cong. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said he's worried about the country and wants to "make America first again." He called current agricultural policy a total failure, noting President Reagan has spent more on farm programs than all previous administrations combined.

"Farmers are not interested in welfare," Gephardt said, "farmers want a fair price, and that's what we can get." He stressed the debt restructuring and supply management ingredients in the bill, and said it would give farmers a chance to work through their problems.

Triplett Explains Changes In Proposed State Tax Law

For most of us, "taxes" means income taxes. No other type of tax — not sales tax, gas tax or even property tax (although that one runs a close second), brings forth as strong a reaction from so many people as the income tax does, states Tom Triplett, Minnesota commissioner of revenue.

It's not hard to understand why. For one thing, the income tax is big. It can take a sizeable chunk out of our paychecks each month, while the sales tax, for example, is collected a few pennies at a time. For another, its complexities are impossible to excape. Though many claim that Minnesota's property tax is even more complex, few of us are forced to deal with its system of 60-plus classifications.

But all of us are forced to deal with the more than 100 lines of the present state and federal income tax forms, even though most poeple will use only 25 or 30. What's more, even people who end up owing no tax must wrestle with income tax forms and instructions in order to get their refunds. Well over two million Minnesotans file state income tax returns each year, and, from what I've been hearing, almost every one of them is interested in income tax reform — and with good reason.

Minnesota's income tax, in spite of a major tax cut enacted in 1985, is still among the 10 highest in the nation. And, while the 1985 law change simplified the state income tax by bringing it into closer conformity with the federal income tax, it is still too complicated.

Governor Perpich's tax reform plan, if passed into law, will change that.

The key feature of the governor's income tax proposal is near-total conformity with the new, 1986 federal tax law. Starting this year, that law will greatly increase the fairness of the federal income tax by eliminating loopholes and special tax breaks, Triplett said. Here's an example of the difference between the old law and the new one: under the old law, someone who earned $25,000 in wages paid tax on the full amount, while a person who made $25,000 profit from the sale of stock paid tax on only $10,000. Each of them received $25,000, but the wage earner paid tax on all of his or her earnings, while the person who sold the stock paid tax on only 40 per cent of the profits from that sale.

The old law was clearly unfair, because it failed to treat people equally when they were equally able to pay. Just as the new federal law corrects that injustice for federal income tax payers, Governor Perpich's tax plan will do the same thing for state income tax payers.

Fewer deductions and exclusions will also mean a simpler tax. Under the reform plan, over two-thirds of all filers will be able to use a five-line short form; those who cannot use the short form will find that the standard form has been cut from 30 lines on two pages to 18 lines on one page.

But the greatest benefit of eliminating tax breaks is that the tax rates can be reduced substantially for everyone, Triplett said. That's because every time the state gave a tax break to one group, it lost revenue. That revenue had to be made up somehow — and historically, that has meant raising the rates. Higher rates have meant higher tax bills for those who couldn't take advantage of those breaks. But if we eliminate loopholes and tax more kinds of income, we will be able to bring in more revenue at the same time we reduce the overall rates for everyone.

The governor's reform plan cuts the top tax rate from 14 to 8 per cent. And even though more items will be taxed, three-quarters of our citizens will pay equal or lower taxes, and 125,000 of those with the lowest incomes will owe no tax at all.

In addition, the plan will follow the federal model and add a head-of-household tax table to provide relief for Minnesota's single-parent families.

When Governor Perpich first asked me to develop a plan for tax reform for Minnesota, he established six goals: fairness, competitiveness, stability, simplicity, accountability and enforceability.

How well does the income tax proposal measure up? Lower rates will make us more competitive. Broadening the tax base by eliminating loopholes will add stability and help ensure accountability. A simpler system will allow for greater enforceability. But finally, I believe that the two most important tests for an income tax plan are those of fairness and simplicity. Remember that Minnesota's income tax system is a "do-it-yourself" system; that is, we each are required to determine our proper tax and file our own returns. If government requires honesty in tax matters from its citizens, it owes them fairness above all, in a tax law that is both easy to understand and to obey.

The income tax reform measure that Governor Perpich is proposing will provide exactly that.

LO'L Promotes Cooperation To Assure Future

"The last decade of heart-breaking prices and overwhelming surpluses have convinced American farmers and agribusiness people that it isn't enough to be the best farmers or the best managers," said Claire Sandness, chairman of the board of Land O'Lakes, Inc., speaking at the cooperative's 65th annual meeting in Minneapolis on February 24.

"Today's agriculture demands that we make our voice heard where it counts, in Washington and in our state legislatures," he said. "And it demands that we envision a new future for cooperatives."

Sandness outlined the "new future" that Land O'Lakes board and management envision for cooperatives. He said Land O'Lakes has pledged to "be open to listen to any proposal and ready to enter negotiations" with other interested parties.

"On the surface, this may sound like an obvious statement. It makes good business sense to consider options," he said, "but cooperatives have been notorious for hanging onto their traditions for too long. This inability to let go has rung the death knell for many organizations.

"Being open to listen to any proposal and ready to enter negotiations means we are willing to adapt, to share, to fill a need not being met by cooperatives. In short, it means we will cooperate."

Sandness illustrated this concept of cooperation among cooperatives with Land O'Lakes' recent joint venture with Cenex, a regional farm supply cooperative based in Iver Grove Hieghts. The two cooperatives combined their farm supply divisions in order to reduce duplication in their trade territories and improve service and returns to members.

"What makes me especially proud is that this joint venture was created out of a new spirit of cooperation between two financially strong, independent cooperatives," Sandness said.

He added that as the changes in agriculture have accelerated in the past 50 years, so will the changes in cooperatives come at a faster and faster pace.

These changes in cooperatives will dictate a change in structure, making them more flexible, open-ended and attractive partners for joint ventures, partnerships and consolidations which he says will mark cooperative business operations in the future.

"Like an umbrella, this new vision of the cooperative system can open to encompass any facet of cooperative business: feed, agronomy, energy, grain marketing, dairy and more," he said.

"I think there's tremendous room for growth in the entire cooperative system in this country. And the umbrella concept conceived by Land O'Lakes is a most promising way for us to achieve that potential."

In addition to drawings, she has produced three dimensional pieces, some of which are currently on exhibit at the Joe and Emily Lowe art gallery. A reception for Waale was held at the Gallery last Thursday.

Marilyn Bannerman Named Artist Of Month At Library

This months artist of the month, sponsored by the Thief River Falls community arts council, is Marilyn Bannerman.

Marilyn started painting two years ago after an injury as a way to keep busy. It was something she had always wanted to try, but had never found time for. "I have always loved paintings and enjoyed anyone who could do them."

Her studio is her kitchen table, but she has had good training. She has spent time painting with Helen Knutson of Thorholt. Marilyn spent several weekends with her friend in Thorholt experimenting with different painting techniques. She has also taken lessons in Fargo, Grand Forks, and in Thief River Falls to help increase her abilities.

Marilyn's inspiration comes from varied sources including books, photographs, sunrises, frost and other events in nature. She works best with oil paint and chalk but would like to learn to use acrylics more effectively.

Her new found talent in painting has made her enjoy nature and her surroundings more. "Painting makes me really look at things. Things I really have never looked at before."

Marilyn's family is very supportive. They are her best critics, telling her what project they like best with suggestions for improvements. She has four daughters — Cari, 20, Julie, 19, Rae Ann, 15, and Nancy, 13.

Marilyn's paintings will be on display at the Northwest Regional library in Thief River Falls throughout the month of March.

MARILYN BANNERMAN of Thief River Falls was named artist of the month. Her favorite oil paintings and chalk drawings are on display at the public library in Thief River Falls throughout March.

Activities For Kids And Dads Planned Monday

Early childhood family education department in the Thief River Falls schools has planned a special session for kids and their dads (uncles, grandpas or special friends) Monday from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. For ages up to 30 months and their dads, activities include climbing, "baby sand," an obstacle course, "bunny rabbit" activities and more.

Dads, this is your special time to foster the father-child relationship. Surveys show that a man's interaction with children is usually centered around games and play — and that's what this evening offers you," states program director Joyce Brandt.

March Is Month For Re-Stocking Of Food Shelves

More than 3,400 church congregations, school children, businesses, the food industry, print and broadcast media, community organizations and some 280 emergency foodshelves across the state will join in March to re-stock supplies of groceries for the late spring and summer months. The goal for the annual March campaign is 4.8 million pounds of food or cash to buy food for the hungry.

In 1986, some 1,068,000 individual food orders were distributed by Minnesota's foodshelves; that's more than a million full grocery sacks. More than half of the recipients of the donated food are young children.

There are at least 280 public-access foodshelves in Minnesota serving persons who find themselves without money and without food to make meals. Originally designed to be crisis assistance, it is becoming more than a one-time service for many, including growing numbers of the working poor. Of those coming to the foodshelves, 90 per cent have family incomes below $800 per month, with 60 per cent having family incomes below $500 per month. In these distressed families, adults and children are involuntarily skipping meals during the month.

Hot meals programs and USDA commodities distribution give additional help to many, including some of those who are helped by foodshelves. Cash value on the donated food distribution in Minnesota in 1986 might be in the neighborhood of $35 to $36 million: $16 million for foodshelves, $16 million for commodities and another $3 million for hot meals, snacks and other emergency food assistance.

During the entire month of March communities in every region of the state will be working to re-stock their local pantries. A diverse schedule of events has been planned, providing a means of participating for everyone. Local media is fulfilling a vital role in getting the news out and helping to promote community efforts.

The food industry has been challenged to contribute 1,000,000 pounds of products to supplement the supplies gathered in the local foodshelves. Processors and distributors will be delivering or pledging food all during the month.

Minnesota FoodShare — "Food First and For All" — is the only campaign of its kind in the United States. At a time when other parts of the country are experiencing difficulties obtaining enough support for food assistance efforts, Minnesotans continue with strong, steady commitment to their neighbors in every corner of the state. The FoodShare drive will supply about one-third of the year's total needs, with small drives providing on-going support throughout the year on behalf of the foodshelves.

FoodShare encourages food and cash donations be made directly to local emergency foodshelves. Organizations wishing information on locations throughout the state may telephone (612) 870-3660. Those wishing cash donations distributed among all the participating foodshelves may forward their contributions to the FoodShare office: 122 West Franklin Avenue, Room 218, Minneapolis, MN 55404. Pormotional materials are available.

Sikorski Would Roll Back Postal Rates For Papers

Congressman Gerry Sikorski has introduced legislation to roll back a sharp increase in postal rates that he says could force many small Minnesota newspapers out of business.

"These rate increases could be the death knell for many of Minnesota's best newspapers," Sikorski said. "These papers, like many others in rural areas across the nation, simply cannot continue to absorb higher postal rates and stay in business."

This rate increase follows the elimination of a reduced postal rate for newspapers with one-county circulation and two other rate hikes which together boosted postal costs by 60 to 80 per cent.

The rural newspaper preservation act restores the limited circulation rate for mailings under 5,000 copies to adjacent counties and caps the in-county postal rate at 20,000 copies. Sikorski said the legislation is vital because "smaller newspapers in Minnesota's rural communities cannot offset postal rate increases with greater advertising revenue or higher subscription rates."

Congress established an in-county subsidized mail rate 135 years ago to ensure the free flow of information in rural areas. Twenty-five years ago Congress created the limited circulation rate to ease the impact of higher postal rates on rural newspapers, particularly those located near county lines.

As a member of the House post office and civil service committee, Sikorski says he has long been an advocate for Minnesota's small newspapers.

"I consistently have supported legislation to keep our rural newspapers strong," Sikorski said. "These papers are an integral and important part of our communities and the service they provide cannot be diminished."

Senator Says Program Needs Major Overhaul

A special Treasury department investment program which Congress directed Treasury to create to help state and local governments comply with the tough investment restrictions of the Tax Reform act of 1986 needs significant overhaul, according to Sen. Dave Durenberger.

In a letter to Secretary of the Treasury James Baker III, Durenberger asked that the interim rules for the new state and local government series (SLGS) securities be modified so that state and local governments can take advantage of the program.

Durenberger told Baker that the interim regulations are too inflexible and "make it extremely unlikely that state and local governments will use the SLGS program."

Purpose of the program is to provide state and local government issuers of tax-exempt bonds a place to invest bond proceeds without running afoul of the tough investment arbitrage rules contained in the 1986 tax law. State and local issuers often invest the proceeds from tax-exempt bonds before funding for the underlying project is needed.

The senator was especially critical of the interest rate formula Treasury adopted for the SLGS program. He pointed out that under the formula adopted, state and local governments investing in the SLGS program would actually lose money because the interest rate paid by Treasury is lower than the average rate paid out by the state and local issuers on their tax-exempt bonds.

He also expressed concern that the regulations bar state and local governments from mixing investments in long-term and short-term accounts. According to Durenberger, this rule "appears to contradict Congress" directive that the new SLGS program provide state and local governments with a flexible investment vehicle."

In addition, Durenberger's letter noted that the formula for determining Treasury's administrative costs for the SLGS program would impose administrative charges substantially higher than normally charged by private investment programs.

Former Pro Player Announces Trial On Cyclosporine Use

Bob Waters, former football player for the San Francisco 49ers now stricken with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), has announced the second phase of a Muscular Dystrophy association-sponsored drug trial launched at Baylor college of medicine.

Waters, former 49ers quarterback and now head football coach at Western Carolina university, is one of three 49er teammates who played in the early to mid-1960s who recently developed ALS. The others, running back Gary Lewis and linebacker Matt Hazeltine, died within the past few months from complications of the disease.

Waters has been campaigning to get other former NFL players to participate in research by MDA-affiliated investigators to determine whether this unusual incidence of ALS is due to chance or represents a clue to the cause of the disease.

Plans call for a group of 120 ALS patients to participate in the projected million-dollar study to determine whether the experimental drug cyclosporine can slow nerve deterioration caused by this deadly disease. Unlike teammates Hazeltine and Lewis, Waters began receiving cyclosporine, a powerful immune system-suppressing drug, during a preliminary study conducted last year at MDA's Jerry Lewis Neuromuscular Disease Research center at Baylor by Stanley H. Appel, M.D., chairman of the Department of Neurology and the center's co-director.

Provocative results of this study prompted MDA to initiate a full-scale, one-year test of the drug that is planned to involve patients at three other medical centers in New York and Wisconsin. Total cost of the multi-center study is projected to exceed $1 million.

"I'm encouraged by the commitment that MDA has made toward helping people with ALS — both by searching for a treatment and by providing needed patient services," stated Waters. "This commitment is a lifeline for people like me who are waiting for a breakthrough," he added.

ALS attacks muscle-activating nerve cells in adults, resulting in progressive paralysis of virtually all voluntary muscles. Its cause is unknown and there is no cure for the fatal disease. ALS is commonly known as "Lou Gehrig's disease," after the New York Yankee first baseman whose career was cut short by the disease in 1939. Previous research has not shown that athletes are more likely to develop ALS than the general population.

Funding for the Baylor trail is over and above the $600,000 MDA currently has invested in 16 research projects at Baylor college of medicine. The Jerry Lewis Neuromuscular Disease Research center is one of seven such research centers.

Johnston Sparks Cobbers

Brian Johnston, a junior defenseman from Thief River Falls, came up with a big goal over the weekend to help lead Concordia College to a two-game, total-goal MIAC hockey playoff championship series win over St. Thomas.

The Cobbers lost a 4-3 decision in Friday's series opener, but came out a 4-2 winner in double-overtime Saturday to give them a 7-6 victory in the total-goal series.

Concordia jumped out to a 2-0 lead Friday, but then surrendered four straight goals. With just 31 seconds left in the game, Johnston scored what coach Steve Baumgartner said was perhaps the key goal of the series, cutting the margin to just one, and leaving the Cobbers with a much better shot at winning the total-goal series Saturday.

Saturday's regulation time contest produced a 3-2 Concordia win, tying the series at six goals-apiece. Neither team scored in the first overtime, but the Cobbers' John Kozicki decided the series at 1:29 of the second extra sessions.

Concordia will play Bemidji State University Saturday and Sunday in Bemidji, with the winner of the two-game, total-goal series moving into the NCAA Division III final four.

Miscellaneous

+ Michelle Puetz, the freshman sensation from Thief River Falls, is in Long Beach, CA, competing in the NCAA Division II national swimming and diving championships as a member of the University of North Dakota women's team. Puetz set two school records and three North Central Conference records with the Sioux at the NCC meet last weekend in Grand Forks when she was named as the league's Female Swimmer of the Year. Puetz qualified for the national meet in the 200 and 100 backstroke, and as a member of the UND 200 medley, 400 medley and 800 freestyle relay teams. The meet started today (Wednesday) and continues through Saturday.

+ Team Minnesota, which won the National Junior Olympic Championship last year, will be picked this spring exclusively from the participants in the 1987 Maroon and Gold Series for graduating high school seniors. The 20-man Minnesota squad will be chosen from the 42 players in the Maroon and Gold series, which will be played at Warroad March 28, and at Grand Rapids March 29. Players from Sections 2-5-7-8 play for the Gold squad, while players from Sections 1-3-4-6 play for the Maroon team. The National Junior Olympic meet will be held at East Lansing, MI, April 8-11. Teams taking part will represent Minnesota, Massachusetts, Michigan, New England and two At-Large teams — East and West. Edina assistant coach Craig Sarner will coach Team Minnesota.

+ Rick Engelstad, a junior from Thief River Falls, is a member of the Moorhead State University men's tennis team. He was 13-6 at No. 3 singles for the Dragons last spring, and was 11-8 at No. 1 doubles with Ken Brown, a Los Alamos, NM, product.

The Prowlers' Paul Giauque (center) will compete in the 100-yard butterfly, while Shon Thompson (right) will be among the state meet divers. Forney says Thompson will be looking to improve on last year's 36th place finish at the state level, trying to crack the top-25, while Giauque will be trying to break a 1978-79 Bruce Storhaug team record of 56.52 in his event.

Giauque, Thompson Enter State Meet

Paul Giauque and Shon Thompson will represent Thief River Falls at the 64th annual Minnesota State High School League boys state swimming and diving championships Friday and Saturday at the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

Juniors on coach Jay Forney's 1986-87 Thief River Falls swim team, Giauque and Thompson earned state meet trips at the Section 8 competition Friday and Saturday at the University of North Dakota. Giauque placed second in the 100-yard butterfly with a 57.47 time, and Thompson was fourth in the diving competition with 263.40 points. Top two finishers in each of the swimming events, plus the top five divers, earned state meet spots.

State competition starts Friday at 10 a.m. with the diving preliminaries. Swimming prelims begin at 3 that afternoon. Saturday's championship finals start at 1:30 p.m.

More than 300 athletes representing 68 high schools are entered in this year's state meet, reported Larry Larson of the Minnesota State High School League.

Defending state champion Edina, who won its fifth state title a year ago, is expected to challenge again for top honors. Other serious contenders this year include Minnetonka, Roseville Area, and Rochester Mayo.

New champions are certain in all 11 events as the only two underclassmen to win events a year ago are not competing this season. They were Paul Kaump, Rochester Mayo, and Rob Marshall, Burnsville.

Two swimmers come into the meet with top qualifying times in two events from among all section meets held throughout the state last week. They include Shannon Bownds, a senior from Richfield, and Jeff Ganley, a junior from Park Center. Bownds had top times in the 50-yard freestyle (21.74) and 100-yard freestyle (47.99), while Ganley was tops among qualifiers in the 100-yard backstroke (53.98) and 200-yard individual medley (2:00.25).

Minnetonka's two relay teams recorded top qualifying times statewide. The 400-yard freestyle team had a 3:16.68 clocking and the 200-yard medley relay team had a 1:39.96 time.

Other top qualifying times belonged to the following swimmers:

200-yard freestyle — Eric Cornell, Jr., Hibbing, 1:46.44;

500-yard freestyle — Dan Mitchell, St., Hastings, 4:50.25;

100-yard breastroke — Tom Prince, Sr., Anoka, 59.52;

100-yard butterfly — Sean Quackenbush, Jr., Rochester Mayo, 52.25.

The two-day meet is traditionally a sell-out and this year is no exception, says Larson.

TRF Boys Win North Sub-Region 8AA Game . . .

Prowlers Beat Lakers

Thief River Falls joined Bemidji, Moorhead and Fergus Falls in the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA boys high school basketball tournament semifinals Tuesday by eliminating Detroit Lakes 58-48 in a first-round match-up in the five-team post-season field.

Semifinals Thursday will find the No. 5-seeded Prowlers at No. 1 Bemidji, and No. 3-seeded Fergus Falls at No. 2 Moorhead. Both games start at 7:30 p.m.

Winners will meet in Saturday's championship game at a neutral site — probably Detroit Lakes — at 7:30 p.m.

Thief River Falls, beaten by Detroit Lakes 67-62 in a single regular season meeting here Jan. 6, started with a 13-12 first quarter lead Tuesday. The No. 4-seeded Lakers built a five-point lead in the second quarter, but the visiting Prowlers gained a 25-25 halftime tie when Todd Solsten scored at the buzzer.

A 36-31 Thief River Falls lead at the end of the third quarter opened up to a 13-point fourth quarter spread before Detroit Lakes cut the deficit to just five points. But clutch free throw shooting by the Prowlers' Chris Nelson kept the Lakers at bay. Nelson scored 13 of his game-high 21 points in the fourth quarter, including a 7-for-8 performance at the line.

Chris Bjorgaard joined Nelson in double figures with 15, getting seven of those in the fourth quarter. Detroit Lakes' Paul Nickolauson and James Landsem, both 20-point scorers against Thief River Falls in that regular season meeting, again led the Lakers last night, but this time the 6-8 Nickolauson netted only 13 points and the 6-2 Landsem had 12.

"We're real happy with our overall effort," reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "It was a good team effort. Defensively we received outstanding performances from (Brian) Stark and (Jarrod) Kalsnes on Nickolauson and Landsem."

Thief River Falls was 24-for-50 from the field (48 per cent) and 10-for-19 at the free throw line (53 per cent). Detroit Lakes was 19-for-52 from the field (37 per cent) and 10-for-17 at the line (59 per cent). The Lakers had a 37-25 rebound edge. They also had more turnovers, 11-10.

The Prowlers will take a 13-8 record to Bemidji Thursday. The Lakers finished at 11-9.

South Sub-Region 8AA play started Monday when St. Cloud Apollo edged Alexandria 51-50. Tuesday match-ups had St. Cloud Tech playing Sauk Rapids, and Little Falls vs. Brainerd. Thursday semifinals at St. Cloud State University will feature No. 1-seeded Rocori vs. Apollo, along with a match-up of the Tuesday winners. Championship game will be played Saturday.

Nordics, Cardinals Meet In Region 8A Semifinal Game

Headed by unbeaten District 30A champion Win-E-Mac, an impressive field, record-wise, is lined up for the 1987 Region 8A girls high school basketball tournament, scheduled to be played Friday and Saturday at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

While the state-ranked Patriots feature an unblemished record, District 32A winner Marshall County Central is 21-1 with a 21-game winning streak, while District 31A Plummer and District 29A Littlefork-Big Falls are both 20-2.

Friday's opening round semifinals will have Littlefork-Big Falls playing Win-E-Mac at 7 p.m., while Plummer goes against Marshall County Central at 8:45.

Saturday's schedule includes the third place game at 6:30 p.m., and the championship game at 8:15. The winner moves on to the 1987 Minnesota Class A state tournament next week.

Littlefork-Big Falls is the only repeat tournament entry from a year ago. Win-E-Mac is in its first year of existance as a school combining students from Winger, Erskine, and McIntosh. Plummer is making its first-ever Region 8A appearance, and Marshall County Central is a district champion for the first time since 1981.

Plummer and Marshall County Central are included in the regular Times sports coverage, producing most of the local interest in the tournament at Lysaker Gymnasium. Additionally, both teams lost to Class AA Thief River Falls this winter. The Nordics' only setback was a 43-40 defeat at the hands of the Prowlers in the 1986-87 season-opener back on Nov. 25. The Cardinals lost to Thief River Falls in an unexpected one-sided 56-33 fashion Jan. 20. The only other Plummer loss was a 48-40 defeat at the hands of Oslo Jan. 8, a team the Cardinals beat 59-58 in overtime earlier.

Both coaches — Rick Koivisto of Plummer and Tom Mjelde of Marshall County Central — expect a good, entertaining match-up Friday night. The smaller Cardinals will try to use pressure defense and strong outside shooting to reach the Saturday finals, while the Nordics will try to utilize their size advantage and balanced offense to pick up a Region 8A win.

"They (Plummer) have a real good ball club," acknowledged Mjelde. "They're really quick, and they shoot well. If we can just run with them and not let them beat us down court we'll be okay."

"They (Marshall County Central) have a physical team," pointed out Koivisto. "We're not very physical. We'll have to use constant pressure defensively, and hope we can shoot well."

Plummer starting line-up includes 5-4 senior Janelle Konickson (20 points per game) and 5-1 junior Renae Walter (11 ppg) at guards; 5-6 senior Robin Brantl (14 ppg) and 5-4 sophomore Angie Delage (8 ppg) at forwards; with 5-8 junior Jodi Konickson (2.3) at center.

Marshall County Central starting line-up has 5-6 senior Jodi Foss (15.6 ppg) and 5-5 sophomore Kari Boe (6.4) at guards; 5-9 juniors Andrea Kragness (12.1) and Natalie Ueland (9.1) at forwards; and 5-9 sophomore Kelli Anderson (10.8) at center.

Plummer, the No. 3-seeded team in District 31A, got by upset-minded East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 50-49 in quarterfinal play, then knocked off No. 2-seeded East Grand Forks 55-53, and beat No. 1-seeded Crookston 41-33 in the finals.

Marshall County Central, the favorite in District 32A play, breezed to the title with wins over Grygla 57-31 in the quarterfinals, Argyle 52-41 in the semifinals, and Roseau 47-31 in the finals.

PLUMMER GIRLS celebrated after the Cardinals were presented with their first-ever District 31A high school basketball tournament championship trophy Saturday at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. Those identifiable by numbers included Karen Skjerven (42), Janell Konickson (10), Robin Brantl (40), Karen Traxler (50), and Deana Fossell (24). The Cardinals beat East Grand Forks and Crookston, respectively, in the District 31A semifinals and finals. They'll be back at UMC Friday for an 8:45 p.m. Region 8AA semifinal encounter with District 32A winner Marshall County Central. (Photo by Alice Hofstad).

— Youth Hockey —

Only Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) traveling team in action over the weekend was the Elks Pee-Wee B team, an entrant in the Fergus Falls Invitational.

Thief River Falls lost a 3-2 first round quarterfinal decision to Brainerd, defeated Morris 4-1 in the consolation semifinals, then wound up as the co-consolation champion when tournament officials called it a draw after three overtimes failed to break a 4-4 Thief River Falls-East Grand Forks tie.

Guy Gustafson and Jim Olson scored against Brainerd when Thief River Falls goalie Trevor Haugen kept the game close with 32 saves while the Brainerd netminder stopped just eight shots.

Kevin Johnson scored twice in the win over Morris, with Shane Pederson and Chris Eide picking up single goals. Eide also had an assist. Haugen had 19 saves; the Morris goalie had 24 stops.

A tournament-first occurred when officials finally declared co-consolation champions after three 10-minute sudden-death overtimes in the Thief River Falls-East Grand Forks stalemate. Each team will be awarded a trophy. Eide picked up his first hat trick of the year, while Brett Torkelson scored once. Jeremy Olson had two assists. Haugen had an outstanding 53-save effort; the East Grand Forks goalie made 29 stops.

The Art Cloutier-coached Thief River Falls team is 10-26-3 for the year.

Huskies Beaten By Ponies

Goodridge fell behind Warren 18-2 in the first quarter Monday, and the underdog Huskies never recovered, losing a 76-44 decision to No. 1-seeded Warren in the 1987 District 31A boys high school basketball tournament quarterfinals at Crookston.

Warren took a 32-12 lead into halftime and had a 54-25 third quarter cushion.

Goodridge coach John Rahn indicated the young Huskies suffered a bad case of stage fright in front of a large, boisterous crowd. "I think our kids froze up," he said. "It was a nightmare. You're not going to beat a team like Warren when you can't even make the easy shots."

Shawn Groven scored a game-high 18 points for the Huskies, but nobody else scored more than six points. Thirteen Ponies scored, led by Tom Novak's 14 points.

Warren was an impressive 23-for-39 from the field (59 per cent), and a productive 25-for-32 at the free throw line (78 per cent). Goodridge was 18-for-44 from the field (41 per cent) and 5-for-8 at the line (63 per cent). Rahn said he wasn't happy with the discrepancy in the free throw numbers.

Goodridge finished 5-16.

Cardinals Lose 61-53 District 31A Game To Climax . . .

Plummer Boys End Year 15-6

Plummer started strong, but the Cardinals' success was short-lived Monday in a 61-53 loss to Climax in the second round quarterfinals of the 1987 District 31A boys high school basketball tournament at Warren.

With Shane Freyholtz scoring 13 first quarter points, Plummer jumped in front 17-10 at the first stop. But the Cardinals' shots didn't fall through the hoop with any regularity after that as Climax went ahead 28-21 at halftime and carried a 39-35 lead into the fourth quarter.

Plummer managed to stay close, trailing by only three points with 43 seconds left, but a turnover at that point sealed the Cardinals' fate, along with a 10-for-12 free throw shooting effort by the Vikings over the final two minutes.

"We got good shots the first quarter," explained Plummer coach Jim Baron, "but after that we had poor shot selection. That was probably the highest number of shots we've taken all year (61), but we forced a lot of them."

Freyholtz finished with a game-high 19 points. Wade Grinde added 14 to the Plummer total. David Allard led Climax with 15 points, while Randy Sondrol netted 12, with Dan Lindgren and Mike Skavlem both contributing 10.

Plummer wound up 23-for-61 from the field for the game (38 per cent). Climax was 24-for-46 (52 per cent). The Cardinals were 7-for-14 at the free throw line, where the Vikings were 13-for-20. Climax had a 39-37 rebound edge, and also topped the turnover figures 17-12.

Climax beat Plummer 74-59 during a single regular season meeting back on Jan. 30. The Cardinals finished the year 15-6, overall.

MSHSL News

Biggest high school hockey tornament in the nation unfolds for a 43rd year Thursday afternoon when the annual Minnesota State High School League state hockey tournament is held before sell-out crowds at the St. Paul Civic Center Arena.

For the ninth consecutive year tournament attendance totals could surpass the 100,000 mark. Last year's attendance was 100,824 for the six-season event. More than 2 million fans have attended the annual tournament since it first began in 1945, reports Larry Larson of the MSHSL staff.

Thursday Pairings

First round Thursday quarterfinal pairings are as follows:

Upper Bracket — 12:05 p.m. — Section 1 — Burnsville (17-6) vs. Section 2 — Roseville Area (21-3); 2:15 p.m. — Section 3 — Hill-Murray (22-2) vs. Section 8 — Warroad (22-1).

Lower Bracket — 7:05 p.m. — Section 6 — Edina (12-10-2) vs. Section 7 — Greenway (Coleraine) (21-1-1); 9:15 p.m. — Section 5 — Bloomington Kennedy (22-1) vs. Section 4 — South St. Paul (18-6).

Northern Schools

It hasn't been since 1970 when northern Minnesota schools from Sections 7 and 8 have seen the likes of Greenway and Warroad at the state tournament. Should both survive victories in quarterfinal and semifinal games, it would give the north its first championship game since 1972 when International Falls defeated Grand Rapids.

Good Will, Easter Seal Campaign Planned Here

Goodwill Industries, Inc. and the Easter Seal society of Minnesota will conduct a neighbor-to-neighbor campaign in Thief River Falls during March. Norwest Bank is donating space ad time to receive the neighbor-to-neighbor kits from volunteers and local residents will volunteer their time for the door-to-door campaign.

All monies collected will be forwarded to Goodwill Industries and the Easter Seal society which served approximately 500 disabled individuals in 1986. The non-profit social service agency specializes in providing vocational rehabilitation services to Minnesotans with disabilities.

Farm Chemical Safety Week Is Proclaimed

Governor Rudy Perpich has proclaimed March 15-21 as "Minnesota Farm Chemical Safety Week" in an effort to promote safe, educated use of farm chemicals.

The special proclamation, endorsed by the Minnesota department of agriculture (MDA), Minnesota Plant Food and Chemicals association, and Minnesota Women for Agriculture and Women involved in Farm Economics, calls attention to a week of events to educate farmers on how to protect themselves and the environment when using farm chemicals.

"Minnesota farmers have a long, proud history of caring for and preserving Minnesota farmland," Governor Perpich said. "We must continue these policies."

Assistant Commissioner Anne Kanten of the Minnesota department of agriculture and Craig Sallstrom, executive director of Minnesota Plant Food and Chemicals association both said the proposal has enthusiastic support from endorsing organizations.

"As part of responsible land stewardship, we must insure that farmers take special care with chemicals to preserve land and water resources for the next generation," Kanten said. "I feel we must act not as though as we have purchased the land from our parents, but as if we are leasing the land from our children."

Currently, only farmers certified by MDA are allowed to use restricted chemicals. In order to be certified, farmers must attend special training sessions through county extension offices to assure that the use of restricted chemcials is judicious and carefully controlled.

Governor Perpich's proclamation states "it is critical that chemicals be used in strict accordance with label directions to ensure their safety."

Kanten said the future of farming will include biological and pest management techniques to further protect our land and water resources.

Kanten said farmers may contact their local agricultural extension office to inquire about training locations, dates and times. Other midwestern states will join Minnesota and promote the special chemical safety week.

NW Community Action To Meet

"SHADES OF BLUE," Northland community college's jazz singers and instrumentalists, are posed on the set designed for the play "Noises Off." The group returned Thursday, March 5 from its trip to the Mardi Gras in New Orleans where it performed at the Deutsches House in New Orleans and at the Nottoway Plantation, the largest plantation house in the south. The musicians also took time out to visit the New Orleans Zoo, the French Quarter and Bourbon Street and viewed the Rex Parade, Comus Parade and the famous Mardi Gras. Photo courtesy of Jim Solsten.

Fire Dept. Makes Call To Northwest Medical Center

On Monday, March 9, 1987, at approximately 7:30 p.m., a fire alarm at Northwest Medical center was responded to by the Thief River Falls fire department.

The fire alarm originated in the Northwest Medical center boiler room as a result of a malfunction of the alternative fuels-induced draft fan which is a part of Northwest Medical center's alternative fuel system (fiber fuels).

The induced draft unit is designed to take the fly ash out of the unit so that it does not exit through our smokestack. The bearings on the induced draft unit malfunctioned, resulting in fly ash backing up into the fuel auger and igniting the fuel contained in the auger and the small storage bin above it.

There were no open flames, but rather a smouldering fire resulting in dense smoke in the boiler room and some adjoining areas.

We believe damages will be confined to the replacement of the bearings in the induced draft unit and we also believe there is little or no smoke damage resulting.

No hospital patients or nursing home residents were evacuated. It was determined that they were in no immediate danger. Richard Spyhalski, chief executive officer at Northwest Medical center expressed extreme gratefulness to the Thief River Falls fire department for their prompt response and the use of fans to exhaust smoke from the boiler room and adjoining areas.

Reservations Being Taken For Warroad Summer Theatre

Warroad summer theatre will open their seventh season on March 26th with a nostalgic performance of "Some Enchanted Evening." The show will be running that Thursday through Monday, March 30th.

Steve Adkins and Mike Hetteen, both of Roseau, will sing the male roles in the musical review, composed of familiar songs from various musicals by Roger and Hammerstein. Marilyn Nelson, well known from her 1985 performance of Anna in the "King and I," and Jenee Provance, who is also well known from many previous performances at WST, joins Mary Borgen of Roseau in the female vocalist roles.

Craig Croone, principal dancer and choreographer and instructor with Mahkahta Dance Theatre, Inc. in Fargo, performer in Bezet's "Carmen," and presently a teacher in Warroad high school, is in charge of choreography for the performance. Accompaniment for the performance will be by the mother and daughter team, Pam and Misty Nelc. Musical direction is by Lynda Myers, who has been associated with Warroad summer theatre in many capacities for each of its previous six seasons.

Steve Reandeau will be technician and builder of the set. Steve spent much time constructing sets for the 1986 theatre season. Jim Provance, who began his tech career with WST in 1981, and has recently beeen assistant tech designer for the well-known Chanhassan dinner theatre in the Twin Cities area, will be in charge of tech design.

Kelly Van De Hey of Roseau is stage manager. Amy Christenson and Mary Ann Vistad will be in charge of make-up and hair design.

"Some Enchanted Evening" will be an elegant, sophisticated dinner show and an evening to remember.

The box office will be ready to make the first reservation on Wednesday, March 11th from 1 p.m. Call the Building Blocks location (386-2237).

Goodridge School Names Teachers & Students Of Month

Goodridge public school recognizes students and teachers in its newsletter each month. For the month of March the newsletter features: Duane Kjono, social studies instructor; Mari Lou Anderson, grade 5, kindergarten physical education and high school typing instructor; Connie Hulthusen Moe, first grade instructor; Andrea Pittman, third grade; Jackie Kiesow, seventh grade; and Jeff Moen, grade 12.

Duane Kjono, social studies instructor at the Goodridge school, in a graduate of Mahnomen high school, and Moorhead state. He also attended Northland community college in Thief River Falls.

Kjono believes teaching in a small school has the advantage of getting to know all the students and their parents. It becomes much easier to spot a problem, he said.

Besides teaching social studies, he is also assistant football coach and junior high basketball coach. Some of his hobbies include hunting and fishing.

Duane and his wife Marcia have one child and expect another soon. Duane plans to continue his education and his goal is to receive his master's degree.

Mari Lou Anderson lives on a farm near Grygla with her husband Gary and two children, Garrett who is five and Laura who is two years old. Mari Lou's parents are Edgar and Dorothy Miller of rural Goodridge.

Mari Lou is a 1976 graduate of Goodridge high school, and a 1980 graduate of Moorhead state university. She has a bachelor of science degree in elementary education and certification in kindergarten and a minor degree in specific learning and behavioral problems.

This is her third year of full-time teaching and currently is teaching grade five, kindergarten physical education and typing in high school.

She spends much of her time reading and doing yard work. She is very devoted to her family and friends. She takes time for community activities that have included Women of Today, Minnesota Women for Agriculture, Inc. and is past president of the Grace ALCW.

The last couple of years, Mari Lou has been in charge of American Ag Week activities in the school. She is currently working with project Charlie, a drug abuse prevention program and every Monday the fifth and sixth grade students participate in the classroom program. The program builds self-concept through discussions and other materials.

Mari Lou likes teaching in a small school system and the direct contact that a teacher has with a student. "Things have changed a bit since I graduated," she said. "Subjects such as physics, chemistry, accounting, and several other programs have been eliminated and are now made available to the student in Thief River Falls.

Her classroom shows that a lot of work goes into making a student's classroom environment exciting. Recently there were many posters displayed on the current contest being conducted on soil and water

More Counties Interested In Waste Disposal

Through a voluntary state program, nine Minnesota counties have expressed interest in the possibility of hosting a facility that would treat and store special types of hazardous industrial waste. The waste management board (WMB) Thursday accepted resolutions of interest passed by county boards in Aitkin, Kanabec, Koochiching, Martin and Norman counties.

In January the WMB accepted resolutions from Carlton, Itasca, Nobles and Red Lake counties. Potential locations for the plant have not yet been identified by any county, although the Koochiching county resolution stipulates that only locations within a 15-mile radius of Northome should be considered.

At its meeting Thursday in Brooklyn Center, the WMB established an April 15 deadline for the submission of additional resolutions. The resolution of interest is a non-binding agreement that makes it possible for a county to receive financial assistance from the state to study the proposal.

Each county that passes a resolution can receive up to $4,000 a month while potential locations for the plant are identified and evaluated. During the initial stage a county can withdraw its resolution at any time without penalty.

The 1986 legislature authorized the WMB to ask Minnesota counties to volunteer to host a facility that will treat and store ash from hazardous waste incinerators and sludges generated by circuit board manufacturers and metal-plating companies. The wastes are considered hazardous because they contain metals that can cause health problems if improperly managed. The facility will not accept radioactive wastes.

The plant will treat the ash and sludges using a process called "stabilization," which neutralizes and immobilizes the potentially hazardous metals. For added protection the solid, stabilized material will be placed in an above-ground containment structure to isolate it from the environment.

Each county that passes a resolution of interest will work jointly with the WMB to identify potentially suitable locations. By early next year approximately four counties will enter into contracts with the WMB, allowing each county to receive up to $150,000 a year for two years while detailed environmental studies are conducted. By signing a contract a county commits itself to hosting the facility, if selected.

The contract negotiated by the host county would also provide for a package of long-term benefits that could include direct grants, tax breaks, community improvements or other forms of state assistance.

Wedul Ranks 7th Among Lutheran Brotherhood Reps

Katherine L. Wedul, FIC, Thief River Falls, has been ranked seventh among Lutheran Brotherhood district representatives for the combined amount of life and health insurance, annuities and mutual funds she provided to Lutherans in 1986. The volume of life insurance she issued last year totaled over $5 million.

As a result of Wedul's high level of service, she qualified for membership in the fraternal benefit society's Top club. Membership in Lutheran Brotherhood's Top club, the society's highest sales honor, was attained by less than five per cent of the society's 1,400 field force members.

Wedul is a district representative associated with Lutheran Brotherhood's Donald Johnson agency based in Grand Forks, N.D. Wedul joined Lutheran Brotherhood in 1980.

Red Lake Riverland Finds Potential For Tourism

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Greater Minnesota has never really been looked at as a source of tourist dollars, but a new group celebrating its first year of operation is hoping for greater development of the tourist dollar.

Red Lake Riverland, a group of individuals promoting the communities of Thief River Falls, Crookston, East Grand Forks and Red Lake Falls, is taking steps toward improving the outlook of Greater Minnesota by investing their time and energy in finding ways to attract the tourist dollar.

A little over a year ago several people met with the intention of creating a multi-community development organization and pursuing grants and assistance to improve the economic outlook of Greater Minnesota. The aim was and is to provide an awareness of what is going on in area communities and coordinate efforts in attracting the tourist dollar.

It was felt, said Diana Josephson, president of the new organization, that "Red Lake Riverland association was created because of a need to give support to the tourism industry in northern Minnesota. Vikingland is no longer a viable entity and the central region known as Heartland is absorbing the northern area, county by county. It was commonly felt that with our northern region not being in the Lake area we would again feel that we were not in the main stream of activity even with doing our share of advertising."

A meeting was arranged with the Minnesota department of tourism early in 1986. It was decided it would be to the benefit of the region to develop an association and apply for a multi-community venture grant. This was accomplished and Riverland was born. East Grand Forks, Crookston, Red Lake Fall and Thief River Falls went to individuals, businesses, chambers, city and county offices and raised $8,400 in commitments. The dollars raised and the matching funds were used to develop and print 40,000 brochures and set up television advertising primarily directed toward the Canadian market.

"This area has never really been looked at for its tourist attractions. However, we really have a lot to offer," said Sue Lillevold, executive vice president of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce and new publicity chairman of Red Lake Riverland.

Most people are aware that Red Lake Falls has tubing. Most people also know where Agassiz national wildlife refuge is, but most people don't know collectively that Thief River Falls has the Pennington county Pioneer village, that Crookston has a museum and East Grand Forks a riverboat, Lillevold said.

Separately we are able to offer the same things we have always been able to offer, Lillevold said, but Red Lake Riverland allows the group to offer a diversified vacation to tourists and an opportunity to find more grant money and thus more tourist advertising. Lillevold believes there has been a slight increase in tourism because of their efforts.

Lillevold said they are also finding that a large number of local people are also not aware of what is available in the region. Because of our focus on these attractions, more people seem to be finding time or the opportunity to explore the many different attractions, Lillevold said. The organization provides that awareness that wasn't clearly obvious prior to the organization's formation.

Advertising in major publications identifying Agassiz national wildlife refuge as one of the nations best "birder's paradise" is an example of what Red Lake Riverland plans to continue. Very few people are aware that the refuge is one of the best places to find a large variety of birds, Lillevold said.

While the Thief River Falls convention and visitors bureau placed the advertisements in the publications, Red Lake Riverland has included the refuge in its joint advertising and

Congressman's Bill Would Aid Rural Newspapers

U.S. Rep. Arlan Stangeland has introduced legislation on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives designed to aid ailing rural newspapers, consequently protecting the free flow of information in rural communities from the devastating effects of the farm crisis.

"Newspapers, like all other small businesses in rural Minnesota, have suffered the effects of the farm crisis," Stangeland said. "Problems facing our farmers are felt throughout the rural community, and it is my job in Congress to see that the whole problem of rural community development is not forgotten by this or any other Congress."

Stangeland and Rep. Tom Tauke (R-IA) introduced HR 5350 which reinstates the limited circulation postal rate applying to rural newspapers which was previously eliminated through a provision of the consolidated omnibus budget reconciliation act.

"Since the first of the year, many rural newspapers have experienced a 60 to 80 per cent increase in postal rates," Stangeland said. "This legislation effectively stops this from occurring during a time when advertising revenues are dropping off rapidly as a result of the farm crisis. The government must do all it can to ease the burdens of the farm crisis on rural America.

"The free flow of information is a constitutional right that is threatened by massive increases in postal rates. A rural community that loses its newspaper suffers a tragic loss that cannot be easily regained. It has always been a priority of mine to not only address the problems facing farmers, but also the problems facing business dependent upon farmers. I'm pleased to offer this legislation that does just that," he concluded.

Senator Ted Stevens (R-AK) has introduced similar legislation in the Senate. Stangeland said he is confident that both houses of Congress will take swift action to deal with this and other problems facing rural communities as a result of the farm crisis.

Lessard Introduces State Lottery Bill

Sen. Bob Lessard, International Falls, announced today that he has introduced enabling legislation to create a state lottery agency. The bill also spells out how the proceeds raised from a lottery will be spent.

"Under my bill, 25 per cent of the proceeds would go to fund the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) program on an annual basis. Another 25 per cent of the proceeds would go to fund the RIM endowment fund until such time as the trust fund reaches a $500 million figure. At that time, only the interest derived from the fund would be used to fund RIM on an annual basis for perpetuity. At this time the total 50 per cent would revert to the general revenue fund," Lessard said.

The remaining 50 per cent of the income derived from the proceeds of the lottery would be earmarked for economic development through a fund to be known as the Greater Minnesota fund, which would be used to help restore and diversify the economic development of rural Minnesota.

"I believe this is so very important if we are to achieve our goal of a balanced metropolitan and rural economic base," added Lessard.

"If we are really concerned about our natural resources for future generations," Lessard stated. "I am absolutely convinced we must provide a strong and reliable funding mechanism which would enhance the future of our wildlife and natural resource heritage, unencumbered by the ups and downs of the state's economic fluctuations."

General estimates show that a lottery in Minnesota could generate revenues for the state of between $75 and $100 million the first full year of operation.

"This bill will not be passed by one legislator or by a number of legislators," said Lessard. "It is going to need the broad-based support of all, including sportsmen, environmental groups, and all those who are concerned about the future well-being of our state resources, no matter whether they live in a metropolitan or rural area."

Lessard concluded by stating that he and his committee staff have spent many hours over the past few years studying lotteries in other states and in Canada and that he believes they have incorporated the best features of the lottery operations that they have studied to date.

A Perfect Pair

A boy and his dog—it has been written about over and over again . . . because it is such a wonderful relationship. It runs the gamut of emotions. It also has a far deeper significance.

In having a dog of his own, a boy learns a great deal. He discovers what trust and dependence really mean. He cares for a living creature that can't go it entirely on its own.

Having a dog is an important part of a boy's life. It's like having a buddy to talk to as they skate across a frozen pond or dangle a fishhook in the river beneath the summer sun. Like having a mother to tuck him in at night. Like having a father, for those heart-to-heart talks. Most of all, like having a church or synagogue to turn to.

Goodridge School Names Teachers & Students Of Month

Several years ago her husband was selected as state outstanding young farmer by the Minnesota Jaycees. This was a great honor for both Mari Lou and Gary.

Connie (Hulthusen) Moe grew up in the Grygla area and graduated from Grygla high school. She received a degree in Early Childhood education from the University of Wisconsin in Menomonie and her elementary education certification from the University of Wisconsin in Eau Claire.

While attending college her summer employment included working at several resorts in Minnesota as a children's recreation director. She also worked at St. Ansgar hospital day care center in Moorhead where she was a preschool teacher for three and four year olds, which included twenty students.

Connie has taught kindergarten at St. Bernards in Thief River Falls before coming to Goodridge in 1984 where she taught sixth grade and also seventh and eighth grade art, tenth grade typing and was also assistant basketball coach. Currently she is in her second year of teaching the first grade.

Connie also works with the SMART programs (subject matter awareness) and involves the implementation of resources in technology.

The first grade students use the math computer lab once a week and use both math and reading disks and easy logo programs. The students have access to a computer in their classroom.

Her classroom is very interesting for the student. She has a bulletin board called Superstar that features a different student each week and that student brings pictures from home for display. At the end of the week that student received a Superstar award. She also has a birthday bulletin board that displays a clown holding a hand-full of paper balloons.

Each student has their name and birthday printed on it. As the student's birthday arrives they wear a birthday crown. There were several other very colorful bulletin boards that included farming pictures and another recognizing wildlife week with many pictures of animals and birds.

Connie's husband Tony is employed with Swigen Bridge Co. and their rural home is near Grygla.

Her hobbies include cross-country skiing, snowmobiling, fishing, camping, biking and refinishing antique furniture. She enjoys being involved in arts and crafts.

Andrea Pittman is the third grade daughter of Roger and Rae Ann Pittman. She has one sister, Millssa and one brother, Matthew. Her hobbies and talents include skating, swimming and also painting. Her favorite subjects in school are math and language.

The playground, teachers and cooks are what she likes best about Goodridge high school.

Her special achievements include being chosen student of the month for the elementary and athletic awards. She has also been the president of her class.

Jackie Kiesow, the seventh grade daughter of Lawrence and Irene Kiesow, has seven sisters and two brothers. The thing she likes best about the Goodridge school is that everybody knows everybody.

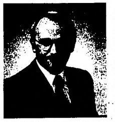
At school, her favorite subjects are science, home economics and band. She collects bells as a hobbie and she also enjoys crosstitch, reading, riding her bike and listening to music. She has been in the spelling bee and is involved in band and the pep club. She is currently the class president and is on the student council.

Jeff Moen is the twelfth grade son of Donald Moen. He has one sister, Kari, and one brother, Tony.

He enjoys all types of sports and likes to sing and dance. He also likes working with animals. He has received an honor in chorus and also recognition as ironman in football. His extra-curricular activities include basketball, football, chorus and knowledge bowl. He belongs to the letterpersons and is secretary of the pep club.

The thing he likes about Goodridge is that it is a small community and everybody knows everyone else and gets along well together.

PASTOR and Mrs. George Knapp, on furlough from the mission field in Brazil, will be speaking at the Mission conference at Our Saviour's Lutheran church on the theme "Lord Revive Thy Work". Pastor Knapp will speak at Our Saviour's Lutheran on Sunday, March 15 at 9:30 a.m. and Reiner Lutheran of rural Goodridge at 11:30 a.m. He will also be speaking on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, March 17-19 at 7:30 p.m. at Our Saviour's. Pastor Knapp will have a morning Bible study on Wednesday and Thursday, March 18 and 19. Pastor and Mrs. Knapp are missionarys under the Association of Free Lutheran congregations.



PASTOR RICHARD ANDERSON of Apple Valley, MN, will be a speaker at the sixth annual Mission conference at Our Saviour's Lutheran church of Thief River Falls. Pastor Anderson will be speaking on Sunday and Monday evenings, March 15 and 16, at 7:30 p.m. He will also be leading a morning bible study on March 16 and 17 at 10 a.m. Pastor Anderson is a home missions pastor of the Association of Free Lutheran congregations. ## Red Lake Riverland Finds Potential For Tourism promotions. Hopefully such advertising and promotions will increase the number of visitors to Greater Minnesota.

Last year Red Lake Riverland received a grant from Northwest Initiative fund to attend five travel shows, set up booths at those shows and distribute brochures. So far, they have attended the recreation shows at Minneapolis, Winnipeg and Fargo. They plan to attend recreation shows in Bemidji and Grand Forks yet.

The organization is just getting started, but it has already recognized benefits from its efforts. In the first round, advertising dollars were put into newspapers, television broadcasts and brochures. The second round of planning is just beginning.

According to Josephson, 1986 proved to be a good summer in tourism for all areas involved. The tubing and recreation companies in Red Lake Falls, the shopping, dining and lodging accomodations in the other three cities rounded out all the needs of the visitor to the region, she said. Historic and heritage centers along with individual attractions were often featured.

Josephson said the Minnesota department of tourism has been very helpful to Red Lake Riverland with suggestions in long range planning. A hospitality workshop was held in Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks with the assistance of the Minnesota department of tourism last year. A workshop is being planned for this year, possibly in May in conjunction with small business week. This will be held with the cooperative efforts of the state of Minnesota, SBDC and Riverland. This will be a workshop to help educate business owners and personnel in "the care and feeding of tourists," Josephson said.

"Our needs are many to do the job we have set out to do. The agricultural and industry dollars are not as strong as in the past and we feel there is tremendous underdeveloped potential in tourism in our immediate region. Help is needed in determining what economic impact our endeavor will produce and a possible inventory of data of what has and what will develop with the addition of tourism on a larger scale in this area, Josephson said.

Lillevold invites anyone to join the organization. Anyone can be a member and membership fees are attractive and inexpensive. The eight board members (two from each community) are: Diana Josephson, president, Best Western, Thief River Falls; Bonnie Tydlacka, vice president, Two River Outfitters, Red Lake Falls; Steve Gorman, secretary, executive vice president of East Grand Forks chamber of commerce; Henry Gredvig, treasurer, museum curator, Crookston; Gladys Sondrol, past president, Country club motel, Crookston; Diane Brumwell, funding chairman, Voyageur's View, Red Lake Falls; Julie Berg, long range planning, civic and commerce of Red Lake Falls; and Sue Lillevold, publicity chairman, Thief River Falls chamber of commerce executive vice president.

"The ultimate goal of Riverland is to be self-supporting with a membership structure and a possible staff to coordinate and implement a tourist and recreation area able to bring economic stability to our area. The market is there, the potential is here," Josephson said.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Recycling Makes Sense

"The future for recycling is now," states Gary Botzek, former executive director of Minnesota Business and Industry recycling program, writing in the Minnesota Beautifus newsletter. "If we are going to invest in this low-cost, low-tech option called recycling, now is the time to do so."

Botzek points out that high-cost, high-tech options for handling garbage are the current rage, with five "waste-to-energy" plants now planned for the Twin Cities. All involve some sort of governmental financial assistance.

The problem is that people are wasteful because it is easy to be wasteful. According to the Environmental Protection agency, the average household generates 240 pounds of solid waste per month. One-third of that amount (80 pounds) is recyclable material and includes 19 pounds of glass, seven pounds of tin and metal cans, one pound of aluminum and 53 pounds of newspapers.

Minnesotans bury nearly seven pounds of waste per person each day. A day's garbage from the Twin Cities alone, for instance, would cover a football field five feet deep. More and more landfills are leaking toxic contaminants, polluting the water supply, and are costly to clean up.

Tipping fees paid by garbage truckers used to be $10 per ton. Some estimates are that the fees will be as high as $100 per ton by 1990. Every pound of solid waste that is reused, composted or recycled need not be buried. As Botzek points out, recycling saves landfill space and money.

On the average, he said, one-half of the energy needed to make new products from virgin materials is saved when using recycled materials. It takes 20 times the energy to produce aluminum from ore as it does to reprocess aluminum cans. A gallon of used motor oil can provide two and a half quarts of lubricating oil — the same amount produced from 42 gallons of crude oil. The energy saved by recycling just one glass bottle could light a 100-watt bulb for four hours.

Many items are recyclable — newspapers, cardboard, office paper, telephone books, computer paper, iron, steel, glass, aluminum cans and foil, tin cans, bi-metal cans, tires, copper wire, batteries, brass, motor oil and used appliances. Botzek says that curbside recycling efforts are underway throughout the state but that low prices for recyclable materials have curtailed the effort. He believes that recycling should be subsidized as an effort to reduce waste before depending on the subsidized, expensive, high-tech waste-to-energy plants.

"Battle lines are now drawn between those who favor little or no recycling but prefer to deal with the 'valuable' materials at the mass burn or RDF facility and those who believe we should continue to push recycling through mandatory separation at the home or business. That battle may be over as soon as enough mass burn and RDF plants are operational," Botzek says. "If recycling is going to play a major, upfront role in solid waste management and landfill abatement, it must be put in place and stabilized before the big bang of mass burn and RDF . . . The choice is ours."

Nutrition Quiz

Nutrition is much in the spotlight these days and interest among the public in proper foods in the diet seems high. Here are several questions and answers on nutrition provided by the Institute of Food Technologists:

(1) Fresh vegetables always provide more vitamins than canned or frozen vegetables. True or False?

(2) Microwaving foods is convenient but destroys more nutrients than other cooking methods. True or False?

(3) It is important not to overcook foods so their vitamins and minerals aren't lost. True or False?

(4) Which of these vitamins are more likely to be lost by exposure to air during storage than by exposure to water and heat during processing? A, C, D, E, riboflavin, thiamin.

(5) It makes no difference at what temperatures frozen foods are stored as long as they don't thaw. True or False?

(6) The milling of grains (wheat, corn, rice, oats, barley, rye) removes significant quantities of nutrients. True or False?

(7) Antioxidants such as BHA and BHT, used in dough and other dry products, destroy a substantial amount of vitamins but are needed to preserve fats? True or False?

ANSWERS

(1) False. Foods which are processed from high quality, freshly harvested, "garden-fresh" commodities frequently have a higher nutrient content that "market-fresh" foods which are generally a few days old and which may have been improperly handled during transportation.

(2) False. Compared to other methods of cooking, vitamin retention in microwave processed foods is improved because cooking time is shortened. But as with other cooking methods, higher temperatures and longer times cause greater losses of nutrients.

(3) True. Excessive cooking of vegetables can result in severe nutrient loss. (Losses can be reduced by using the cooking water for soups, sauces, gravies, etc.)

(4) The fat-soluble vitamins A, D and E are more sensitive to oxidation losses during exposure to air. The water-soluble vitamins, C, riboflavin (B-2) and thiamin (B-1) are more sensitive to leaching during washing and blanching (quick scalding) processes and to heat used in canning or drying.

(5) False. For maximum vitamin retention, frozen foods should be stored at 0 Degrees (F) (the original set temperature of most home freezers). At storage temperatures of just 15 Degrees (F) or higher, for example, asparagus, peas and lima beans would lose half their vitamin C content in six months.

(6) True. Milling removes the bran, germ and other portions of the grain, which contain vitamins and minerals, and in the process about half of these are lost. (That's why the U.S. government requires fortification of flours).

(7) False. In addition to protecting foods from the development of rancidity (oxidation of fats), BHA and BHT also protect vitamins A and D.

Bringing Back The Birds

Following comments were written by Mary C. Turck of the non-profit Land Stewardship Project, whose aim is to apply religious, ethical and environmental principles of caring for the land and the people on it. The project is built around the concept that farmers and landowners have a moral obligation to the land and that society as a whole shares that obligation. Turck writes as follows:

Back in the early days of the present environmental movement, Rachel Carson's "Silent Spring" moved many with its depiction of songbird deaths due to chemical poisoning and habitat destruction.

In February the Izaak Walton League reported that the black duck population has declined 65 per cent since 1955. The cause? Acid rain is a major problem in the northeastern United States and eastern Canada breeding range of the black duck. In New York's Adirondack Mountains more than 200 lakes are too acid to support any life. Other lakes are affected to lesser degrees, supporting reduced amounts of aquatic life.

In the Midwest the 1970's saw greatly reduced bird populations for another reason — destruction of habitat. Since the early 1970's three million acres of wildlife habitat were converted to cropland in Minnesota alone. In Illinois some wildlife populations dropped by 90 per cent.

A direct relation between bird population and habitat had been dramatically illustrated even earlier, in South Dakota during the era of Soil Bank — 1956-65. The Soil Bank program paid farmers to idle land and keep it in grasses rather than crop production. At its peak the South Dakota pheasant population was over 11 million. When the Soil Bank program ended and land went back under the plow, the bird count dropped to 3.3 million or less.

But all the bird news is not bad — this year should see the beginning of a bird population boom in much of the country for the first time in years. Birds are among the beneficiaries of the Conservation Reserve program, which will pay farmers to retire highly erodible farmland from production for a period of 10 years.

Minnesota has the highest acreage enrollment in the upper Midwest, with more than 500,000 acres in the program. (Iowa has 300,000 to 500,000 acres in the program, followed by North and South Dakota and Nebraska with enrollments between 100,000 and 300,000 acres.) Wildlife experts in Minnesota predict doubling or tripling of the pheasant population, perhaps a thousand per cent increase in sharptail grouse population, and increases in other wildlife as diverse as butterflies, mice, meadowlarks and white-tailed deer.

The Conservation Reserve program was passed in 1986, with backing from both farm and conservation groups. Backers of the legislation and participants in the program should be justly proud of their contribution to preserving the soil, cleaning up streams and lakes and increasing wildlife populations.

Borrowed Nonsense

"What's your hurry?" the patrolmen asked the man he had stopeed for speeding.

"I have an appointment with my psychiatrist," the driver explained nervously, "and if I'm not there on time he starts without me."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

I am gratified that our government has finally become aware of the need to make our economy more competitive in the world marketplace. The U.S. chamber of commerce has been sounding that bugle for a long time and is glad to get some company.

At the same time, the solution is not greater government intervention into the economy with some sort of national economic policy. That could easily become a cure worse than the disease, for the government is conspicuously ill-suited to make economic decisions. In fact, most of what our government can do to help is to undo problems created by Congress in the first place, such as overspending and overregulating.

We must begin with a candid assessment of our assets and weaknesses. When the chips are down, as athletes say, you go with your strength. Our main strength is, and has always been, reliance on our market system and it has served us well. Despite our difficulties, we remain the world's most powerful economy and its largest exporter. We are creating millions of jobs at a time when job creation in most of the world is relatively stagnant. All nations have economic problems, and I think most would gladly swap theirs for ours. We must be doing something right.

I am not suggesting our government sit on its hands and do nothing. To the contrary, there are many things Congress and the administration can do to enhance our competitive posture.

For example, many nations engage in unfair trade practices to our disadvantage. A level playing field is basic to free trade. Congress should require retaliation against nations that violate trade agreements. It also should address issues such as clarification of the foreign corrupt practices act, telecommunications market access, presidential multilateral negotiating authority and strong intellectual property protection.

On the home front, Congress' first priority should be to control federal spending which continues to distort our financial markets. We need to reduce the cost of capital for investment and restore investment tax credits. In a world where most workers earn far less than ours, we simply must invest in the latest, most efficient capital plants and equipment.

But in its haste to do something to make the United States more competitive, Congress must exercise great caution. An ill-considered trade bill could precipitate a trade war in which we, as the world's largest exporter, would have more to lose than anyone. And a full-fledged national economic policy could infuse political considerations into economic decisions, a surefire prescription for disaster.

We must proceed with deliberate speed and develop policies and legislation that will enhance the power and reach of private enterprise, not circumscribe it. We have the best economic engine in the world. All we have to do is rev it up and turn it loose.

Too many new reporters are treating the liability insurance crisis like a boxing match between Muhammed Ali and Joe Frazier, with the legal profession and insurance industry fighting it out in an arena for public amusement.

One newspaper columnist in Washington said his reaction to the fracas was the same as to the Iran-Iraq war: let it continue. Unfortunately the primary victims of this particular altercation are not the combatants in the ring, but the spectators in the stands — you and I.

A coherent and workable liability insurance system is essential to the orderly function of our society and our economy. The inability of local governments, physicians and businesses, among others, to obtain liability insurance is a critical national problem. Perhaps the most conspicuous victims are small businesses that are at severe disadvantage against foreign competitors who are shielded from liability suits.

At a time when our country is struggling mightily to become more competitive in the world marketplace, we can hardly afford this kind of economic suicide.

Those who point the finger at the insurance industry, it seems to me, are focusing on the symptom instead of the disease. The liability crisis did not emerge because accidents and injuries suddenly became more common. Rather, it emerged because of dramatic shifts in legal doctripes that led to more frequent and larger jury awards. Insurance is a business like any other and must be able to protect revenues based upon anticipated gains and losses. Many firms are abandoning liability insurance altogether because, in the current legal climate, such projections are impossible.

Now, at long last, there is hope the legal profession will face this problem squarely and 1987 will bring more light and less heat. A special committee of the American Bar association has issued a report which, in effect, concedes some of the fault lies with the legal system.

Among other things, the panel said judges should make greater use of their power to intervene in disproportionate verdicts, that punitive damages should be more difficult to obtain and that lawyers' fees should be subject to scrutiny and limitations. Perhaps its most significant recommendation concerned the concept of joint and severable liability. Under present law, a defendant held only marginally responsible for loss or injury can be held fully liable for a judgement. The attorneys said defendants held only 25 per cent responsible or less should not be fully liable for the award.

Of course, that would leave defendants ruled 40 per cent responsible still liable for 100 per cent of an award, but it's a start. The key issue here is that some serious ABA attorneys have done real soul-searching and made gutsy recommendations that would go a long way toward easing the crisis. I tip-my-hat to them and am eager to see if the full ABA embraces their recommendations at its upcoming convention.

$4.3 Million Grant To Aid Research About Middle Ear Infection

A $4.3 million grant from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) will help researchers at the otitis media research program of the University of Minnesota medical school unravel the complex factors involved in preventing and treating childhood middle ear infections.

Usually a result of a common cold, otitis media — or middle ear infection — is a painful fact of life for many children, some of whom require surgery or suffer partial hearing loss despite antibiotic treatment. Half of all children develop otitis media at least once by their first birthday, and one-third will have three or more ear infections by the time they are three years old, said Dr. G. Scott Giebink, pediatrics professor and director of the otitis media research program.

Ear infections are diagnosed one of every six times a child visits a doctor, and otitis media is the most frequent reason antibiotics are prescribed for children, said Giebink, who is also president of the Minnesota chapter of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Many parents of children who have persistent ear infections despite antibiotic treatment wrestle with the question of whether to surgically insert tiny plastic tubes in one or both of the child's eardrums. These tubes allow fluid to drain, preventing pressure from building up in the middle ear, which can cause scarring of the eardrum and hearing loss.

Unfortunately, acute ear infections with fever and ear pain may only be "the tip of the iceberg," Giebink said. "We diagnose and treat the acute problem, but in many children there is an underlying chronic disease that remains undetected. Our major problem is determining which child has chronic ear disease and which has a simple acute ear infection."

To address the wide range of problems contributing to otitis media, the university assembled a team of researchers with expertise in many areas, including pediatrics, otolaryngology, audiology, biometry, anatomy and pharmacology. Laboratory research and initial clinical studies were conducted under the first-ever NIH program grant for otitis media research, which began in 1978.

"During the past eight years the research team has made important advances in understanding the mechanisms that lead to otitis media," Giebink said. "We know which of the bacterial organisms cause acute otitis media and chronic ear fluid. This takes us light years ahead in knowing which treatments to try. We have discovered a great deal about the immunology of ear infections — how the body defends itself against ear disease. This has enabled us to work with scientists to develop vaccines that would protect children against otitis media."

The most recent — and largest — NIH grant, announced January 1, will fund clinical studies of new treatment strategies for children throughout the Twin Cities. The clinical studies will involve pediatricians, otolaryngologists and audiologists at Park Nicollet medical center in St. Louis Park, as well as many other community physicians.

The first clinical trial, scheduled to begin February 1, will evaluate new treatments for middle ear infections in children scheduled to have tubes inserted. Previous clinical projects revealed that one in 20 of those children continued to have ear problems and will suffer some hearing loss, Giebink said.

Five hundred children will be studied using tubes plus either antibiotic and anti-inflammatory drug treatment or placebo therapy. The children will be followed for three years to determine if the drug treatment prevents ear complications and hearing loss.

Other projects in the otitis media research program will evaluate the effectiveness of new antibiotics that have shown promise in laboratory tests.

"The antibiotics now in use leave pieces of bacteria in the middle ear, which may cause the body to continue to send infection-fighting cells to the ear, prolonging the problem," Giebink said. "We suspect that certain antibiotics may leave no trace of the bacteria and will help us avoid this problem."

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

Our "capital budget" sets aside money to be used for new construction projects and for repair of existing buildings. Governor Perpich's recent proposal of a $654.4 million capital budget for the next biennium is the largest ever. The sheer size of the budget, as well as the proposed method of financing it, are both certain to be controversial.

The major items included by the governor break down as follows:

Higher Education: At $271.4 million, the higher education budget alone is almost as large as the last two capital budgets. The largest item is the University of Minnesota at $99 million. Of that, $79 million is for the Twin Cities campuses and $20 million is for greater Minnesota. Projects in the state university system are allocated $75.2 million; the community colleges are slated for $44.2 million; and the AVTIs are listed for $43.8 million. Finally, $10 million is allocated for repair and replacement projects.

Environmental: Of the $150 million budgeted for environmental projects, one-half goes to wastewater treatment and combined sewer overflow. The next largest item, at $36 million, is the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) program. The rest is allocated as follows: $21.3 million to the department of natural resources for building projects, outdoor recreation projects and dams; $9 million for metro area parks; $6 million for a Lake Minnetonka park; and finally, $3 million for the outdoor recreation grant program.

Capitol Complex and State Agencies: The Capitol complex is slated for $118 million and state agencies $55 million. The largest two items are the new history center, at $50.1 million, and the new judicial building, at $40.6 million.

Olympic Facilities: The governor proposes three new Olympic training facilities at a total cost of $35 million. These include a swimming complex at the University of Minnesota, a soccer stadium and track and field complex in Blaine, and a multi-sport facility at Biwabik.

Other: Other projects total $24.4 million. These include $9.1 million for new exhibits at the Lake Superior Zoological garden in Duluth and for completion of the Duluth convention center; $9 million for a conference center, craft shop, golf course and arts museum at Ironworld; $4.2 million in planting money for the proposed school for the arts; and $2.1 million to complete construction of the Farm America project at Waseca.

Financing: The controversary over the size of the budget is linked to the controversy over the proposed financing. Existing legislative guidelines dictate that bonding for capital projects in the biennium not exceed three per cent of the total state general fund budget.

The proposed general fund budget is $11.4 billion, and three per cent of that amount is $342 million. The proposed $654.4 million capital budget would be 5.74 per cent of the general fund budget, almost double the present limit.

However, the governor maintains that it does not exceed the limit. Instead, the excess is to be financed separately, through a 15 cent increase in the cigarette tax and a mandatory container deposit program. There is probably going to be some question as to whether the major bond houses, in determining the state's credit rating, will accept this accounting method.

If you have questions or comments on this or any other issue, please call me at (612) 296-8660, or write to me at 306 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, 55155.

Customer Has Choice In Telephone Repairs

According to the Minnesota Attorney General's office, in recent years consumers have been faced with an every increasing number of choices with regard to their telephone service. Many people are still somewhat baffled by the break-up of AT&T. A frequently heard lament is, "It used to be so simple, and it worked. What did they have to go and do that for?"

Of course, it can be confusing. Should you rent your phone, or buy; what features do you want in your service and equipment; and, which long distance carrier should you choose? These are just some of the decisions consumers must now confront. With the growing movement toward deregulation of the telecommunications industry, there are likely to be more decisions to be made.

A case in point may be instructive on how consumers can make informed decisions on the services being made available. A recent order by the Federal Communications Commission detariffed the installation and maintenance of inside wiring effective January 1, 1987. This means that the rates charged customers for installation and repair of inside wiring are no longer regulated. In response to this, some Minnesota telephone companies are offering a kind of service contract to their customers in the event repairs might be needed.

Generally, for a small monthly payment, these plans provide that if you have a problem with your phone service your telephone company will send a repair person to isolate the problem, and, if it is found to be with the inside wiring, they will repair it at no additional charge. Some plans might also provide a replacement or "loaner" phone while yours is being repaired, although they do not cover the cost of repairing your phone or phone cords.

If you are thinking of subscribing to such a service there are a number of things to consider. First, the plans cover only the inside wiring, which is the wire within the confines and shelter of your home. The outside wire leading up to your home remains the responsibility of your telephone company to maintain. The copper wire inside your home does not corrode, is not exposed to elements, is often protected inside walls and, if it is not, if properly secured has little likelihood of damage.

The key questions are just what kind of damage is covered, and, what is the likelihood of that occurring? Does the plan cover the wire being chewed by your dog, or practiced on with a sissors by an adorable grandchild? Does it protect against fire, or natural events such as lightning? Consider that a great majority of service disruptions are either the result of problems with the outside line or the telephone itself and are not in any way related to inside wiring.

Another factor is that there can be a significant charge just to determine that it is an inside wire problem. For many consumers this can be a simple procedure. In homes built since the mid-seventies or homes that have been recently rewired, there is normally a "black box" at the junction that the telephone wire enters the house. The "box" contains a phone jack and, after checking your phone to be sure it is working, you can simply plug it into the jack. If the phone does not work the problem is with the outside wire and it is your telephone company's responsibility.

Of course, for some, the dollar or two a month such plans typically cost will be worth it, if for nothing else than having the peace of mind of knowing where to call if a problem develops and not having to be concerned over a possible repair bill. For others, a more pragmatic approach to deciding if this service is really cost effective may be appropriate. Over a period of several years that dollar or two a month can add up to $100 or more. Consider that an inexpensive replacement phone can be purchased for under $10. Consider how much it has cost you in the past for repairs to your inside wire, and the likelihood that it might be damaged in some way that's covered by your telephone company.

In deciding whether this service is right for you, remember that there are other options. Many stores now carry do-it-yourself telephone installation and repair supplies and have knowledgeable salespeople to give assistance. Many other contractors are available to perform this kind of work. Even if you're in a situation where your telephone company has assessed a charge to determine the problem is in the inside wire, it may be worthwhile to shop around for someone who might do the repair for substantially less than your telephone company. Finally, if you sign up, or have already signed up for such a service remember that it is a deregulated, optional service and you may cancel at any time without any further charge.

For more information on telephone wire maintenance agreements or on other consumer matters contact the Attorney General's Consumer Division, in St. Paul: Room 124 Ford Building, 117 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55155, (612) 296-3353; in Duluth: Room 708 Government Services Center, 320 W. 2nd Street, Duluth, MN 55802, (218) 723-4891.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hottis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

One of the hardest working guys I know is a long time enthusiastic employee of the U.S. Small Business administration. He knows small business because he has a successful small family business. He understands the problems of starting a business and keeping it going. Whenever I have visited with him, he has been providing advice to potential and existing small businesspeople. I have watched him work through lunch and after hours.

When a disturbed and depressed Bob (and that isn't his name) recently called me, I remembered our last discussion, when he suggested that I might write and broadcast something positive about the SBA. I did. I mentioned a small company, with SBA financial support and counseling, that had financed a new factory with modern equipment that made it competitive and able to handle big contracts. That company now employs hundreds and supports more than a thousand.

I remembered an SBA, two decades (and more) ago as an agency that took risks and provided experienced advice and training because it understood that small business creates most of our new jobs and new products and services.

Bob said that he was now convinced that the SBA we knew had changed, and was no longer effective as a tool for development of small business. Bob felt that the SBA had degenerated into a wastefull bureaucracy with one primary objective, the support of the bureaucrats and those others who got money, effectively the "pigs at the trough."

He documented these comments by pointing out that of the 14-15 million existing small businesses, fewer than two-tenths of one per cent ever got any SBA assistance. He said that of the 550,000 to 650,000 new small businesses starting up each year, less than two per cent ever had any contact with the SBA.

In surveys of existing small business, he found that a cross section of small business feels that the SBA is a waste of time, money, and energy. He was bothered by SBA spending more money every year and effectively achieving less. He was concerned about SBA advice, since most of the paid dispensers of such advice had no real business experience, which he likened to someone with no real knowledge cutting out your appendix.

Bob had been part of SBA's management assistance program. He was concerned that the current crop of management assisters, all on the federal "take" except for SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives) and ACE (Active Corps of Executives) unpaid volunteers, were attaching themselves to "clients" like "paid friends" (which is what they are). He also was upset because the SBA loans program had become so tight, that even good ideas were having trouble getting financing. It appeared easier to get money from bankers than the SBA. He watched loan after loan being turned down. Somehow he noticed that there appeared to be preferred consultants who charge fees and are able to get SBA loans approved, while others, equally qualified, cannot make any headway. He also noticed that the SBA no longer was spending time on the very small working capital loans that are small business' biggest and most-difficult-to-satisfy need.

Bob said that almost a fifth of the guaranteed loans are not being paid and between 30 and 40 per cent of the direct loans were not current. Almost four billion dollars in payments have been made to banks on SBA guaranteed loans and there have been estimates that this payment total could hit as much as seven billion dollars. Bob estimated that maybe as many as 90 per cent of SBA's 5,000 payrollers are involved with the loan program, leaving only about 500 for everything else attributed to SBA.

Bob had been proud of SBA in the past, but he now felt that it deserved to be "put to sleep" like an old dog in pain. He summed it up by saying that he had given this a lot of thought. He was increasingly disturbed by what he saw as a decline in quality of staff, from experienced and dedicated people to a bureaucracy, with an ever increasing paper work load, more forms and reports. All of this paperwork, which consumes time that isn't being spent with small business, is designed to justify spending more money to keep the bureaucrats on ever larger payrolls. He estimates that half of his time is spent on this wasteful paperwork.

I listened to Bob. I was upset because I have been a strong supporter of the Small Business administration. I asked Bob if anything could be done. He passed on some "horror stories" and said, "No." Bob believes that the surveys of small business are right; most small business doesn't support the SBA. Maybe they know something that Congress doesn't know!

With our warm temperatures we have lost a lot of our snow and the Red Lake river is open and running. We also have lots of water setting around the yards and driveways. On Sunday morning we woke to cooler temperatures and a cold northwest wind, feels a little more like winter. Sunday was also a special day at Faith Lutheran. We installed our new minister, Pastor Robert Dahlen. We welcome Robert, his wife, Sheila and their family to our community. We wish them much happiness here.

Fire Death Toll For State Up 40 Per Cent

The state's fire death toll, 79, with one month remaining in 1986, is 40 per cent above the 1985 toll. Citizens need to be more aware of home fire hazards, warns the Minnesota department of public safety.

Over 80 per cent of the fire deaths this year have occurred in family dwellings, mobile homes or apartments, according to state fire marshall statistics.

"There are an average of 12 fires each day in one and two-family dwellings in Minnesota each year. These fires have caused 51 deaths so far this year. Every family should be prepared for fire by installing smoke detectors and fire extinguishers, and by preparing and practicing home fire drills," said Richard Larson, acting state fire marshal. "Most home fires can be prevented by following practical measures that nearly everyone can employ."

Smoking continues to be a leading cause of fatal home fires. In Minnesota smoking and smoking materials have accounted for approximately 22 per cent of the fire deaths so far this year. Have plenty of safe ashtrays available and never put a lighted cigarette down anywhere except in an ashtray. Never smoke when you are drowsy or in bed.

Make sure that there are no butts smoldering in the ashtray when you empty it. A good idea is to dump ashtrays into a metal container, which would then be emptied into a trash can outside. Avoid smoking in areas that have a lot of combustible materials, such as the attic or when using flammable liquid products. Finally, keep matches and lighters out of reach of children.

Wood stoves and fireplaces contributed to seven deaths in Minnesota last year and two so far in 1986. Major factors causing problems with these appliances were improper maintenance, unsafe installation and equipment left unattended. Make sure that stoves and chimneys are installed with proper clearances from combustibles. Chimneys should be inspected at least twice during the heating season but preferably twice monthly. It is important to note that long duration, slow burning of wood, especially with improperly seasoned wood, creates serious soot and creosote problems.

If you have or intend to buy a portable kerosene heater, make sure the unit has a U.L. or FM listing and follow the manufacturer's instructions exactly. Use only the best grade of kerosene, usually called K-1 or water clear. Never, under any circumstances, substitute any other type of fuel as this may result in a fire or incomplete combustion.

Proper maintenance of kerosene heaters is also important for safe use. Remember, portable kerosene heaters are supplemental heaters only and should never be used as a substitute for your home's heating system. It is absolutely essential that sufficient ventilation be provided to avoid possible carbon monoxide poisoning.

Being inside more can result in the increased use of appliances, television, lights, power tools, hobby equipment, etc. Make certain your electrical system is up to handling the job. If you repeatedly blow fuses or trip circuit breakers, chances are your system is overloaded or the load is not properly distributed. Before using a high-wattage appliance such as an iron or a heater, be sure the circuit to be used is adequate.

Many people use portable electric heaters during cold weather which may overload wiring and present direct fire and shock hazards if they are not used and cared for properly. Always set portable electric heaters away from combustibles and in places where they will not be accidentally bumped over. Do not stand or walk near a heater because it might set fire to your clothing, especially those loose, long nightgowns and robes. All heaters should have a safety switch that turns off the power to the element in case they are knocked over or picked up. Older heaters lacking this feature should be replaced with safer and probably more efficient new untis.

Keep appliances in good repair and refrain from using extension cords whenever possible. Check all power cords, especially the plug and the part that enters the body of the unit. Repair or replace all faulty cords and all defective wiring and equipment without delay. Avoid the use of extension cords, but if you feel you must temporarily use one, be especially careful where it is placed. Never run extension cords through doorways, windows or under carpet where they may be damaged.

Never store gasoline in the house for any reason. Keep gasoline in approved containers in the garage. Gasoline will ignite down to a temperature of -45 degrees Fahrenheit and so it is not necessary to keep it warm for your snowblower, snowmobile or car.

Official State Highway Maps Now Available

"Explore Minnesota" official state highway map for 1987-88 has been issued by the Minnesota department of administration in cooperation with the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) and the Minnesota office of tourism. Minnesota's highway map is currently published every other year.

New to this year's map is a chart of the state's 25 historic sites, operated by the Minnesota Historical society and open to the public; an index to Minnesota's 87 counties; and inset maps of all cities with a population greater than 10,000. Each of these city maps includes the city's main streets and major public facilities — hospital(s), post office, city hall, courthouse, parks and colleges.

Seven city maps (red Wing, Northfield, Fergus Falls, Marshall, Fairmont, Cloquet and Worthington), included on the state map for the first time, were created using "computer mapping" technology, according to Mn-DOT cartographer, Dennis Brott.

Other changes to the 1987-88 map include a larger inset map of the Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan area, larger type on the Minnesota index to cities and a more convenient fold.

On the reverse side, the narrative traces the state's history from the 17th century, when the territory was occupied by French and British settlers, to the present. Color photos and original illustrations accompany the stories on Minnesota's prairies, waterways, woodlands and historic iron range. Travelers can experience this heritage at historic sites, state parks and other attractions across the state.

Individual copies of the state highway map are available free from the Minnesota Office of Tourism, 375 Jackson St., 250 Skyway Level, St. Paul, MN 55105, or by visiting any of the nine highway travel information centers operated by the department of transportation. Call the office of tourism weekdays at (612) 296-5029 in the Twin Cities area or toll-free at 1-800-652-9747 from within Minnesota (ask for the travel information center) or 1-800-328-1461 nationally.

Additional copies of the map may be purchased from the documents division of the department of administration for 60 cents each up to 25 copies, with discounts for larger orders. Contact the Documents Division, 117 University Ave., St. Paul, MN 55155, (612) 297-3000 or 1-800-652-9747 (ask for documents division). These phone orders for additional copies of the state map may be charged to Visa or Mastercard.

DR. CURTIS BRING, chairman of the computer science department at Moorhead State university in Moorhead, presented a lecture on teaching methods in computer classes to teachers during the Northwest regional techonology conference at Northland community college in Thief River Falls. About 200 people attended the event which covered a variety of topics on computers in the classroom. Teachers as well as students heard lectures on topics, which included desktop publishing to satellites and copyrights. The event was held March 4 at the college. Duane Loewen, regional technology coordinator, believed the one-day event was a success. He expects another similar event will be held in the Spring. Not only were there lectures, but vendors displayed the latest in technology. A robot lathe was a big crowd pleaser at the college.

Minnesota OSHA To Hold Grain Elevator Seminars

Since 1980, there have been eleven fatalities and forty injuries in grain dust explosions in Minnesota. Nationally, there have been forty-two fatalities and two hundred eight injuries since 1980.

The Department of Labor and Industry Occupational Safety and Health Division is addressing this hazard by offering a half-day seminar on "Grain Elevator Hazards" to discuss the latest standards and state-of-the-art procedures.

The seminars will be held throughout the state from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon at the following locations: March 19, at Rochester, March 20, at St. Paul, March 24, at Crookston, March 25, at Fergus Falls, March 26, at Marshall, March 27, at Mankato.

The fee for this seminar is $20. For registration information call 612-296-2116.

Pesticide Users Advised To Get Certification

All users of restricted pesticides who do not have a current applicator's license are encouraged to attend one of four upcoming certification meetings.

Certification programs will be conducted by the Marshall county extension office as follows: Monday, 1 p.m Stephen filtration plant; Tuesday, 10 a.m., Grygla civic center and 1 p.m., Newfolden community center; and Wednesday, March 11, 1 p.m., Warren courthouse basement meeting room.

The law states that applicators must be certified before they can buy or apply restricted use pesticides. The environmental protection agency is constantly reviewing all chemicals. Many general use chemicals are now being reclassified for restricted use.

"That means you won't be able to use certain pesticides you've used in the past if they're reclassified and you're not certified," states Ray Thompson, Marshall county extension director.

Jean Adams Gets Degree; Still Going Strong At 63

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Jean Adams of rural Erskine won't be assisting with surgery at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls May 9 as she has for the past 11 years. She will be in North Windham, Maine, receiving her bachelor of science degree in professional arts from St. Joseph's college.

The diminutive grandmother of five who raises pedigreed Irish Wolfhounds for a hobby, Mrs. Adams earned her four-year degree through a correspondence program which she began in December 1980. She previously had a three-year Registered Nurse degree from Paterson General hospital in Paterson, NJ, which she earned in March of 1945.

Mrs. Adams learned about St. Joseph's external degree program through a notice received in the mail and decided to investigate the possibilities. The college established the program in 1976 — 64 years after it was established as a college — and since that time has had 3,600 graduates. There are currently 7,600 actively working on their degrees and another 2,100 who are considered inactive, having not submitted a lesson for six months or more. About 450 to 470 students graduate from the external studies program each year and there are students of St. Joseph's in 18 foreign countries.

For Mrs. Adams to earn a degree, she had to complete five different programs established by the college. While most of her credits have been earned through correspondence, she did earn nine credits in a concentrated three-week program on campus in August of 1985. The on-campus study is a requirement. While 36 credits are needed for the degree, Jean earned 39 during her six years of study. Her major was in education.

There are now several other Northwest Medical center staff members taking courses through the external studies program, but Jean is the first to complete her degree. She said she recommends the program to other nurses as a good way to get a degree. "You can work in your profession, be involved with your family and community activities and still earn a BSN or other degree," she said.

While enrolled in the program, local students each have a proctor who sits with them during final exams. Arden Barnes, the hospital's anaesthesiologist, served as Jean's proctor.

JEAN ADAMS has her hands full — not only with this trio of pedigreed Irish Wolfhounds but as a surgical nurse at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls and a college student by correspondence course. She has recently completed the 36 credits necessary for a bachelor of science degree in professional arts from St. Joseph's college in North Windham, Maine. She will go to Maine to receive her degree at commencement exercises on May 9. Jean has been employed at Northwest Medical center for about 11 years, raising wolfhounds for the past dozen years, and taking the correspondence course since December of 1980.

8th Book And Author Dinner Set April 10

Eighth annual book and author dinner co-sponsored by Northwest Regional library system, Northland community college library and School District 564 libraries will be conducted April 10 at 6:30 p.m. at the lower level of Lon's Restaurant in Thief River Falls. Tickets at $10 each will go on sale Thursday at local college, public school and regional libraries.

Featured speaker for the dinner will be Will Weaver, author of "Red Earth, White Earth," a novel dramatizing the difficulties facing American agriculture, exploring the role of women in farm families of Scandinavian descent and focusing on continuing tensions between American Indians and white people in America.

Weaver said a key stimulus for writing of the novel came from his own background. His grandfather established a farm within the confines of the White Earth Indian reservation. In the 1980's the White Earth band attempted to regain their "lost" reservation land by reclaiming the land, including Weaver's grandfather's farm.

Born in 1950 in north central Minnesota, Weaver grew up on a dairy farm and attended a small country school. The farm had no radio or television and the family did not go to the movies. Farm work was hard but provided him with time to use his imagination and to read.

He did his first writing in high school English classes, mostly sketches about life on the farm. He majored in English at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis, graduated in 1972 and moved to California where he began to write seriously. California provided him with a vantage point to look at the American Midwest where he had spent the early years of his life.

In 1978 he returned to this area to be closer to his subject matter, now living only 50 miles from his birthplace and teaching English and creative writing at Bemidji state university. With his wife and two young children he continues to operate his family's farm.

Among his literary awards are grants for fiction in 1979 and 1983 from the Minnesota state arts board,

Appeal Period Begins On Elm Lake Water Project

Persons opposed to the decision of the Red Lake Watershed district board of managers to approve the Elm Lake project in eastern Marshall county have 30 days from last Thursday to appeal the decision to the district court. The appeal must be based on the findings of fact as approved by the board at its meeting Thursday in Thief River Falls.

Without any discussion on the matter at its meeting Thursday, the board of managers voted four to three in favor off the project which will provide for a water control and wildlife project paid for by Ducks Unlimited and cost approximately $1.5 million. A public hearing on the project had been held February 4 in Thief River Falls at which virtually all of the testimony was in opposition to the project.

Roll-call vote Thursday resulted in Arnold Person of Oklee, Russell Sander of Fosston and Paul Brekken of Crookston voting in favor and Richard Dougherty of Grygla, Lloyd Wiseth of Goodridge and Truman Sandland of Clearbrook opposed. Board chairman Verner Arveson of Trail, after declaring the tie vote and addings "Thanks a lot," cast his vote in favor to break the tie.

Fewer than 10 people other than the board of managers were in attendance at the meeting for the vote, all appearing to be in opposition to the project. They asked about appealing the decision and if they should be represented by an attorney. Neil McEwen, attorney for the watershed district, suggested that it would be a good idea.

Having reached a decision on the project, the board later in its meeting approved the findings of fact and issued the official order for the project to be adopted. There is a 30-day period following the order in which an appeal may be filed. A spokesman for those in attendance at the meeting said it is likely a meeting of opponents will be held this week or early next week to determine a further course of action. He said it will be up to the group to decide if an appeal will be forthcoming.

Opponents of the project at the February 4 hearing had cited a number of reasons for their opposition. Included were increased waterfowl depredation of crops, adverse affects on drainage upstream from the project, placement of a control structure in the ditch system, control of water levels by "the fish and game department" (actually the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service), and devaluation of farmland in the area.

Attorney McEwen pointed out that appeal must be based on the findings of fact determined by the watershed board. Those findings as determined by the board Thursday are as follows:

(1) That the engineer's report is correct and that the report was made in accordance with state statutes;

(2) That due notice of hearing and the engineer's report was given and that all of the proceedings in the matter have been taken in accordance with the law;

(3) That the project will be laid out and constructed substantially as set forth on the project map;

(4) That flooding immediately downstream from the project along Ditch 200 will be reduced as a result of the additional storage capacity provided by the project;

(5) That the agricultural lands upstream will benefit from the enlarged capacity of Ditch 200 and the ability of the project to store additional water without threatening downstream agricultural lands;

(6) That the project will provide an area for wetland wildlife habitat which will be of public utility and benefit;

(7) That a wildlife depredation problem exists in the area and depredation pressure may increase in the immediate area of this possible loss;

(8) That the change of course and regulation of Branch 200 of Judicial Ditch 11 will not impair the utility of the ditch nor deprive landowners of benefit of the ditch;

(9) That the proposed changes of Branch 212 of Judicial Ditch 11 does not impair any private owner's utility or benefit;

(10) The project, by tying together and providing for major benefit in flood control, wildlife habitat improvement and drainage, is in accordance with the overall plan of the Red Lake Watershed district which provides, in part as follows: "To encourage the establishment of water reservoirs in the district, when the establishment of such reservoirs will produce significant benefits, are in the public interest, are economically justifiable and do not adversely affect the environment;

(11) That the proposed work will be of public utility and benefit and will promote public health and the proposed work is practicable and the reports of the engineer are complete and correct;

(12) That due notice of the hearing and the reports have been given by law and all of the proceedings have been made and taken in accordance with the law.

The order establishes the Elm Lake control impoundment project as watershed district Project No. 52 and authorizes parties to enter into the necessary contracts for construction and to obtain the necessary land rights.

All of the impoundment and most of the remainder of the project will be accomplished on publicly owned lands. A small amount of the project will include ditch improvement upstream from the present Lost River pool located north of Ditch 200 on state wildlife management area lands.

SERVICE PLAQUE for seven years of membership on the Red Lake Watershed district board of managers was presented Thursday by Verner Arveson of Trail (left), board chairman, to Todd Stanley of Grygla. As Beltami county representative on the board, Stanley was recognized "for his dedicated commitment to water management" in 1980-1987.

Cook's Choice

If you're looking for something green to serve on St. Patrick's day, look no further. This unusual soup has an attractive green color, a thick, creamy consistency, and a mild flavor. The spinach adds considerably to the nutrient content of this hearty potato soup

POTATO SOUP VERDE

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 small onion, finely chopped
4 large potatoes, peeled and cubed one-third cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ cup chopped parsley
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
1 10-ounce package frozen, chopped spinach, water as directed salt to taste
¼ to one-third cup warm skim milk (optional)
2 to 3 tablespoons wine vinegar, to taste

In a deep saucepan, place oil and onions. Saute onions until translucent. Add cubed potatoes, grated cheese, parsley, pepper and frozen spinach. Pour in just enough water to cover all the ingredients. (If soup becomes too thick add more water.)

Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally. When potatoes are tender, pour mixture into blender (half at a time) and blend until smooth. Salt to taste. Stir in vinegar and warm milk, if desired and transfer to serving bowl.

This will yield 6 servings of 1¼ cups, each with 150 calories and 4 grams of fat.

Another potato recipe for St. Paddy's day in the green Irish tradition is:

COLCANNON

3 large potatoes (1½ pounds total), peeled and halved
1 pound cabbage
½ medium onion, sliced
two-thirds cup evaporated lowfat milk freshly ground pepper to taste

Cover potatoes with water in large Dutch oven or pot; boil until tender, about 20 minutes.

While potatoes cook, trim and slice cabbage. Add to pan, adding more water as necessary.

Combine onion and evaporated milk in medium saucepan. Simmer over medium heat until onion is soft, about 15 minutes.

When potatoes and cabbage are tender, drain water from pan. Spoon potatoes into bowl and mash. Add cabbage and milk-onion mixture, season with pepper to taste and serve.

This will produce about 8 one-cup servings, each with only 89 calories and one gram of fat.

The INSIDE SCOOP

by GAYLE BORCHERT

Lincoln will play host to a variety of events this week. The first is scheduled to happen on Wednesday in the cafeteria, when the Knowledge Bowl team will host a nine-team meet. Thursday will be the student science days and Lincoln will again play host to all area students involved in science. Friday Lincoln students will get a lyceum in the auditorium.

The ice show is this weekend at the sports arena. Skaters who can barely walk to those in the advanced level will participate. That a person can letter in skating is probably one of the best-kept secrets at Lincoln. There will be two performances of the ice show Salute to America on Saturday and one on Sunday.

Happy St. Patrick's Day early. Since we live in one of those areas highly dominated by Scandinavians, it's nice that some other nationalities are allowed to celebrate their heritage.

The boys swim team will hold its banquet on Monday, March 16. They should be congratulated for sending two of their members to the state swim meet. Paul Glauque will participate in the 100 fly and Shon Thompson in diving. The team title was won by Brainerd.

"Indians have reasserted their claim to the flatlands where the Pehrsson farm lies, which exploitive bankers also threaten to repossess; his mother has fled her empty marriage; and his childhood friends are adult now, with lives and dreams alien to his own. What Guy must confront is not just a family crisis, but the crisis of his painful emergence as a man capable of feeling, loving and forgiving."

Jean Adams Earns College Degree By Correspondence

One of the most difficult arts of the external studies program was the inability to exchange ideas with other students, she said. The college provides a toll-free telephone number so students can talk to professors, she said, and she used that service several times. She also discussed some of the subject matter with her co-workers at the hospital.

Mrs. Adams said that she took longer than many to complete the course because she didn't push her self as much as she could have. She was on call every fifth weekend, she said, and instead of going home she would stay at the hospital, using the time between calls to study her lessons or to write.

She also said her studies had a setback when her English professor — who she had learned to know quite well over the telephone but had never met in person — was killed in an automobile accident. She met most of her other professors when she was on campus in 1985. Her final research paper — a 14-page study report — was written about AIDS.

After earning her RN degree in 1945, Jean served in the army nurse corps for two years at Fort Devens, Massachusetts. She then did private duty nursing until meeting her husband who was from Fresno, CA. They lived in California until 1973 when they purchased a farm between Brooks and Erskine in east Polk county.

She and her husband George, a retired Master Chief after 22 years in the U.S. navy, raise and show Irish Wolfhounds and operate a boarding kennel. Jean says she enjoys the huge dogs and the experience of taking them to shows around a wide area.

She smiles when recalling one show judge who suggested that they take their male dog home "and be good to him", inferring that he was not a suitable animal for the show ring. "But we kept taking him to shows and at the next five he placed as best of breed and earned his champion designation," she said.

They have raised the dogs for about a dozen years, importing their first animal from England. At present they have five wolfhounds, including their breeding females, the champion male and a 160-pound, one-year-old puppy.

George and Jean have four children, a son Kirk and daughter Gail Dehne in Seattle, WA; daughter Pamela (Mrs. James Paloma) of Oregon City, OR; and daughter Louisa (Mrs. Rogert Monfort) of DeMotte, IN. George also has a daughter in Grand Rapids, MI.

In addition to showing their dogs, Jean enjoys gardening and such indoor crafts as knitting, crocheting, tatting and cross-stitching.

Why would a grandmother sitting on the edge of retirement age want to spend $5,000 to earn a college degree.

"There's a certain self-satisfaction in earning a degree," Jean admits. "It's a good feeling and gives a person a sense of pride. It also assists in the pay level, but probably not enough to merit the cost at this point. I would like to teach some day..."

And through it all Jean insists she would do it over again. "It's fascinating that you really can learn when you get older," she said.

Daffodil Days Proclaimed By Mayor Carlson

Daffodil Days in Thief River Falls March 30 through April 5 have been proclaimed by Mayor Bob Carlson, according to Wes Johnson, chairman of the promotion for the local chapter of the American Cancer society.

Mayor Carlson's proclamation notes that there is a great need for additional funds for cancer research and that the American Cancer society has sponsored innumerable vital cancer research projects, public education and patient service programs.

"Through the work of the American Cancer Society, the people of Thief River Falls now look forward to the day when a cure for cancer is found," Mayor Carlson said.

In proclaiming Daffodil Days as a fund-raising project for the society, Mayor Carlson urged all residents of the community to join with volunteers in the Pennington county cancer society to "support this special occasion by purchasing and wearing or displaying a daffodil — the flower of hope."

Arthritis Can Cause Foot Pain And Deformity

Some forms of arthritis can cause foot pain and deformity, but there are a number of ways to keep feet comfortable and make walking less painful, reports the Arthritis foundation.

Those who have foot problems due to arthritis should make sure their shoes provide good ankle and arch support, as well as a comfortable fit. A pair of running shoes is a good choice because they provide support and cushioning for feet. Those whose feet are tender should look for a pair of shoes with soft soles, such as rubber or crepe, or put inserts of rubber or foam into hard-soled shoes. Wearing open-toed sdandals can reduce pressure and friction on feet.

A doctor, physical therapist or podiatrist can give advice on getting the right shoes. For more information, contact the Arthritis Foundation and request a copy of the brochure "Arthritis and Foot Pain." Telephone number is 1-800-552-1278.

Dear Readers,
The old-fashioned funeral arose from a deep emotional need and aids in the healthy grieving process, says Rev. Edgar Jackson, author of "You and Your Grief". The grieving process enables the bereaved to adjust to loss and to accept an altered reality. Feelings of guilt, like those of anger, are normal accompaniments of grief and the bereaved must be helped to overcome them for his mental health.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

Police Chief Suspended

East Grand Forks — Mayor Louis Murray of East Grand Forks has verified that East Grand Forks Police Chief Kermit Sundin has been suspended for 60 days for "lack of leadership." The action is at least partly the result of complaints from the East Grand Forks police federation, which has noted a lack of direction several times, according to Murray. Sundin, who has been in law enforcement for 21 years and chief of police for five, has described the suspension as a "stress-related leave." Assistant Chief Jim Milne will serve as acting chief in the interim.

Calling The Shots

Warren — The Warren city council passed a resolution, effective May 31, that the rifle range adjacent to the water reservoir will be closed this year for safety reasons. Larry Jorgenson, representing the Warren gun club, said his organization understood problems involved and was not opposed to the resolution.

Bringing Up Bears

Blackduck — Art and Mary Schuh have two new additions to their family of ten — two and a half-month-old bear cubs. Art Schuh accidentally struck and killed the mother bear with his caterpillar and compassionately took the bear cubs home to raise. The cubs, a black female and a cinnamon-colored male, weighed four pounds, 13 ounces, and three pounds, two ounces, respectively, when they arrived at the Schuh home, and, now weigh six pounds, four ounces and four pounds, four ounces. Mary Schuh said they feed the cubs a puppy replacer called Esbilac, which is mixed with canned milk and water and given every six hours, and "they (the bears) even have to be burped after feeding." The Schuhs plan to introduce the cubs into another sow's den in mid-March, hoping that they will be taken in by the surrogate mother.

Principal Position

Williams — Lake of the Woods high school principal Don Ruud has resigned his position, effective the end of this school year, to pursue a doctorate of education, possibly in a warmer climate. He has tentative plans to study in Florida. Applications for the position of principal at Lake of the Woods high school will be taken until April 15.

Gasoline Leak

Erskine — A bulk storage tank at the Solheim Oil company in Erskine leaked approximately 5,000 gallons of unleaded gasoline last Saturday. Bill Solheim, owner of the oil company, stated that the area around the tanks has been closed off and the Minnesota Pollution agency will be testing the soil for any pollution damage.

Egg Came First

Warroad — The Jake Heppner family, who lives west of Warroad on highway 11, has an unusual pet named Ralph. Ralph is a Sandhill crane that Jake raised from an egg that he found in a flooded field last spring. After Ralph hatched, Jake fed them boiled egg yolks and then a finely pulverized wild bird mash that simulated the regurgitated food that baby cranes get from their parents. Ralph is now about 48 inches tall. He can easily fly alongside a snowmobile traveling at 60 miles an hour, and does so often, enjoying it immensely. Ralph eats grains, minnows and Ann Heppner's home-baked buns soaked in water.

Tri-County Endeavor

Crookston — Norman, Polk and Red Lake counties have joined together to organize a Child Abuse Task Force to address sexual and physical abuse and neglect of children in the tri-county area. Goals are to provide training and foster cooperative action among professionals and lay persons to effectively deal with the abuse of children. Next meeting will be at 7 p.m. March 17 in the community room of the Northwest Regional corrections center, 600 Bruce street, Crookston. Anyone interested in assisting in formulating policies for handling child abuse cases and in learning more about child abuse and the criminal justice system process, from reporting to corrections, is urged to attend. For more information call 281-6363 or 281-4345.

Tobacco-Free

McIntosh — Ron Strom, owner of Strom Drug in McIntosh, has stopped selling tobacco products in his store. Strom said he gave the matter some thought over the last year and resolved not to order any tobacco products as of February 24 of this year. He reached his decision with the help of the Committee of Professional Affairs of the Minnesota Pharmaceutical Association, who will propose a resolution at the June convention suggesting the drug stores and pharmacies in Minnesota no longer sell tobacco products because, "pharmacies are in the health care field and the surgeon general's warning on tobacco products clearly marks these products as a detriment to good health."

Get Along Little Dogie

Red Lake Falls — An old-fashioned cattle drive took place eight miles southeast of Red Lake Falls March 5 when Piche Farms moved 380 cows and calves to higher pasture ground. The drive turned out to be less old-fashioned than it seemed, however, when it was noted that the herd was led by Dennis Piche on a tractor, although other members of the family maintained the old-fashioned image by herding the cattle on horseback.

Like Treatment For Like Offense

Warren — The Warren city council recently passed an ordinance to treat cats the same as dogs in the city by stating that they must be kept under control of their owners and that the same fee will be charged for impoundment of Warren's cats as is charged for Warren's dogs — $15 plus $5 per day of impoundment for expenses.

Burglary Charge

St. Hilaire — Dale Hasby of St. Hilaire was sentenced to 32 months imprisonment on a charge of burglary in the third degree in district court in Crookston last Monday. Charges stemmed from [illegible] incident September 5, 1986, whe[illegible] and an accomplice were all[illegible] found in a farm house in [illegible] township by law enforcem[illegible]ficers. The sentence was s[illegible]or five years on condition Has[illegible]erve five years of supervised pr[illegible]ation, spend one year in the regional corrections center, perform 250 hours of community service, and reimburse the public defender's fund in the amount of $250.

Felony Theft

Trail — Lori Olson, 20, of Trail, was sentenced in district court on a charge of felony theft. Imposition of her sentence was stayed for five years on condition she serve five years of supervised probation, perform 150 hours of community service, pay a $300 fine, $30 surcharge, reimburse the public defender's fund for $150, and make reimbursement of $562.99. Charges stem from an incident in which she allegedly took money from a patient trust fund at McIntosh Manor nursing home in McIntosh while she was employed there in November and December of 1985.

Moose On The Loose

Warren — A young moose made himself at home in Warren for a couple of days last week, visiting the city's Holiday Park and meandering through several back yards near the park. He was last seen Tuesday resting by the river on the west edge of town, just enjoying Warren's hospitality.

Go For It

Baudette — Lake of the Woods county and northwestern Koochiching county are hoping that a National Guard training center will choose to come into their area. The northern Minnesota site is in competition with areas near Northome and Aurora-Hoyt Lakes on the Iron Range and is making plans to wage a concentrated effort to get the training center in their area.

Counterfeiting

Fosston — A Fosston man was among nine people arrested recently in connection with the printing and selling of counterfeit money. Jamie Isaac Raymond, 23, of Fosston, and eight Twin Cities area men were indicted recently by a federal grand jury on a charge of conspiring to make and sell $5,000 to $7,000 worth of fake $50 bills. Some of the bills were passed last fall in fast food restaurants, grocery stores and hardware stores in Bloomington, Shakopee and Burnsville. Raymond and Terrance Smith, 27, of Savage, were also named in connection with making $418,000 in fake $100 bills.

Pheasant Farming

Red Lake Falls — Mike Mohr, owner of Mohr's Pheasant Farm north of Red Lake Falls, is beginning his second year of pheasant farming, providing pheasants for individuals, groups and area sportsmen's clubs. Last year he purchased 50 pheasant chicks at 95 cents each. With a 93 per cent survival rate, the year ended with good results. Mohr kept the best birds for breeding and had the rest processed. He has 25 birds at present and expects eggs to be laid by April 1. According to Mohr, "The pheasant is a very cannabalistic bird, and when too many are put together in a small area, they eventually pick each other to death." Some of the birds wear blinders, like horses, to allow more of them in a smaller space. Sometimes the more aggressive birds undergo a painless process of debeaking in which a portion of their beak is removed so they cannot peck at one another. Mohr said he hopes to expand his venture from an enjoyable hobby to a full-fledged, successful business some day.

One Giant Step To Begin

Warren — The newly formed Star City Commission met for the first time in Warren and found that local citizens were uninformed about Star City status. The commission laid to rest questions on tax increases, and informed other concerned Warren residents on the numerous advantages of Star City status when they were asked just what good would come of it. They said, "The city of Warren and its residents have too much at stake to let Warren go the way of many small cities in rural America. We cannot continue to export our youth to other areas of the state and expect Warren to survive. We need a plan for economic development. Star City is the first step."

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Is "Outstate" An Insult?

This writer has been one over the years who has been turned off by the use of the term "outstate" to describe that part of Minnesota which is not part of the Twin Cities metropolitan area. The usage has been most prominent in the legislature and the state agencies headquartered in St. Paul.

There may be nothing really wrong with the term, except that use of the "out" definition would seem to indicate that the remainder of the state was "in". We once considered distributing buttons at the state newspaper convention which proclaimed, "In Thief River Falls, St. Paul Is Outstate". We thought it might say something about relativity.

Elimination of the term, however, leaves the problem of how to describe that portion of Minnesota not encompassed by the Twin Cities metro area. Perhaps the most factual is just to call it "non-metro". Certainly there is no stigma attached to that. We got a chuckle out of the way the St. Cloud Times addressed the question in a recent editorial. The comments follow:

Pardon us if we're slow to comprehend an insult, but we fail to understand the continuing consternation over the phrase "outstate Minnesota."

The term has come into common use, especially in governmental circles, as a description of all those portions of Minnesota outside of the metropolitan Twin Cities. The state, according to this line of thinking, is clearly divided into those who live the metropolitan life, and everyone else. And we all know where we fit in here in Central Minnesota.

No disparagement seems intended — indeed, many of us are as eager to draw the distinction as our city-dwelling counterparts — but somehow, the term "outstate" has come to be perceived as derogatory and exclusionary. "Upstate New York" and "Downstate Illinois" notwithstanding, some Minnesotans feel snubbed by the designation, and the argument has reached the point at which legislators and politicians find it necessary to spend time discussing the need for an acceptable alternative.

A few positive souls suggested "Greater Minnesota," although their metropolitan colleagues frowned at the implication of "Lesser Minnesota." In general, however, no good alternative has been offered and accepted. We're willing to stick with "outstate," but in the spirit of fraternal fun, we'll offer a few suggestions:

— "Higher Minnesota" and "Lower Minnesota" — We, of course, will be Higher Minnesota, which can be self-satisfyingly interpreted in spiritual terms as well as in relation to a wall map. This designation seems to create problems for residents of the rural areas of southern Minnesota, but then, they have a longer growing season there, so perhaps they wouldn't mind suffering a little on this point.

— "Natural Minnesota" and "Unnatural Minnesota" — This choice has definite possibilities, but it might perpetuate the city-bred notion that nothing much besides grazing and loon-calling goes on outside of the Twin Cities suburbs. On second thought, disregard this choice: The terms would crumble under the unhappy truth about toxic waste dumps and environmental horror stories in the state's rural areas.

— "Congenial Minnesota" and "Congested Minnesota" — This designation properly would make one of the most apparent distinctions between the Twin Cities area and the rest of the state, but it is unlikely that Twin Cities residents would concede.

— "Bigger Minnesota" and "Smaller Minnesota" — It's important to remember, when we're feeling belittled by the metropolitan powers-that-be, that the Twin Cities area may have the most people, but the rest of the state has the most land. This designation might put things into the proper balance.

No Easy Decision

Approval of the Elm Lake project by the board of directors of the Red Lake River Watershed district Thursday afternoon was no easy decision. That is evidenced by the 4-3 vote for passage, since most board actions are either unanimous or with little dissent.

What made the decision most difficult was the expressed opposition to the project by landowners in the area, most of whom are convinced of potential difficulties and thoroughly skeptical of projected benefits. Although we can well understand the concerns which the landowners have expressed publicly and privately, we believe the watershed board could not have acted other than it did if it was to properly fulfill its purpose.

Time will tell, of course, if the proposed benefits are as they are expected to be or if the fears of landowners — primarily increased waterfowl depredation and restricted drainage — will be realized. If we were to make a bet, it would be on the side of the hydrology studies which show benefits rather than problems.

We don't doubt that there will be water and waterfowl problems in the area in the future, but we don't expect them to be substantially increased as a result of the project. Flooding of fields will still occur during heavy spring run-offs and excessive summer showers, but they would occur under present conditions as well. And the waterfowl which can swarm into autumn grain fields will not be comprised mostly of waterfowl produced locally, but from a much wider collective area.

Landowners must not lose sight of the fact that the entire project will be paid for by Ducks Unlimited with privately raised funds. It must also be recognized that a major portion of the project — water diversion and retention in a water impoundment on public lands — would be undertaken anyway. With approval of the entire project, Ducks Unlimited will provide funds for project work beyond what is necessary for wildlife benefit. This is a worthy effort by that organization and should be accepted as such.

We stand to be corrected if we are wrong, but we believe the board members who voted against the project voted with their hearts as much as their heads. They were sympathetic to their neighbors and joined in their concerns, although the overall project benefits from the standpoint of proper resource management must have been evident to them. One can't fault them for voting as they believed their neighbors wanted them to vote.

By the same token, however, neither can the majority who voted in favor of the project be faulted because their votes were based on engineering studies and economic considerations. If you don't think it took a generous helping of courage for board chairman Verner Iverson to vote in favor to break a 3-3 tie, you have never been placed in a similar position.

It is to the credit of all on the board that they could cast their votes as they felt compelled to do and then put the matter behind them as they go on to consider other business. That is the way democratic procedure is intended to work.

Anonymous Letters

On Thursday we received two letters intended for our public opinion column — one dealing with the youth hockey program and one regarding the handicapped parking stalls. Unfortunately for both the writers and the prospective readers, neither will make their way into print. Both were unsigned letters.

While we much prefer writers to identify themselves with the letters as they appear in print, we can understand certain circumstances where names may be properly withheld from publication. But we must have the letters signed when we receive them to consider them for publication.

This is not a new policy. For some months a notice on this opinion page has stated: "All letters must be signed and contain address or phone number of the writer so authenticity can be verified. Names can be withheld on request but published signatures are strongly encouraged."

We will retain both of the letters in question and, if the writers will stop by the office and identify themselves to sign the letters, they can be published. Otherwise they will be discarded and the opinions they express will not be shared with the Times' readership.

Once again we issue this reminder to letter writers and emphasize its importance: If letters are not signed and the writers identified, they will not be published. We hope that is a clear enough statement to be readily understood.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I am writing with concern about the water of Thief River Falls.

Some city officials have stated publicly that "the water is safe to drink." What I want to know is if it is healthy for us.

The water is pumped out of the river into the water treatment plant, where chemcials are added. Their cost is between $50,000 and $60,000 a year. It then is run into a settling basin, then filtered before going into the storage tanks for public use.

There are dead animals such as cows, calves, pigs, chickens, dogs and other domestic animals and wild life floating down the river to the dam, where they are fished out. This is also where the intake pump for our drinking water is located.

Soon will be run off. At this time the water from our faucets I think looks and smells like urine. When using hot water, the smell is enough to make me throw up.

In this Star City are many nursing homes, a medical center and some residents on dialysis machines.

In this area many fertilizers are used for the crops, plus spray for killing weeds and brush. Much of this runs off into the river.

The supervisor of the water treatment plant wants to build a new water plant for $4 million. We would still have river water with chemicals and, I feel, other wastes in it.

I know it is possible for our city to have well water piped into town for $1.5 million.

If any other residents are concerned about this issue let me know or let's hear your comments.

I am a former water plant employee for 17 years.

Doyle Thompson

To The Editor:

Once again local agriculture is about to suffer another serious blow. The Elm Lake project was taken on jointly by the Red Lake Watershed, D.N.R. and Fish and Wildlife service with Ducks Unlimited funding the estimated $1.5 million project.

I feel the two totally different areas they are trying to accomplish will never work together:

(1) Water impoundment with flood control and increased drainage upstream; and

(2) The raising and protection of ducks.

Once the Red Lake Watershed is done constructing this project they have said it would be turned over to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife for control. Now we lost area 1.

We do have three board members who I feel have made a very responsible, sound decision on the project based on fact and testimony in opposition that was presented at the public hearing in February.

As for the other four board members, project engineer and Ducks Unlimited representatives, I feel they were not listening to what was said. We have been presenting several problems and areas of disagreement, such as increased crop depredation, flooding of farm land because of high water levels, disputes in land elevation, restructuring our county ditch and putting a dam in it against township and county opposition, and rerouting a township road and installing a bridge over the reconstructed ditch and leaving townships with the added financial responsibility of upkeep — just to name a few. These areas were brought out to the project engineer over two years ago, in the early planning stage, and continually pushed aside.

In my opinion the Red Lake Watershed district has gotten off the track and maybe their personnel, policy and power should be investigated. We should not have to pay our watershed taxes for what benefits come our way, especially in eastern Marshall county. Again judging by the way this project has been handled, they should be supported from taxes from the D.N.R. and Fish and Wildlife.

Now if Ducks Unlimited wants to force through a project with many flaws in it like this and spend 1.5 million dollars on it, I hope they bring boats and chest waders and good walking shoes along come hunting season. I'm sure they will need them to hunt on only state land. I don't know of any farmer in this area who is going to allow any public hunting on agricultural land as a result of this project. As we all know, that is where the ducks and geese feed — on grain fields, not cattails and swamp grass. I would hope to see every acre of private land posted and enforced to keep out all strangers; after all, I have no way of knowing if someone comes to ask to hunt whether they are Ducks Unlimited members, so I will say no to everyone.

Also I would hope our townships would consider limiting traffic on our township roads that are heavily traveled near state lands, when the four-wheel-drive vehicles start cutting them up during wet conditions. I do not like to see these measures considered, but landowners do own this property. I don't think people living in the city would appreciate me driving on thier lawn in the rain and setting up a dozen decoys and leaving garbage up and down the street.

I would hope our local Ducks Unlimited chapter would see how the posting of land during deer hunting in the Grygla area, on account of the elk problem, had an effect on the Minnesota Deer Hunters organization. I would also hope the local Ducks Unlimited people would tell their higher ups to take a better look at this and pull out their 1.5 million dollars.

My feeling is that the problem of duck depredation is already in the same shape as the elk problem. We cannot put up with these losses and still remain farming. The next people to suffer then are our local schools, churches and business in town.

Medical Association Comments On Breast Cancer Incidence

Statistics relating to breast cancer in the United States are quite sobering. About 120,000 cases are diagnosed each year with more than 40 thousand women dying from the disease. Statistics show that every 15 minutes, three women learn they have breast cancer while one woman dies from it, according to the Minnesota Medical association.

Every woman stands a chance of developing breast cancer. While the disease most often occurs in women over 50, it can also strike younger women.

There are certain factors that increase the risk of developing breast cancer among some women. Women who have a family history of breast cancer, especially if it occurred in the mother or a sister, stand a greater chance of developing the disease. The risk further increases if the relative developed breast cancer before the age of 50.

Women who have never had children, or who have had their first baby after age 30 appear to be at an increased risk for breast cancer also.

Much has been written about the effect of birth control pills and the chances of developing breast cancer because of them. Research has shown taking birth control pills, even over an extended period of time, has no effect on whether a woman will develop breast cancer.

While there is no known way to prevent breast cancer, monthly self-examinations of your breasts and yearly check-ups by your personal physician are two good methods of detecting breast cancer.

It is estimated that early detection could save some 13,000 lives a year in the United States and the mammogram is the best way to detect early breast cancers.

A mammogram is similar to an X-ray and it can reveal tiny, suspicious looking masses that a physician may wish to biopsy to determine whether or not the mass is cancer.

The American Cancer society recommends women ove 30 have a "baseline" mammogram done once, and yearly mammograms done after the age of 50. Regular mammograms before the age of 50 are not advisable.

Monthly self-examinations of your breasts are another method of early detection. If you menstruate, the ideal time to do a self-exam is two or three days after your period ends. If you'no longer menstruate, pick a day, once a month, and stick with it. The steps to do a breast self-exam are:

(1) Stand in front of a mirror and carefully, visually inspect both breasts for any discharge from the nipples, any bumps, puckering, etc.

(2) Lie on your back, raise your left arm over your head and use three or four fingers of your right hand to examine the left breast.

(3) Move the pads of your fingers firmly, in small circles, over the breast, starting at the outer edge and moving inward toward the nipple.

Pay special attention to the area between the breast and the armpit, as well as the armpit itself, for any unusual lumps. Then, gently squeeze the nipple to look for any discharge. After doing this, repeat the same steps, except have your right arm over you hear, and use the left hand to examine the right breast. The breast exam can also be done in the shower. Soapy skin makes it easier to feel for lumps and other texture changes.

The self breast examination is important for a woman to becomd familiar with the normal feel and appearance of her breasts. Any change from "normal" is then detected early enough for possible treatment.

While breast cancer still baffles physicians as to its causes, and while there is no certan cure for the disease, early detection through monthly self-exams and yearly physical exams can help save lives.

Promote Poison Prevention At Medical Center

Each year, nearly two million children are poisoned in their homes, but you can protect your child or grandchild from an accidental poisoning, according to Gail Holland, public relations coordinator at Northwest Medical center.

The week of March 15 is Poison Prevention week at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. For more information on how to poison proof your home and protect your family, call the Poison Center at 1-800-222-1222.

How can you prevent poisonings?

(1) Store all medicine and chemicals in their original containers out of reach of children, preferably in a locked cabinet.

(2) Purchase products with child-resistant caps whenever possible. Put the cap on properly and store out of sight and out of reach of children.

(3) Never put chemicals in food or beverage containers.

(4) Do not take medicine in front of your child. Children love to imitate.

(5) Never call medicine candy.

(6) Read and follow label directions on all products before using them.

(7) Do not leave alcoholic beverages within reach of children.

(8) Never leave a young child alone with a potential poison.

(9) Don't hesitate to call the poison center if you have a problem or a question. Telephone stickers with the number of your poison center are available — put one on your phone.

Syrup of ipecac is a drug made from a South American plant. It is a natural irritant to the stomach and will safely induce vomiting in about 20 minutes.

If a poison has been swallowed, it is sometimes necessary to induce vomiting with syrup of ipecac. Other methods of inducing vomiting — including sticking your finger down the victims's throat, salt water and raw eggs — are not effective and can be dangerous.

Use ipecac only upon the advice of the poison center or a doctor. There are certain types of poisons which should not be vomited, such as caustics (drain cleaner, for example) and petroleum products.

You can buy ipecac at any pharmacy without a prescription. It is important to keep a bottle on hand, but do not use it unless the poison center or a doctor tells you to do so.

Stumpf Named To Represent State On Committee

Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has been selected to represent the Minnesota senate on the agriculture, food policy and rural development committee of the state-federal assembly (SFAS).

The SFA is sponsored and organized by the National Conference of State Legislatures, and its purpose is to identify those federal issues of most concern to states and to share their information with state legislators. The SFA has 10 standing committees that convene three or four times each year to meet with federal officials and develop recommendations on a full range of national issues.

Senator Stumpf said that the primary objective of the committee on agriculture, food policy and rural development "is to formulate state policy positions on proposals to reform federal farm programs. During the 1987 session of Congress, we're going to continue our oversight of the implementation of the 1985 federal farm bill.

"We're also going to devote special attention to the credit problems being experienced in agriculture and to the need to diversify the rural economy."

Stumpf said that he is very pleased and honored by his appointment to this committee, and "I look forward to sharing what I learn with my colleagues."

Camp Superkids Is Provided For Asthma Sufferers

For the many children who have asthma, summer camp may not be an option. One solution is Camp Superkids, sponsored by the American Lung associations in Minnesota.

At Camp Superkids, children 7-14 years old learn how to keep their asthma under control while participating in highly active outdoor and indoor summer camp activities. In addition to the regular camp staff at Y.M.C.A. Camp Induhapi on Lake Independence, Superkids campers are under the supervision and guidance of a medical staff and older kids who have asthma.

Asthma is the most common of chronic childhood illnesses, and many times restricts vigorous activities. The camp staff has learned that with proper knowledge, most cases of asthma can be kept under control and kids need not be left out of a game or activity.

Two six-day and one 12-day session of Camp Superkids will be held, during July 7 to 18. Superkids campers must be 7-14 years of age and on daily medication for asthma. Registrations are being accepted now. For information, contact Rachel Yoskowitz, American Lung Association of Minnesota, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102, phone 1-800-642-5864.

Nordics Headed To 1987 Minnesota Class A State Tournament

Marshall County Central Girls Win Region 8A Basketball Title

Marshall County Central will make its first-ever appearance at the Minnesota girls state high school basketball tournament this week following the Nordics' 40-36 upset win over No. 4-ranked Win-E-Mac in the finals of the 1987 Region 8A tournament Saturday night at the university of Minnesota-Crookston.

The 23-1 Nordics will face 23-2 Rochester Lourdes Thursday in the final opening round Class A state tournament quarterfinals game at 9 p.m. at the Met Center in Bloomington.

Marshall County Central's trio of 5-9 front-liners combined for 35 of the Nordics' 40 points against the tournament-favorite Patriots as Natalie Ueland netted 15 points, while Andrea Kragness and Kelli Anderson both collected 10.

But it was the Nordics' defense, said head coach Tom Mjelde, that won the game. Marshall County Central started with an 8-7 first quarter lead and had a 22-15 halftime edge. That lead disappeared in a hurry, though, when Win-E-Mac outscored the Nordics 19-11 in the third quarter for a 34-33 lead.

That's when the Marshall County Central defense took over. After surrendering those 19 third quarter points, the Nordics held the Patriots to just two fourth quarter points. Kragness hit a 15-footer with 3:28 left to give the Nordics a 37-36 lead, and Win-E-Mac never responded offensively.

The key, according to Mjelde, came at the midway mark of the fourth quarter when the Nordics forced the Patriots into turning the ball over on five consecutive offensive possessions. Sophomore guard Kari Boe had two steals during that momentum-turning stretch.

No Win-E-Mac scorer hit double figures, and again, said Mjelde, the Marshall County Central defense had a lot to do with it. "I felt defensively we played as well as we're capable of playing," he said, citing the defensive work by Ueland against Shelly Evenson, and by Jodi Foss against Becky Jenson. "That was the key, stopping those two," pointed out Mjelde.

Free throw shooting also played a big part in the outcome. The Patriots got themselves in trouble with their foul-producing press that resulted in an 18-for-33 Marshall County Central night at the line. Win-E-Mac wasn't nearly as busy on a 6-for-10 free throw night. From the field, Marshall County Central was 11-for-27 (38 per cent), and Win-E-Mac was 15-for-46 (33 per cent). The Patriots had a 29-23 rebound edge, and the Nordics had more turnovers, 18-10.

Both teams left the Lysaker Gym with 23-1 records, but the Nordics' loss came in their 1986-87 season-opener, a 43-40 decision at the hands of Class AA Thief River Falls.

IT WAS CELEBRATION time for the Marshall County Central girls Saturday night as they won their first-ever Region 8A high school basketball tournament title. The team members gathered at center court at the University of Minnesota-Crookston included, left to right, Natalie Ueland (31), Denae Mjelde (21), Melinda Halfaday (53), Jodi Foss (33), Kelli Anderson (43), Nikki Leach (23), and Kari Boe (11).

Lumberjacks Win Tournament Match-Up 59-48 . . .

Prowlers Lose To Bemidji

Bemidji took an early lead and was never headed Thursday as the No. 1-seeded Lumberjacks defeated No. 5-seeded Thief River Falls 59-48 in a North Sub-Region 8AA boys high school basketball tournament semifinal game at Bemidji.

Thief River Falls' 1986-87 season ended at 13-9, while Bemidji took an 11-9 record into the North Sub-Region 8AA finals Saturday against Moorhead, a 67-52 Thursday night semifinal winner over Fergus Falls.

Bemidji started with a game-opening lead that stood up for a 19-16 edge at the end of the first quarter, then became a 30-22 halftime advantage, and a 49-37 third quarter spread.

"We fell behind early and had to play catch-up all night," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "We just never could get a (scoring) run going."

Randy Lish, a 6-3½ senior forward, led the Bemidji attack with 16 points, while 6-5½ junior center Matt Swenson netted 13, and 6-4 junior forward Chris Jensen added 10. For the Prowlers, 6-4 junior forward-guard Chris Nelson scored 16 points, and 6-1 junior guard Chris Bjorgaard contributed 14.

"Bemidji played a nice ball game at both ends of the court," noted Hunt. "They dictated the tempo of the game. They sat back in a 1-3-1 zone and jammed the inside. We had to hit the perimeter shots to be effective, and we just didn't shoot very well."

Thief River Falls went 18-for-50 from the field (36 per cent), while Bemidji was (42 per cent). The Prowlers were 12-for-17 at the free throw line (70 per cent), where the Lumberjacks were 9-for-18 (56 per cent). Bemidji had a 34-32 rebound edge. Thief River Falls topped the turnover charts, 15-9.

It was the third meeting of the year between the two long-time athletic rivals, and the rubber game of the 1986-87 series after a regular season split when the Prowlers won 68-51 on a Jan. 3 visit to Bemidji, while the Lumberjacks won a narrow 67-64 decision on a Feb. 13 trip to Thief River Falls.

"The kids played hard," mentioned Hunt. "It's unfortunate we didn't play better."

MCC Beats Plummer 59-47 In 8A Semifinals . . .

Nordics Handle Cardinals

Pre-season goals may have played a role in the outcome of Friday's 59-47 Marshall County Central Region 8A girls high school basketball tournament win over Plummer.

With their 22nd straight win the Districts 32A champion Nordics moved into Saturday's Region 8A title game against Win-E-Mac, a 58-35 winner over Littlefork-Big Falls in Friday's semifinal doubleheader opener. The District 31A champion Cardinals, meanwhile, had to settle for a third place game match-up with the Vikings.

"We got to where we wanted to be," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde, who figured the Nordics were a legitimate Region 8A contender this winter. The goal was to be a regional finalist, where you can be just a break or two away from a state tournament berth.

Plummer coach Rick Koivisto admitted the Cardinals had already met their goals with a Polar Conference title and their first-ever district title. There wasn't enough drive left to shoot for a regional crown he hinted. "Next time we'll have to set our goals a little higher," he said.

Marshall County Central controlled most of the game. Plummer's only lead was on a game-opening 12-foot jumper by Renae Walter. A free throw by Kelli Anderson, followed by a short jumper by Andrea Kragness gave the Nordics a 3-2 lead they never surrendered.

It was mostly the Nordics' decided height advantage that dictated things. That fact was graphicaly illustrated early in the game when a single Marshall County Central offensive possession produced seven shots before Anderson, a sophomore and one of three 5-9 front-liners for the Nordics, scored — on a rebound, naturally — for an 11-6 lead with 2:54 left in the first quarter.

That was an omen, acknowledged Koivisto, whose tallest player was 5-8 junior Jodi Konickson.

Marshall County Central led 15-8 as the first quarter ended. A 15-for-25 shooting performance produced a 32-19 halftime cushion for the Nordics, whose biggest lead was a 14-point, 30-16 gap with 1:48 to go.

"I thought we played really well in the first half," confirmed Mjelde. "I thought the key was defensively we shut down Robin Brantl and Janelle Konickson." Those two lead the Cardinals scoring, but they combined for just six first half points — five of them by Konickson, a 5-4 senior with a 20-point scoring average.

"I thought we could have played better offensively,'; said Koivisto, who let his team know at halftime he wasn't real happy with the way they played the first 16 minutes. "I told them at the half they could pack it up and go home, or come out and play in the second half."

They chose the latter. Even though the Nordics matched their biggest lead at 37-23 on an Anderson free throw with 4:13 remaining in the third quarter, Plummer stormed back behind its press, and suddenly point-hungry Brantl. The Cardinals out-scored the Nordics 9-1 over the next 3:17 to make it an interesting 38-32 following a three-point play by Brantl with 56 seconds left in the third quarter.

But that's as close as the Cardinals got. Natalie Ueland scored from underneath to close out the third quarter, making it 40-32. Plummer was still within 44-36 on a basket from the corner by Angie Delage with 6:11 remaining, but the next seven points came from the Nordics to put it out of reach, 51-36, with 4:08 to play.

"I thought we did a nice job in the second half," noted Koivisto.

"We got kind of lackadaisical in the third quarter," explained Mjelde. "We got rattled against their press, but we hung in there; we didn't panic."

Brantl, a 5-6 senior, wound up as the game's top scorer with a 20 point second half. Delage and Janelle Konickson both contributed 10 points. Jodi Foss, the lone senior on the Marshall County Central squad, netted 17 points, while Andrea Kragness and Natalie Ueland, Anderson's fellow 5-9 front-liners, had 16 and 14 points, respectively.

Marshall County Central was 26-for-46 from the field for the game (57 per cent). Plummer was 11-for-50 (36 per cent). The Nordics were 7-for-14 at the free throw line, where the Cardinals were 11-for-17. The winners had a 31-21 rebound edge, and also had more turnovers, 18-15.

TAKING THE ball to the basket, Marshall County Central sophomore Kelli Anderson (43) banked a shot off the glass before Plummer defender Jodi Konickson could step in during the Region 8A girls high school basketball tournament semifinal contest Friday at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. Kari Boe (11) of the Nordics and Renae Walter (14) of the Cardinals looked on.

THE BALL bounced away from Plummer's Robin Brantl, who had to contend with Marshall County Central's Natalie Ueland (31) and Andrea Kragness in the lane during Friday's Region 8A girls high school basketball tournament semifinal game at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. Looking on were the Cardinals' Jodi Konickson (34) and Renae Walter (14). The Nordics won 59-47, despite a game-high 21 points by Brantl.

Nordics Face Rochester Lourdes In State Opener

Mike Lundgren
Sports Editor

Tom Mjelde is paying the price for success. The Marshall County Central girls high school basketbal coach put in a full day of work Sunday following the Nordics' 40-36 Region 8A championship game win over favored Win-E-Mac Saturday at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Sunday the Mjelde home phone started ringing at 7:30 a.m. and went almost non-stop all day. Plans had to be made for the first-ever Marshall County Central state tournament team trip of any kind, along with a flood of calls from friends and well-wishers.

"It's been unbelievable," said Mjelde this morning (Monday), in a voice that has obviously been strained.

But he'll be the first to tell you it's well worth it. The community is justifiably proud of the Nordics' accomplishments. A trip to the state tournament has to rank at, or at least near, the very top of a list of Newfolden highlights. This writer can probably speak for the community of Thief River Falls in congratulating the Nordics and wishing them the best of luck at the state tournament.

Marshall County Central will face Rochester Lourdes in a 9 p.m. opening round quarterfinal game Thursday night to close out the first day of Class A state tounament play at the Met Center in Bloomington. How the 23-1 Nordics will fare against the 23-2 Eagles is anybody's guess. Region 8A used to take a back seat at state tournament time, but success for boys and girls from this area in recent years has changed that loser image. A year ago the East Grand Forks girls were state Class A runner-up finishers.

"We're going down there with the idea of playing good basketball," said Mjelde. "We just beat the No. 4 team (Win-E-Mac, rated fourth in the latest Associated Press Class A state poll) in the state, so we think we can play with the rest of them."

Marshall County Central and Rochester Lourdes are in the same state tournament bracket as 20-3 Fairfax-Gibbon, and 24-0 New London-Spicer, who play at 7:05 p.m. Thursday. The other Class A bracket features 21-1 Tracy-Milroy vs. 23-1 Wheaton at 1:05 p.m., and 2-2 Pipestone vs. 23-2 Chisholm at 3 o'clock.

Class A semifinals will be played at 7:05 and 9 p.m. Friday at Met Center. Third place and championship games will be played at 7:05 and 9 p.m. Saturday at the same site. Class A consolation semifinals will be played Friday at 8:30 and 10 a.m. Friday at Normandale Community College in Bloomington. Consolation championship game will be played at 10:15 a.m. Saturday at the Met Center.

First round Class AA state tournament games will be played Thursday at the Minneapolis Auditorim, with Roseville Area (19-2) vs. Hill-Murray (23-1) at 1:20 p.m.; Mankato East (22-1) vs. Osse (21-2) at 3:20; Duluth East (18-4) vs. Rocori (21-2) at 7:20; and Rochester Mayo (18-4) vs. St. Louis Park (20-1).

Class AA semifinals will be played at 1:05 and 3 p.m. Friday at the Met Center, with third place and championship games planned at 1:05 and 3 p.m. Saturday. Consolation semifinals will be played at 8:30 a.m. and 10 a.m. Friday at Met Center, with the consolation final set for 8:30 a.m. Saturday at Met Center.

Plenty of tickets are available for all state tournament sessions. The tournament will be televised locally on Sjoberg's Cable TV by KMSP Ch. 9 out of the Twin Cities.

Rocori Wins Over Fergus Falls Girls

Rocori defeated Fergus Falls 60-47 Friday in the Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament championship game to earn a berth in the 1987 Minnesota Class AA state tournament this week.

Fergus Falls won the North Sub-Region 8A title, and Rocori was the South Sub-Region 8AA winner.

Sportsmen's Club Meets Wednesday

Pennington County Sportsmen's club will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m in the basement meeting room of the city auditorium. Discussion will be on a summer shooting program. Lunch will be served.

---

A PAIR of Win-E-Mac defenders were in front and behind Marshall County Central forward Andrea Kragness, but that didn't stop the 5-9 junior from getting off this shot during Saturday's Region 8A basketball tournament championship game at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. Kragness scored 10 points as the Nordics beat the Patriots 40-36.

Cardinals Lose 60-55 Third Place Decision

Plummer's first appearance at the Regoion 8A girls high school basketball tournament didn't produce any wins, but coach Rick Koivisto said it will still be remembered as a good experience for the Cardinals, who lost a 60-55 third place game decision to Littlefork-Big Falls Saturday night at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Robin Brantl scored 20 points, Angie Delage netted 16, and Renae Walter had 10 for the Cardinals, who started with a 16-12 first quarter lead, but fell behind 32-30 at halftime. The Vikings had a narrow 46-43 third quarter edge, and never let the Cardinals get any closer than that over the final eight minutes.

"I thought we should have been able to beat them," mentioned Koivisto, "but our legs got tired on us."

Carrie Gustafson, a 6-1 senior center, scored 24 points for Littlefork-Big Falls, with 5-9 junior Marci Williams netting 16.

Plummer shot only 29 per cent from the field (19-for-65) and went 17-for-30 at the free throw line (57 per cent). Littlefork-Big Falls shot 43 per cent from the field (26-for-60) and went 8-for-16 at the line (50 per cent). The much-taller Vikings had a big 50-26 rebound advantage, but also had more turnovers, 25-16.

Two Region 8A setbacks (including a 59-47 semifinal defeat at the hands of Marshall County Central Friday) doubled the Cardinals' loss total for the year, putting them at 20-4, but Koivisto said it was still "a good experience for the girls." The Cardinals were very appreciative, he said of the Plummer fan support, including an escort into town when they returned home Saturday night. The show of support was even more appreciated since the fans waited an extra hour to greet the girls, who stopped for a post-game meal in Crookston before hitting the road.

Thompson, Giauque Compete At State

Thief River Falls' Shon Thompson was 24th in the diving competition and Paul Giauque was 16th in the 100-yard butterfly at the 1987 Minnesota boys state high school swim meet, conducted Friday and Saturday at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

Thompson met his pre-meet goal of a top-25 finish, explained Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney, and the fourth place Section 8 meet finisher beat all other Section 8 divers at the state meet in the process.

"Shon started slow, but he picked up more confidence with each dive as he became acclimated to the state meet atmosphere," noted Forney. "He did a nice job."

Giauque wasn't able to come up with a team record clocking that he had set for a personal state meet goal, but still turned in his second fastest butterfly ever.

"Paul's first 50 (yards) was about as fast as anybody there," explained Forney. "He really went out fast. But he wasn't strong enough to finish that fast. Still, he swam a good race. He got a taste of the state meet level of competition, and he knows what he has to do to compete at that level."

Thompson and Giauque are both Juniors.

SDA Students In TRF Find History Assignment Fun

by Marilyne Sayler

What do a pulpit and a skating party have in common? If that question sounds like a riddle, read on. The members of the Junior Earliteen Sabbath school class at the Thief River Falls Seventh-day Adventist church have already figured out the answer and are excited to share it.

Like any other group of young people, juniors love to have fun and to learn. Some very wise people, namely the junior leaders — Eleanor Cross, Tim Lund, Bill Simpson and Chuck Simpson decided to capitalize on those two "loves" by challenging the young people thus: anyone who brought a historical statistic or fact about the local church to Sabbath School by a certain deadline, would be treated to a skating party.

What resulted was quite a revelation to the leaders. All the class members did research into church history by consulting older members of the congregation. Their questions even forced some of the resource persons to do some research themselves. Some of the students were so energetic that they came to Sabbath school armed with a small encyclopedia of information.

The students and teachers were amazed at how much history they were unaware of. "Suddenly this building and the people in it became much more meaningful to us because we knew more about them, and because we had to dig to get the information," said an energetic junior, Jodi Madden.

And what of the pulpit? All the class was very pleased to learn that the pulpit in their very own Sabbath school room is the oldest piece of furniture that the church owns. While it may not be an antique, it certainly presents an image of history to the students who sit in its presence each week. How many pastors has the pulpit served? How many times has it been moved? How many people have felt the presence of the Lord at the foot of that very pulpit? These are questions that may not be answered until eternity, but meanwhile they are questions worth asking, for they make history come alive for juniors even as much as the skating party they enjoyed that evening.

Farm Assets Fall While Debt Level Remains Constant

Latest farm finance report from the Minnesota department of agriculture shows that while debt levels have stayed pretty much constant over the past year, farm assets fell 17 per cent.

Farm debt-to-asset ratios averaged 49 per cent and the report notes that in relation to income levels or debt servicing ability, Minnesota farmers are still in a very difficult situation.

Without off-farm income, cash flow problems are more serious. Farm income alone covers only about two-thirds of the total obligations of the farm business.

Most farm operators had a cash flow deficit regardless of ownership structure, enterprise, farm size or age. Some 20-25 per cent of the survey respondents were not current with principal and interest payments. Of those who are current, 20-25 per cent said they have already restructured their debt.

Younger farm operators continue to have heavier debt loads while farmers over age 55 carry debt loads substantially below the average.

The survey was conducted in July of 1986 and at that time, 14 per cent of the respondents said they didn't expect to be in business this year; 40 per cent said they d be out of farming by 1991, but many of these cited retirement as the reason.

According to the department, the survey reflects the large proportion of Minnesota farm operators that need debt restructuring assistance to reduce debt service costs.

Within the next few weeks, respondents on the farm finance survey will receive a summary of the report.

Small Businesses Contribute Jobs To Rural Areas

Small businesses have contributed both jobs and stability in the rural nonfarm sector, according to a recent USDA report.

(1) Between 1976 and 1980, 31 per cent of the net increase in private nonfarm jobs in nonmetro areas were created by small businesses (independent firms with less than 100 employees);

(2) While it was true that some small businesses in operation less than five years had very high turnover rates, these new businesses nonetheless accounted for over 40 per cent of the net increase in private nonfarm jobs in both nonmetro and metro areas between 1976 and 1980.

(3) Small businesses in nonmetro areas accounted for 31 per cent of the 1976-1980 increase in new jobs versus 40 per cent in the metro areas. It's expected that small businesses could "incubate" better in metro than nonmetro areas because of the larger market and better availability of services and goods.

According to the report, local planners should look at advantages and disadvantages of both small businesses and large corporations when mapping out economic development strategies. Large corporations may be able to create many new jobs in a single stroke, yet the shutdown of a large branch plant can devastate a small rural community.

Creating new and small local businesses can help rural communities expand employment, even though their failure rate is somewhat higher than for established businesses.

By encouraging small business startups, rural communities can diversify their local industrial base and, reduce their vulnerability, the report indicates.

City Directory Canvassers In TRF

Beginning this week, canvassers for R.L. Polk and Company will begin gathering information about Thief River Falls for the 1987 city directory publication.

All residents and business areas will be covered by the canvass, which is expected to take from four to five weeks. Residents are asked to provide the information requested to assure accurate listings for the Thief River Falls city directory. All enumerators carry identification cards.

REMAINS of the Opera block building in Crookston stands in icy silence after a blaze which took four fire department units to put out Wednesday evening. The fire destroyed two stores and left about 50 residents homeless. Fortunately no deaths or injuries have been reported. Thursday afternoon the empty shell was torn down to prevent any injuries from happening at the hazardous site. The cause of the fire is still under investigation, however it is suspected to have begun in the basement under Kathy's Antiques near the boiler room.

According to the Crookston Times, the Opera block was built in 1891 as the Grand Opera House. At one time it seated 500 people. The opera house was closed in 1910 and on Thursday, what was left of it was torn down.

Fire departments from Crookston, Fertile and two from East Grand Forks helped put out the fire and kept it from spreading to other nearby buildings.

Chris Ellison To Attend German Language Village

Christopher Ellison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Ellison of Thief River Falls, will attend the International German language village near Bemidji from June 29 to July 11.

Sponsored by Concordia college, Moorhead, the international language villages are informal experience-based programs that introduce young people ages seven to 18 to foreign languages and cultures. The nine "villages" in Chinese, Russian, French, German, Spanish, Norwegian, Swedish, Finnish and Danish are held at lake-side facilities in central and northern Minnesota from June 8 to August 29.

The villages simulate foreign countries, and participants are issued passports, exchange their American currency and assume foreing names. During one, two or four-week sessions, they experience the language and culture during daily conversion sessions, at mealtime and through ethnic dances and songs, sports, celebrations of holidays and historical events and crafts native to the culture. Twice each summer the villages then in session meet at the Norwegian Village for an International Day.

Area Cities Work On Marketing Strategies

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Communities in the Times region are seeking a new way of attracting business. With the tough economic conditions facing many area towns, many are learning that it takes a little more than a welcome mat to attract business.

Becoming one of Minnesota's Star cities is one way of putting together an effective economic tool. Many area communities are also discovering that the attempt itself draws together various elements in the community into one single group.

Warren Mayor Roy Engh said the citizens working on the Star city application are very enthusiastic. He said it will be helpful in attracting new business, retaining business and making grant applications. It is also uniting the community, he said.

Mayor Engh said Warren might not even be considering it if it weren't for the difficult times being faced by the community. The economic situation, he said, seems to call for such action.

Minnesota's Star city program began in 1981 and was a pioneer in implementing an action plan for communication between businesses, local units of government and the state by focusing on job creation and retention.

This effort has been successful by targeting the four areas necessary to community-based economic development: leadership, local strategy, services and marketing. The program helps communities design a cohesive and professional approach to economic development, and has achieved recognition because it is a systematic model for economic development with a unique emphasis on volunteers.

At present, there are 53 communities in Minnesota which have the small sign posted at their borders indicating that they are a member of the Star city program. Becoming a Star city is no easy task. It calls for a community-wide, coordinated commitment to a long term economic

Jodi Foss Leads Nordics Into State Tourney

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

When Jodi Foss took a pass from teammate Kari Boe and scored on a lay-up February 16 in a home game against Stephen, she became the second girl in Marshall County Central basketball history to score over 1,000 points in her career. At that time, it was one of her greatest sports thrills.

But this week that thrill seems insignificant as she captains the Nordic girls team in its maiden appearance at the state high school basketball tournament. As the only senior on the District 32 and Region 8A championship team, she has assumed a leadership role which has been expected of her and which she has more than adequately filled.

Not only is it the first trip to a state tournament for the Marshall County Central girls basketball team, it is the first time that a Newfolden athletic team of any kind has earned its way to the state tournament. Coach Tom Mjelde and assistant Mark Jorgenson are especially proud of this team, its caliber of student participants and its emotional maturity. They credit much of that quality and attitude to Jodi Foss.

"Jodi is an outstanding leader," coach Mjelde said in a hurried interview as he was swamped with last-minute details prior to leaving for the state tournament. "She is an unselfish team player — our entire team plays unselfishly — and an excellent defensive player. She has a good sense for the game, drives to the basket, shoots well from the outside and the free throw line. She works hard in the off-season, attending camp and taking part in open gym. It has been a pleasure to be her coach.

Mjelde has never had a losing season since he took the girls basketball coaching position at Marshall County Central eight years ago. Jodi has thus never played on a losing team. She played in a few games as an eighth grader but moved into a regular role as a freshman. Since then she has been a consistent but improving performer.

She scored 185 points as a freshman, 261 as a sophomore, 312 as a junior and 364 so far this season as a senior. Her point total now stands at 1,122 — second only as a career girls' mark to Sue Olson's 1,374 points at the Newfolden school.

In 21 games as a freshman she scored in double figures nine times, including her first three games when she scored 12, 17 and 18 points. In an abbreviated appearance against Greenbush in the next to last game of that season she failed to score — the only time in four years that she didn't add points to her total.

As a sophomore she scored in double figures in 15 of 21 games, as a junior she hit for 10 or more in 19 of 22 games and this year she has missed double figures in only two games — one of them a three-point performance in the Region 8A championship against Win-E-Mac — as the team has compiled a 23-1 record.

Although she has scored 15 or more points in 36 games, her greatest point total in any one game was 24 points mid-season this year against Grygla. Last season she followed a five-point game against Tri-County with OUTSTANDING ATHLETIC CAREER for Jodi Foss at Marshall County Central high school at Newfolden comes to a conclusion this weekend at the Minnesota state high school girls basketball tournament. Some of the awards she has collected over the years for her athletic accomplishments are shown in the photo above. She has been an all-conference selection in volleyball in the North Border Conference as a junior and senior and all-conference selection in basketball as a sophomore and junior (the 1986-87 season selections have not yet been announced). She also won three outstanding camper awards from basketball camps at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks and was named last year's most valuable player on the Nordic squad.

Area Cities Work On Strategies For Expanding Market

development strategy. Identifying community resources, participating in training sessions and maintaining the program on a yearly basis are requirements of participation. The process can take as long as two years.

The goal of the cities involved is to be able to give as professional a presentation as possible and, of course, attract new business and encourage businesses already in the community to stay and expand. Concise professional reports, slide presentations and travel time are part of it.

Lawrence Sunsdahl of Stephen is mayor of one of the smallest cities to attempt to get Star city status. Stephen, with a population of about 900, may be too small to attempt the effort, but even if it fails in getting the Star city designation the community will win, Sunsdahl said.

Mayor Sunsdahl said it will take a long time for the small community to put together the comprehensive reports needed and they may never be able to do it, but the exercise will be worthwhile because it has coordinated the community's resources and drawn the community together.

Stephen does not expect to get a big factory. "We are more interested in retaining business and seeing expansion locally. Even a couple of new jobs would be worth it," Sunsdahl said.

Greenbush (population 817), like many small northwest Minnesota towns, is a city faced with a fleeing downtown business sector. In this small community five downtown buildings stand vacant. While the town is far from becoming a ghost town, it would certainly like to see growth instead of empty stores. Part of the effort to reverse that trend is to get a Star city program set up.

But unlike many of the area cities attempting to get businesses to move into the community, Greenbush is trying to make it more convenient for people to live in Greenbush and commute to work places in other cities. Bob Hager, commercial committee chairman of the Town and Country organization, said that committee is working on a housing survey, setting up a mobile home court and generally making it convenient for people to live in the community. They feel if they get the people to live there the rest will follow.

With large industries nearby, mainly Polaris at Roseau and Marvin Windows at Warroad, Greenbush believes a more realistic approach to its problems is to focus on attracting people to live in the community where taxes and utilities are reasonable and the town certainly isn't facing a major growth problem.

Thief River Falls, with a current population of about 8,200, has been a participant in the program since 1984. Don Stewart, community development director in Thief River Falls, said he wasn't sure whether Star city status would be worthwhile to smaller cities or not. That would have to be a decision they should make, he said.

Of course, there are advantages to the program that could benefit anyone attempting to get the designation. If nothing else, he said, it gets community involvement and the more people are looking for alternate economic development plans the better.

The involvement factor is important, Stewart said. It is a good exercise because it is a marketing program to help cities learn to market themselves. Additionally, it is a tie-in to the state department of energy and economic development (DEED), which can provide all kinds of assistance. It is also helpful in grant applications.

Lori Blake, a former employee of DEED, moved to Thief River Falls when her husband got a job as transportation planner with the Northwest Regional Development commission. Her knowledge of putting together Star city programs quickly became an asset which at least one community is taking advantage of using.

Red Lake Falls is one of the surrounding communities attempting to put together a Star city program and they have hired Lori Blake part-time to help them complete the application.

Those involved in the application process are very excited about the program, Blake said. The effort has been underway since December 12. There are 30 members and five subcommittees.

Blake said they are certainly hoping to complete the application by fall, but it really depends on how well the committees work together. So far everything seems to be going fine, she said.

Blake said she worked for DEED only a short period of time. Working at the other end of the process has given her a different perspective. Overall she enjoys the work, and has recently been contacted by McIntosh to help that community develop a five-year plan for its recently created economic development commission.

When Thief River Falls began the application process, it had in place an economic development committee. The organization was and still is named Jobs Incorporated. Stewart said it was helpful to have the organization already in place; the individuals and interest were already there.

One of the first requirements in the process is to put together a small committee dedicated to long-term economic development in the community. Those committee members will put in many hours of work before the application process is completed, but the result may be very helpful.

Warren Mayor Engh said Warren has just organized its coordinators and committees to get started. The next meeting on the Star city application is March 17. Engh said he hopes that Warren will complete the application process this year.

Stewart said the certification has been helpful to Thief River Falls. Businesses interested in the community don't always let the city know they are going to drop in and take a look. A complete report of the community resources, slide presentation and having a number of people ready to give the proper responses to often complex questions at a moment's notice, is very helpful. It has also been helpful to be prepared to give a professional presentation when they do have an interested business.

According to a release from DEED, now directed by Commissioner David Speer, the Star city for economic development concept evolved from an assessment of the Minnesota economy in 1981 and the realization that state and local governments were not approaching job creation and retention in a coordinated manner. Many firms were leaving Minnesota for locations perceived as having a more suitable business climate.

There was no common form of communication among the state, local government and business for job creation. A policy directive for economic development required that a forceful effort be made to develop a methodology and means of implementation unique to the circumstances existing in Minnesota.

Given scarce financial resources, a voluntary educational process with professional certification at its completion, was selected as a vehicle to address the identified problems. The Star city program emerged as a tool to develop within cities a recognized and professional approach to economic development, and as a means to establish and maintain a common form and process for communication among cities, businesses and the state.

The program incorporates 11 tasks targeted to organize and officially certify local leadership, provide or strengthen local and state services to business and industry, develop a uniform approach to marketing local communities, and provide a participatory model to each community to develop the knowledge, skills and professionalism necessary to successfully retain and attract business and employment.

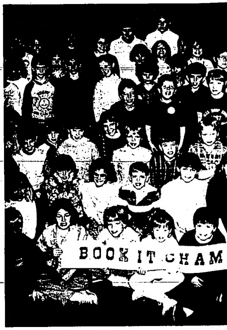
The program was created for communities which do not have an organized economic development initiative and enables communities to diversify the local economic base while leveraging a limited amount of direct assistance from the state.

The program has maintained and expanded its innovative approach by revising its original training manual, developing specific in-depth training exercises, providing marketing and development finance training, advertising, and providing communication workshops and extensive direct technical assistance. In addition, it is now helping communities build long-term strategies, short-term action plans and methods for self evaluation.

Furthermore, the Star cities program had to reinforce the concept that Minnesota communities would be successful only if a local commitment to economic development was maintained on a long-term basis. This commitment was formalized by requiring that cities adopt either a resolution or an ordinance establishing a Star city organization to advise the city council.

The state has sought to match this local commitment by sponsoring and providing national development council business finance training to Star city staff and volunteers. The state is also sharing the costs of a national advertising and marketing initiative with Star cities. Finally, through a new appropriation from the legislature, state technical assistance staff is available to carry out specific economic development initiatives at the local level.

And the results: Each city which has been designated for a year has either had a new business locate or expand with a direct increase in jobs. In addition, volunteers and professionals have made over 500 formal business visitations, conducted 50 labor market surveys and in 60 cities are implementing the business retention and expansion program.



BOOK IT CHAMPIONS. Several students, not all pictured, received a principal's honor diploma for sticking with the Book It national reading incentive program at Washington elementary school in Thief River Falls. The program is a proven-effective tool sponsored by Pizza Hut that helps teachers motivate children to read. It's for students in grades 1 through 6. The program lasts five consecutive calendar months, from October 1, 1986 to February 28, 1987. It recognizes and rewards children at three levels of reading achievement. Any student who reads at least the minimum number of books in all five of the calendar months of the program, missing no months, received the principal's honor diploma.

Barbara Knudsen, Missionary, To Visit TRF Church

Barbara Knudsen

Though often unheard of, the small African nation of Cameroon got headline attention in August, 1986. The devastating gas leak at Laek Nyos killed hundreds of people and left many others injured and grief-stricken. Missionary Barbara Knudsen is a nursing instructor at the Banso Baptist hospital in Cameroon, close to the disaster area. She began her furlough from Banso only a month prior to the toxic leak.

Though away from Cameroon, Barbara remains one in spirit with the people who have suffered from this disaster. She will give her perspective of the situation and a report on her ministry when she speaks at the First Baptist church in Thief River Falls Sunday, March 22 at the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services. She will be showing slides at the 7 p.m. service.

Originally appointed to missionary service in Ethiopia, Barbara took up work in Cameroon after the hospital where she served in Ethiopia was turned over to the Marxist Ethiopian government in 1977. An additional aspect of her ministry in Cameroon is evangelist work with children.

Barbara is currently visiting Baptist general conference churches, sharing all that God has done through her work in Cameroon. She will return to Africa late in 1987.

Pastor Carroll Erickson invites the public to attend either or both of these services this Sunday.

MAVIE . . .

The Fundamental Purpose of The Funeral -
The Most Significant Function of Your Funeral Director . . .
SERVING THE LIVING

St. Augustine said it about 400 A.D. "The living out of the body, the burial rites ... are more of a consolation to the living than of assistance to the dead."

Since that time many others qualified to speak from the religious, psychological, sociological or medical point of view have agreed.

A minister who is a leading authority on grief, stated "There are eight specific purposes and values of the funeral that every person should come to know and understand."

A funeral provides faith to sustain spirit.
A funeral helps free one from guilt or self condemnation.
A funeral helps one express feelings.
A funeral directs one beyond the death of a loved one to the responsibilities of life.
A funeral, in a personal way, helps one face a crisis with dignity and courage.
A funeral ... all, provides an environment where loving friends ...

5-Day Clinic For Quitting Smoking To Start Monday

A five-day stop smoking clinic to help a person break free from the tobacco habit is scheduled to begin Monday at 7 p.m. in Northwest medical center in Thief River Falls.

"The best way to help a person break free from the tobacco habit is to educate him in dealing with stresses and difficult social situations," says Dr. Leo Herber, program director. "This five-day plan is very much oriented toward teaching people how to live, not just how to give up the smoking habit. It teaches concepts of self-worth and stress-management strategies."

Each day of the clinic has a special emphasis, accroding to the directors of the plan. This first concept area is support. "It is very difficult for people to change, and support is needed in the quitting process," Dr. Herber said.

The second area is health awareness. "Rather than showing them how bad smoking is, we are going to show them how nicely the body works," he says. "Then there are the substitution strategies. These are the nuts and bolts, the gimmicks, if you wish to call them that, of helping a person to quit and changing a habit."

Personal growth and development is the fourth area. "This five-day plan has the tools to help a person really be successful in his spiritual and emotional growth," Dr. Herber added.

Concept five deals with motivation and how to be successful. And lastly, "we emphasize spiritual growth and development," Dr. Herber says. "There are two or three Bible texts which a person can claim as promises for God's help."

The five-day plan running through March 27 will meet in the basement meeting rooms at Northwest medical center. This program is sponsored by Northwest medical center, the Falls clinic division of Dakota Clinic Limited, Northwest Radiology associates and the Ramsay Eye clinic. It has been developed and is conducted by the Seventh-day Adventist church. For more information or to register, call the Falls Clinic at 681-4747, extension 205. Cost for participants will be: one person, $15; two from one family, $25; and three from one family, $30.

Youth Business Retreat Planned At UM-Crookston

For youths who are still in school and want to develop their business ideas or learn more about how business is operated, a youth entrepreneurial seminar will be conducted March 27 and 28 at the University of Minnesota campus at Crookston.

The two-day retreat, which includes an overnight stay and meals, will cost $2 per team of student and adult. The event is a second phase of a program conducted earlier this year but attendance at the first phase is not required to attend the retreat.

The Friday evening program will include a presentation by futurist David Morris who will share his thoughts on what the world will and can be in the 1990s. The Saturday workshop will be an introduction to operating a small business and provide youth with a working understanding of business planning, marketing, record keeping, cash flow planning and profit and loss statements.

The retreat begins at 6:30 p.m. Friday, March 27, and continues through 5:30 p.m. on March 28. Youths will attend with a parent or other interested adult. Sponsors are the Crookston enterprise development center, Minnesota extension service, small business development center in Thief River Falls, University of Minnesota-Crookston and other interested individuals.

Anyone interested in attending the retreat should pick up an application form without delay at the Pennington county extension office at the court house in Thief River Falls.

Medicare Law On Eye Care Changes Effective April 1

Starting April 1, Medicare eye care coverage is changing. Under the new law, Medicare will pay for eye health care services provided by the nation's 24,500 practicing optometrists. In the past, only opthalmologists' services were covered, unless the patient had undergone cataract surgery.

David Ferris, O.D. president of the American Optometric Association (AOA), noted that optometrists are located in approximately 6,600 cities in more than 4,100 of them.

Eye care services covered by Medicare are the eye health part of an eye examination, when the patient has a symptom or complaint which necessitated the visit; treatment for eye disease; and, for those who have had cataract surgery, glasses or contact lenses. Medicare still does not cover other prescription glasses or contact lenses and the part of eye examinations to determine any lens prescription.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

There is probably no position in public service more thankless than being a member of the school board, especially when funding is inadequate and enrollment is dwindling. It really is gratifying to see that there are so many people interested in our schools that so many candidates sought positions on the board in the last election. There must be some rewards somewhere.

Cutting programs and positions in the school district must be very difficult. My concern stems from the criteria with which these eliminations are made. Classroom teachers are terminated but administrative personnel are entrenched. There are 20 such positions in K-12 and the AVTI: directors, principals, superintendents and supervisors. The only administrative position on the cutting board is the assistant principal at the Middle School and the board is adding a coordinator whose position has not been defined.

The residents of our community are so fortunate as to have community-education-directors-in-the school, the AVTI and the Chamber of Commerce. We should really be an enlightened group!

There is no position in our system more necessary than that being eliminated in the middle school. Does the board have a vendetta against 11 to 13-year-olds that so many of the losses in personnel are in the middle school? Children at that time in their development are the most vulnerable and need all the resources available to help them cope. I cannot comprehend the rationale of these actions.

The AVTI has a director, associate director, assistant director and aviation director. What do they all do? In 1973 the peak enrollment in K-12 was 3,229 students and the projected enrollment in 1987 is 2,329. If there are a thousand less students, shouldn't there be fewer administrators instead of more? It would be rewarding to get figures from the business manager — if he had time — as to how the budget breaks down: total amount for classroom teachers, text books, learning materials and supplies and the money spent for administrative salaries, the many secretaries, trips, transportation, brochures, advertising, etc. It would be stupid naivete not to realize that a school system cannot function without administrators, but surely there is a limit when retrenchment is necessary.

How easy it is to give hypocritical lip service to "quality education" and "what's best for our children to reach their highest potential" and then cut classroom teachers! Who really instructs our "most valuable resource" — administrators or the people from whom they learn to try to compete in this complex society?

To The Editor:

I would very much appreciate your printing this letter for me and others like me.

I am writing in regard to the handicapped parking zones in this city. My concerns are that there are handicapped signs, but do you know where they are?

One business establishment has the signs set up by the front doors, where no car can possibly park. Other spots are well signed and marked but you still cannot park there — because cars with no stickers and no reason other than laziness and inconsideration are parked there.

The city of Thief River Falls has a total of two handicapped zones in the down town area! Those in the city parking lots are one to two blocks away from the shopping area. Why do people who have a disability get discriminated against by putting these zones in places where even able bodied people don't want to park, because it is so far from the business places?

Supposedly there is a fine for parking in these areas, but when and if a ticket is issued, the fine is stayed. Why put up a sign or give a ticket if you do not intend to enforce it?

Some of us really do need these spots to park and deserve them. Next time you think, "Oh, I'll only be in the store a few minutes; it won't hurt to park in the handicapped area," stop and think of all of us who can't walk those extra few feet. You should all be glad and thankful you have no disability.

It makes me sick when I see an able bodied person park in these areas. Don't they ever stop and think of anyone except themselves.

Signed:
Looking For A Place To Park

To The Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the 1986-87 boys basketball team! You never seem to get the commendation and credit you deserve! Even though you lost some of your games, it was obvious to those of us who support you that you played each game with everything you had in you. Good attitudes, good sportsmanship and "clean" ball was shown throughout the season, quite unlike some of the other teams you played.

"Hats off" and "Best of Luck" to the senior players! You can be proud of yourselves for your last year of high school! Now, you can think about your future and move on to "bigger and better" things.

Congratulations and thank you go to the coaches!

Congratulations again boys! Be proud of yourselves! Your great efforts are seen by those of us who care.

Chapter 12 Reorganization May Assist Some Farmers

On Nov. 26, 1986, financially strapped Minnesota farmers were given a new tool in their struggle to keep farming. On that date, Chapter 12, the new reorganization chapter in the bankruptcy code, took effect. That law was designed solely for the use of struggling family farmers who need to reorganize their debt to give them a chance to repay those debts based upon current appraised values of farm assets rather than the face values of the debts, according to the Minnesota attorney general's office.

Previously existing bankruptcy reorganization options often could not help family farmers. Chapter 13, the wage earner plan, has debt limits which are set too low for most farmers and is unavailable to family farm corporations. Chapter 11, designed for large corporations, is extremely complex and costly, and creditors can veto reorganization plans. While it is impossible to tell just how many can be helped by Chapter 12 until the law has been used more, some provisions appear promising.

Chapter 12 can be used by farmers who derive at least 50 per cent of their gross income from farming and whose debt load is no more than $1,500,000, at least 80 per cent of which (excluding the debt for a residence) must arise from the farming operation. Within 90 days of filing a case under Chapter 12, the debtor must file a plan with the bankruptcy court which will generally provide for payments to creditors over a period of three to five years from the debtors' disposable income (defined as total income less living and operating expenses). Creditors can object to the plan, but the court can approve the plan if requirements of the law are met. If the plan is approved by the court, and the debtor complies with the requirements of the plan, at the end of the plan period the debtor will receive a discharge from all unsecured debts and from the undersecured portion of secured debts.

The major benefit to debtors lies in the treatment of secured creditors. Guaranteed repayment to them is based upon the value of the collateral, rather than the amount of the debt. This is especially important where the value of the collateral has greatly declined since the loan was made, as is often the case with farmland. The secured debt remains secured only to the extent of the security's appraised value. The remainder of the secured claim is then treated as an unsecured claim. These and other unsecured claims need only receive as much under the plan as they would receive if the debtor were to be liquidated under Chapter 7 of the bankruptcy code, which is generally not much.

Also, while the plan is in effect, payments on secured debts need only be at the rental value of land or, for other assets, just enough to protect the value of the property subject to the security interest. If the plan does not provide for payment of secured debt in full during the plan period or the surrender of secured property to the creditors, the still secured portion of the debt will continue. The remainder will be discharged with other unsecured debts.

Successful completion of a plan will require sacrifice, hard work and extensive planning. The streamlined process and short deadlines demands fast action by debtors, attorneys, financial advisors and the courts. Individual plans and the law as a whole will probably face stong opposition from creditors. A debtor who completes a plan, however, can get a fresh start.

As with any short summary of a complex subject, this article cannot hope to provide a complete guide to farmers, nor can it point out all potential pitfalls or problems. Likewise, until the law has been interpreted by the courts, its applicability and benefit to individual situations will remain unclear. No law can be a cure-all for the vast problems faced by farmers today, but Chapter 12 shows promise of helping some. If you think that you may be one of those benefited, talk to your attorney.

General topics of the issues were spending, taxation, economic development, finance and capital formation, unemployment and workers' compensation, energy and environment, civil justice reform and risk management, employee benefits and health care and state educational system. The conference was organized by the Minnesota chamber of commerce and industry.

FINAL PRACTICE before leaving Tuesday morning for the state basketball tournament in Minneapolis was held after school Monday by the Marshall County Central Nordics girls basketball team. Captain Jodi Foss, the only senior on the team and a 1,000 point career scorer, puts up a shot during offensive drills. Foss will lead the first ever Newfolden team to enter a state tournament in its opening game Thursday at 9 p.m. against Rochester Lourdes.

Jodi Foss Leads Nordic Team Into State Tournament

consecutive 23-point games against Roseau and Lake of the Woods. Her willingness to pass the ball to teammates on drives to the basket has cut down on her potential point total.

Her commitment to the team concept that is shared by the other Nordic girls is evidenced by the fact that four of the starters are averaging in double figures this year. Jodi leads with more than 15 points per game, followed by junior Andrea Kragness with nearly 13, sophomore Kelli Anderson with nearly 12 and junior Natalie Ueland with more than 10. Fifth starter Kari Boe averages more than seven points a game and Nikki Leach, first player off the bench, averages more than four points. All six are scholastic honor students. The Nordic tournament squad includes Jodi as a senior, four juniors, six sophomores, one freshman and one eighth grader.

Listed as 5' 6" in the school program, Jodi admits to being a tad over 5' 7" and plays a wing in the three-guard offense. She believes driving to the basket is the best part of her offensive game and she also credits the team's success to "excellent team work."

Going into the championship game in the regional tournament, the Nordics were consensus underdogs to the undefeated and multi-talented Win-E-Mac team.

"We had heard they were a really good team," Jodi said. "We didn't know what to expect from them. Then we saw them play on Friday night (in the opening round of the tournament) and we really believed we could beat them. We always took the games one at a time during the season, but we also looked at what would happen if we won or lost. Considering that Andrea (Kragness) was the only other person on our team with extensive playing time, I think we have come together really well."

Jodi began her interest in basketball in her pre-school years with a basket nailed to an oak tree in the family yard. Later she played on the Viking elementary school teams which played about a dozen games a year against neighboring schools. The basket at home went up on the garage wall at full height and Jodi took the game more seriously.

The daughter of Marlene Foss of Newfolden and Marvin Foss of Middle River, she lives in the shadow of the Newfolden school gym (or would if the sun set in the northwest) and is a frequent participant in open gym programs during the summer.

"I lived over there," she said about the gym. "I was always there if I wasn't working or at basketball camp." She attended several camps at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks and won three outstanding camper awards. Only one of the awards was handed out at each camp session.

Although an outstanding volleyball player as well, she much prefers the hoop sport. "It's more forgiving," she said. "If you miss a shot or throw the ball away, you can go out and get it back again," she said. "In volleyball if you make a mistake it usually means a point."

All-conference in basketball and volleyball for two years, and a likely selection in basketball after this season, she also participated in track until she was a freshman. But she draws the line on playing softball. "I hate it!" she says frankly, although her mother has played women's league softball in Thief River Falls for about 18 years. Her father also has good athletic ability, she said.

In her spare time, when not playing basketball or volleyball or working at the Sportsmen's Den in Newfolden or Dairy Queen in Thief River Falls, Jodi enjoys watching basketball on television and doing cross-stitch embroidery. She plans to attend the University of Minnesota-Crookston next fall where she hopes to continue her basketball career, and some day to complete a four-year program in business.

Stumpf Bill To Revise Lost River Forest Boundaries

Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has authored legislation that will once again revise the boundaries of Lost River state forest.

"Last year," Stumpf said, "we expanded the Lost River boundaries without realizing that some property owners in the area didn't know about the changes. When they discovered the change, they became concerned that we were imposing state land on their private property."

Since the 1986 session, Senator Stumpf has held a number of town meetings to address those concerns.

"We came to an agreement on where the boundaries should be," Stumpf said, "and the bill I've authored will again put the Lost River boundaries within state land lines — just as they were approved by the people affected by these boundaries."

Senator Stumpf introduced the bill in the Senate March 12 and expects that he will get a hearing in the Senate environment and natural resources committee very soon.

Area Pianists To Perform In MN Honors Concert

Eleven piano students of Marcia Knuttila were winners in the Minnesota music teachers association state piano contest held at Normandale community college in Minneapolis on March 14th.

These award-winning piano students will be among nearly 700 outstanding young musicians participating in the State honors piano concert of the Minnesota Music Teachers' Association (MMTA) 7 p.m. June 6th honors concert at Northrop auditorium, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis.

These honor students will perform as individual young artists or in 20-piano ensembles. Dr. William Jones, founder and director of the Greater Twin Cities youth symphony, will conduct the young musicians performing in ensemble compositions on 20 grand pianos provided by Schmitt Music company.

Honors students began their quest for a spot on the Northrop stage in February when more than 5,000 piano students throughout the state competed in the preliminaries. Of these, approximately 1,700 were chosen to advance to contest finals in mid-March. Students competed in eight categories set up according to age. In some categories, students had to pass a music theory examination in order to be eligible to participate in the honors concert.

MMTA teachers and students see the concert not only as a showcase for outstanding young musicians in the state, but for the comprehensive MMTA music curriculum which integrates theory and performance.

Alternate winner in Primary (5 - 8 yrs. old) is Eeva Young, first grade daughter of Paivi and Stephen Young of Thief River Falls. Eeva performed "March Op. 98 No. 3" by Gretchaninoff. Eeva's score was 95.

LEAFING THROUGH YOUR LIBRARY

by Deanna Swanson
Branch Librarian

by Deanna Swanson

U.S. Department of Interior and Wildlife Service has set up an informative display at the Northwest Regional Library in Thief River Falls in recognition of National Wildlife Week, March 15-21. Wildlife is stressed along with the effects of air pollution and acid rain.

The public is invited to view the display and pick up some pamphlets. They include: "What Does 'Fish' Stand For?"; "50 Years Restoring America's Wildlife 1937-1987"; and "We Care About Clean Air" A slide presentation entitled "Let's Clear the Air, Understanding Air Pollution" is available for check-out.

Spring is around the corner. With it comes Easter, then graduations, confirmations, and the picnic season. Some of us love to think about what to serve at special occasions which lead us to thinking about food. There are many excellent cookbooks available at the library. Sunset's Quick Meals With Fresh Foods has a section on kitchen efficiency along with recipes for seafood, pasta and grains, poultry, eggs and cheese. Barbara Weiland edited The Picnic Cookbook which includes a section on accessories, supplies and fire safety.

Picnic menus are divided into "Spring Excursions"; "Dining and Flowers"; "Summer Spread for Mountains, Seashore and Backyard"; "Autumn Bounty, Best of the Harvest"; and "Winter Picnic by Snowbank or Hearth." Inexpensive Meats by Cynthia Scheer helps us to entertain on a budget. Scandinavian Cooking Made Easy contains savory dishes from the four northern sisters: Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden. The Busy People's Cookbook by Beverly Anderson Nemior and Working Parents Food Book by Adeline Gardner and Kay Reynolds have an abundance of timesaving recipes and food preparation tips. A chapter on how to prevent food poisoning is included. This can be a worry when food sits on a buffet. Angela Bowen, M.D., stressed that the diabetic diet can be versatile, appetizing, and enjoyed by the entire family by using recipes from The Diabetic Gourmet cookbook. In Richard Simmons' Never-Say-Diet Cookbook, we have recipes to help us watch calories through all of our festive celebrations.

Thief River Falls Community Arts Council selected Marilyn Bannerman as March Artist of the Month. Her paintings are on display in the library. Marilyn had been painting for two years, and is a student at the AVTI.

Chuck Haga of the "Grand Forks Herald" will be guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Northwest Regional Library Board of Directors. It will be held at 6:30 p.m March 19, at the Best Western in Thief River Falls. Tickets are available at the library. Call 681-4325 for further information.

MINNESOTA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

A bill proposing that ethanol should be in every Minnesota unleaded gas pump by 1989 has been introduced in the House. I will be following the legislation closely, as it could have a significant impact on our state's economy.

Specifically, the proposal requires a 10 per cent ethanol blend in 50 per cent of Minnesota's unleaded gas by June 30, 1988 and 100 per cent by June 30, 1989.

The authors say the ethanol requirement could be a big boost to the state's economy without costing government a dime. Estimating that Minnesotans will be using two billion gallons of unleaded gas by 1989, we could produce 200 million gallons of ethanol and deplete 80 million bushels of our corn surplus every year. They say farmers' corn would increase in value by $100 million.

Beside helping farmers, the bill's proponents say that this substantial increase in ethanol production will create 15,000 new jobs and require a $600 million capital investment for plants and equipment. Sales tax revenues of $25 million, raised from the sale of equipment, is another positive point for ethanol.

The environmental argument for ethanol is that it produces significantly lower levels of two major pollutants, carbon monoxide and ozone, than does straight gasoline. Ethanol blended gasoline also reduces nitrogen oxides, which are the precursors of acid rain.

It's well-known that ehtanol received some harsh criticism in the recent past for being harmful to cars. Ethanol advocates say all the attacks were unjustified. The only substantial claim is that fuel filters have been clogged as a result of using ehtanol, but that's only because ethanol has cleaned out dirt, grime and a varnish-like residue left in fuel systems by regular gasoline.

Ethanol has often been confused with Methanol, that can potentially have an adverse effect on vehicles. Ethanol is produced from fermented corn, while methanol comes from natural gas or coal.

If proponents of the bill can prove beyond a doubt that ethanol is not harmful to vehicles, it will improve the chances of this bill passing. I am sure as the testimony unfolds, we will be learning a great deal about ethanol and how various groups stand on both sides of the ethanol question.

If you'd like to comment or ask questions about ethanol or any other legislative issue, please contact me at (612) 296-9918. My address is Room 351, State Office Building, St. Paul, MN, 55155.

Many Vocational Graduates Find Entrepreneurial Careers

Entrepreneurial graduates of Minnesota's technical institutes contribute directly to business formation and job creation throughout the state. Their entrepreneurial initatives are evident in all the major sectors of the economy except mining and are part of the economic development momentum of every region of the state, according to a report issued today by the state council on vocational technical education.

The report represents the first steps by the council to develop a data base on entrepreneurial graduates of post secondary vocational technical education.

"People don't usually think of vocational students as potential entrepreneurs. Our data suggests that a good number of them are, and this report should go a long way in helping to change that perception," said John Mercer, the council's executive director.

In a survey conducted by the council, Minnesota's 30 technical institutes identified nearly 1,200 of their regular, full-time students, who after graduating went into business.

Council president Linda White of St. Paul said, "The evidence is very clear that vocational education is an important element in Minnesota's economic development. The council hopes to be able to learn even more about entrepreneurship and has a strong interest in more doors being opened through vocational education to all students, including minorities and other special populations."

Among the council's findings:

+ The 730 entrepreneurial graduates, who hired one or more employees, averaged 5.3 employees each for a total of 3,891. The number of employees ranged from one to 350.

A total of 407 entrepreneurial graduates hired no employees.

+ Together the entrepreneurial graduates and their employees represented 5,060 jobs.

+ Overall, 63 per cent of the entrepreneurial graduates established rather than purchased their businesses.

+ A total of 978 or 84 per cent of the entrepreneurial graduates were located in Minnesota.

Approximately two-thirds of the enterprises established or purchased by entrepreneurial graduates were located within 50 miles of the entrepreneur's technical institute. More than three-quarters were located within 100 miles.

+ The entrepreneurial graduates were engaged in a broad range of enterprises. Their businesses were distributed among all of the nine standard industrial classification (SIC) codes except mining.

+ Entrepreneurial graduates of the 27 campuses in non-metro Minnesota appear more likely to come from the program groups in agriculture and transportation-mechanical than their counterparts in the Twin Cities area who tend instead to come from the program groups in health, marketing-management-sales, and technical-manufacturing.

+ Twin Cities are entrepreneurial graduates appear more likely to operate retail businesses, employ a greater number or workers, locate their businesses in greater proximity to their technical institutes, and to be women.

+ Collectively, 98 per cent of the entrepreneurial graduates were in businesses related to their vocational programs.

+ Five of the 12 vocational program groups in the technical institutes account for 82 per cent of all the entrepreneurial graduates, with the industrial trades accounting for 56 per cent.

+ Entrepreneurial graduates in the industrial trades appear more likely to have no or fewer employees than entrepreneurial graduates of other program groups.

+ While the program groups in health, marketing-management-sales, and media-communications appear to produce fewer entrepreneurial graduates, each of their enterprises tend to employ more workers than the entrepreneurial graduates in the industrial trades.

+ The marketing-management-sales program group accounted for 33 per cent of the women entrepreneurial graduates, while the personal services program group accounted for another 31 per cent.

Women entrepreneurial graduates as a whole appear to establish rather than purchase their businesses, to operate retail or service-oriented enterprises, and to have more employees than men entrepreneurial graduates.

+ Costmetology appears to be the postsecondary program that lends itself most readily to entrepreneurial initiatives for women.

"To view regular, full-time students in the technical institutes solely as potential employees and never as potential employers simply does not reflect reality," the report concludes.

"The council's focus on entrepreneurial education does not detract from the essential role of Minnesota's technical institutes to produce a technically-competent, highly-skilled and productive work force," Mercer added. He explained that entrepreneurial education is seen as a key means of further strengthening the technical institutes' role as economic development centers throughout Minnesota.

The state council on vocational technical education is appointed by the Governor of Minnesota and is charged with policy, consultative, advisory, evaluation, research, informational, reporting and service responsibilities relative to vocational technical education in the state. The council advisses the governor, state board of vocational technical education, state board of education, governor's job training council, business community, general public, U.S secretary of education and U.S. secretary of labor.

Foraminifera Are Small Creatures Marking Time

by William G. Schulz
Smithsonian News Service

Light flickers on the movie screen as small black dots begin pushing their way out of a layer of sand. In another film, the dots do just the opposite, burrowing through the sand toward the bottom of the screen.

An avant-garde film series? The science fiction creation of a big-name director with a tight budget? No, these films represent part of a young scientist's doctoral research. But the films' stars have a big name: foraminifera, a collection of mostly microscopic marine organisms that float freely in the oceans, or near the bottom and in its sediments.

The scientist, Karen Wetmore from Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, is completing her research on forams — as they're called by those in the know — at the Smithsonian's National Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C. The films, she explains, are time-lapse sequences of these creatures, photographed in specially rigged petrie dishes. Wetmore wants to increase understanding of foram behavior and how it might be affected by the various shapes of their shells.

While this work might sound as esoteric as any art film, the more than 2,000 people worldwide who study foraminifera would disagree. And for good reason. Since the turn of the century, fossil and living forams have become one of the most important tools used by earth scientists. "If you're studying the Earth's past history, you'll probably use forams," sayd Dr. Martin Buzas, Wetmore's adviser and a foram researcher in the Museum of Natural History's Paleobiology Department.

Fossil forams can provide information about past environments and numerous details about the ancient oceans. Geologists can identify possible petroleum deposits with forams, and the fossils provide other scientists with a sound technique for determining the ages of other ancient organisms embedded n marine sediments.

Before the early 1900s, many researchers dismissed forams as "scientific curiosities with no geologic importance," according to one writer. Those ideas changed with the work of Dr. Joseph A. Cushman, now regarded as the "dean" of foraminiferal research. At the urging of pioneering scientist Mary Jane Rathbun — the first woman scientist hired by the Smithsonian Institution — Cushman began researching the evolution, biology and classification of forams, first for the Smithsonian's U.S. National Museum and later, the U.S. Geological Survey. For years, however, the young Cushman struggled to keep his research funded while many of his colleagues questioned the work's value.

But in 1914, Cushman achieved a breakthrough. He studied forams from a series of drill samples taken from a deep-water well in Charleston, S.C., and, for the first time, showed that by knowing foram species and their abundances for each geologic time period, one could determine the period in which each layer from the drill sample was formed. Today, this process is known as "biostratigraphy," one of the most reliable tools in modern geology and paleontology for dating layers of the earth. Foram species, researchers say, blaze a trail through a major portion of geologic time.

In the 1920s, a few oil company geologists began applying studies of microscopic fossil forams to their search for oil. Hoping to find the best places to drill, the Marland Oil Co. of Mexico approached Cushman about studying forams from one of their prospecting regions. Cushman accepted the work, but it soon proved overwhelming.

The research required him to identify many new forams and make accurate correlations with forams from known petroleum deposits. Marland's general manager became impatient with the painstaking scientific work and insisted that Cushman just tell him where to drill. Finally, Cushman turned the work over to other researchers.

Nonetheless, his salary from Marland allowed Cushman to retire and establish a foram laboratory at his home in Sharon, Mass. There, he also published a scientific journal and trained students in foram research. When he died in 1949, his library and vast foram collections were donated to the Smithsonian. His work for Marland was not in vain; petroleum geologists today relay heavily on forams and the scientific foundations created largely by Cushman in their work.

Cushman's specimens are just one part of the Natural History museum's vast foram collection. More than 500,000 slides make up this collection, creating a total of millions of individual forams, Buzas says. In addition, there are thin sections of sediments containing forams and drawers full of larger foram species. "Anyone seriously studying forams," he continues, "eventually has to come to the Smithsonian to consult this collection." Visitors come almost every day, Buzas adds, noting that geologists from oil companies have stayed as long as a year to study the forams.

Appreciating forams, however, doesn't require a Ph.D. or a prospector's desire for black gold. Take, for instance, the so-called "cabbage-patch" foram. This creature grows single-cell algae on its soft body extensions, providing itself with a constant supply of food. From inside their shells, other forams put out a "net," analogous to a spider's web, which traps and dissolves animals for food that are sometimes larger than the foram itself.

Likewise, the various foram species reproduce in nearly every way nature has devised, Buzas says. Some reproduce sexually during one reproduction cycle, for example, then asexually the next, continually alternating the method throughout their lifespans, which may last from a few weeks to more than a year. "You name a kind of feeding behavior and lifestyle and they're probably into it," Buzas says.

Whereas the majority of foram species are microscopic in size, "some get as big as a good-sized potato chip," Fred Collier, collection manager in the museum's Department of Paleontology, says. All foram species have calcium carbonate shells, which, in part, accounts for their great abundance in the geologic record.

Forams create shells in two ways. The "calcareous" species secrete their shells, which reflect the chemical composition of surrounding water. "Agglutinated" species glue together shells from sand or shell fragments from other organisms, including their fellow forams.

Researchers in paleoceanography — the study of ancient oceans — conduct sophisticated chemical analysis of the secreted shells of fossilized benthic, or bottom-dwelling, forams to shed light on the chemical composition of ancient oceans, reveal past climatic conditions or estimate the extent of glaciation during ice ages. Planktonic forams — those that float freely in the upper layers of the oceans — are used in biostratigraphy work, and, because of their great abundance, often supply the material to be dated. "Forams are not a trivial aspect of this research," Dr. Bruce Corliss, a foram researcher in the Department of Geology at Duke University in Durham, N.C., says.

As a scientific discipline, paleoceanography traces its origins to the ongoing Ocean Drilling Program, "the largest single expedition launched in this world by the United States," Dr. Richard Benson, another curator in the Natural History museum's Department of Paleobiology, says. For five years, Benson was in charge of all paleobiology work associated with the expedition, which began in 1969 and has so far drilled core samples at more than 700 sites around the world.

Among the important results from this program, Benson says, is confirmation of seafloor spreading, that is, the widening of the Atlantic Ocean. This occurs as new rock pushes up from the Earth's interior along the mid-Atlantic ridge — the ocean's mountainous midline — creating new surface area. Foram biostratigraphy, he says, was essential for documenting the creation of this new material over millions of years.

Studying living forams helps researchers achieve better interpretations from their work with fossil specimens. Corliss, for example, recently looked at the behavior of living benthic forams in an effort to resolve discrepancies in estimates of ancient water depths that were based on fossil species. On the other hand, living and fossil foram species were once thought to evolve only in tropical regions of the world, then to disperse to other areas. Research on fossil specimens by the Smithsonian's Buzas showed that foram species — fossil and living — evolve everywhere forams exist.

"Foraminifera have worldwide distribution," Buzas says. Considering their usefulness to science, it's no wonder these tiny creatures have a big name.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTISTS junior Earliteen Sabbath school class members in Thief River Falls discovered during a class project to dig up historical statistics or facts about the church, that the pulpit at the church is the oldest piece of furniture at the church. # Acceleration Of Some Cars May Be Real Danger

In the past several months there has been substantial concern regarding the apparent tendency of several makes of cars to suddenly accelerate when shifted into gear, according to Dr. Francis Kenel, director of the American Automobile association's (AAA) traffic safety department and an expert in the field of driver education."

"There are two actions — one preventive, the other a response — that need to be communicated to the driving public," he said.

(1) Prior to shifting any automatic transmission-equipped vehicle into gear, the driver's foot should be placed firmly on the brake pedal.

(2) If the driver should experience sudden acceleration or the accelerator pedal sticks, he or she should shift to neutral.

The procedure for shifting to neutral differs depending on the vehicle. If driving a vehicle with manual shift, the operator only needs to push down on the clutch pedal. If driving an automatic transmission, the operator pushes the steering column shift lever up if in "drive" or down if in "reverse." In most cases, the transmission will simply drop into neutral.

In vehicles with console or floor-mounted shift levers, the procedure to follow is similar to that of a column-mounted shift lever. The selector lever is pushed straight forward from drive or pulled back from reverse into neutral. Unfortunately, in some cars care is required when shifting from reverse since it is possible to move the shifting lever from reverse through neutral directly into drive.

In an attempt to prevent accidental movement of the shift lever, manufacturers have added a locking device to the top of the shifting stem on the thumb side of the T-bar that must be depressed before the shift lever can be moved. However, there are again differences. In a few cars the locking device must be depressed below the top of the knob, an action that may require the operator's full attention.

Having such information is not the same as using it. In order to respond in an emergency, drivers must be able to act without conscious thought. This means (1) knowing the type of shifting arrangement found in the car; and (2) practicing until they can shift to neutral without taking their eyes off the road.

The benefits of the ability to shift quickly to neutral go beyond the issue of sudden acceleration. The most obvious is the ability to use neutral when approaching any situation that requires slowing or stopping when the roadway is slick. In such instances, neutral gear enhances both steering and braking control.

GRYGLA . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sistad and family recently purchased the Roy Paulson farm and this week left their home in Grygla and moved to their farm.

On Sunday guests at the Loren Lusignan home in honor of Brent's 15th birthday were Mr. and Mrs. David Rude, Rachel and Jennifer of Thief River Falls, Mrs. Wayne Warne, Jason and Denton, Mrs. Alice Hook, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bakken and Ryan. Also Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Lusignan of Thief River Falls were birthday guests on Wednesday. Happy birthday, Brent.

ORIGINAL PAINTING by Jack Davidson of Thief River Falls was created for the Red Lake county Ducks Unlimited chapter and donated to that organization for auction at its fund-raiser Thursday night at the Third Base in Brooks. Framing for the painting was provided by Pine to Prairie Gallery in Thief River Falls.

Latest news about Minnesota vacations fills the 1987 spring-summer Minnesota Explorer, a free, 24-page, full-color newspaper published by the Minnesota Office of Tourism.

The all new Minnesota Explorer has stories on the pristine Mississippi River at its source, tours of a ore carrier in the Duluth harbor, the Minnesota resorting tradition, bass and charter fishing, downtown walking tours of the unidentical twins — Minneapolis and St. Paul, and intriguing spots along Minnesota's back roads. The newspaper also has tips on exploring the state's countryside, forests, lakes and rivers by canoe, excursion boat and bike, as well as by car.

A calendar describes over 600 events, with special features on ethnic festivals, rodeos, Indian powwows, county fairs and more. Everything from summer theater to a major orchestra music festival is featured in a statewide arts calendar.

Minnesota Explorer is available free from the Minnesota Travel Information Center, 375 Jackson St., 250 Skyway Level, St. Paul, MN 55101. Or call weekdays 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. toll-free 800-652-9747.

Waterfowl Group Donation

Burger Brothers, a well known Minneapolis-based sporting goods retailer, has recently donated over $35,000 in warm clothing to the Minnesota Waterfowl Association (M.W.A.). Donations of clothing have been made to the Hill City High School student council, in northern Aitkin County, the Peace Center in New Prague, and to the Christ Lutheran church in St. Paul.

M.W.A. is a private non-profit organization dedicated to the creation, restoration and preservation of wildlife habitat in Minnesota. The M.W.A., through proceeds from memberships, fundraisers, and donations, has benefitted Minnesota's wildlife for twenty years.

M.W.A. members were the legs for the distribution, and Burger Brothers the benefactors. Through its chapters, the M.W.A. distributed the jackets, sweaters, shirts, hats, etc. Local food shelves and other institutions who provide for the needy received the top quality items with brand names such as Pendleton and Woolrich.

"This shows terrific cooperation of caring sportsmen," said Greg Berg, Fundraising Director of the M.W.A. "Support the M.W.A. and Burger Brothers, who have built what is probably the premier sporting goods store in the U.S., located in Bloomington. They're showing they care!"

MCC Is Among First Time Entrants At State Meet

Five first time entrants grace the 16-team field which will comprise the 12th annual Minnesota State High School League state girls Class AA and Class A basketball tournament scheduled to be conducted at the Minneapolis Auditorium and Met Center in Bloomington Thursday through Saturday, reports Larry Larson of the MSHSL staff in Anoka.

The first-time entrants include three from Class A and two from the Class AA eight-team field. Making first appearances in Class A are Pipestone, Fairfax-Gibbon, and Marshall County Central. In for a first time in Class AA are Roseville Area and Osseo.

Class AA titlist of a year ago, St. Louis Park, was successful in their bid to gain another state tournament berth in 1987. However, Midwest Minnesota (Clara City and Maynard) lost to state entry Tracy-Milroy in region action and will not be back in this year's tournament, pointed out Larson.

Opening round state tournament games once again will be played at two sites on Thursday. All of Thursday's Class AA games are set for the Minneapolis Auditorium, while Class A quarterfinal contests are scheduled for the Met Center. All semifinal and championship games on Friday and Saturday will take place at the Met Center. Class AA semifinal and title games are set for Friday afternoon and Saturday night, respectively. The Class A semi and championship games are set for Friday night and Saturday afternoon.

Consolation games on Friday morning will be at Normandale Community College (Class A) and Met Center (Class AA). The consolation championship games in both classes are set for Saturday morning at the Met Center. Class A will play at 8:30 a.m., followed by Class AA at 10 a.m.

St. Louis Park and Hill-Murray are the only repeat entries from last year's field in Class AA and Rochester Lourdes is the lone school back from the 1986 field in Class A. Both Hill-Murray and Rochester Lourdes lost opening round games last March.

St. Louis Park (AA) and Chisholm (A) are two schools among the 16 ever to win a state title in the previous 11 state tournaments. St. Louis Park won in 1986 and Chisholm captured top honors in 1984.

MARSHALL COUNTY CENTRAL, a winner in the Region 8A girls high school basketball tournament over the weekend at the University of Minnesota-Crookston, will face Region 1A champion Rochester Lourdes Thursday at 9 p.m. in the opening round quarterfinals of the 1987 Minnesota Class A state tournament at the Met Center in Bloomington. Pictured by The Times' photographer shortly after their 40-36 Region 8A title game win over Win-E-Mac Saturday, the Nordics' state tournament-bound squad includes, front row left to right, Denae Bengtson, Kari Boe, Karen Stennes, and Nikki Leach; middle row left to right, assistant coach Mark Jorgenson, student manager DeAnn Bakke, Denae Mjelde, Darcene Moen, and Angie Nelson; back row left to right, Jodi Foss, Natalie Ueland, Melinda Halfaday, CharRae Underdahl, Kelli Anderson, Andrea Kragness, student manager Dawn Swenson, head coach Tom Mjelde, and assistant coach Doug Haven. Not pictured: student manager Kari Kolstad.

Class AA pairings Thursday: 1:35 p.m. — Region 3AA Roseville Area (19-2) vs. Region 4AA Hill-Murray (23-1); 3:30 p.m. — Region 2AA Mankato East (22-1) vs. Region 5AA Osseo (21-2). In the other bracket, 7:35 p.m. — Region 7AA Duluth East (18-4) vs. Rgion 8AA Rocori (21-2); 9:30 p.m. — Region 1AA Rochester Mayo (18-4) vs. Region 6AA St. Louis Park (20-1).

None of the teams are undefeated, said Larson. Many observers are picking top rated Mankato East to emerge from the upper bracket into the finals and fourth ranked St. Louis Park to make the finals from the lower bracket. Second ranked Hill-Murray is rated a darkhorse. Hill-Murray's lone loss was to Mankato East, 75-58. St. Louis Park, meanwhile, lost only to Edina, who they eliminated in the regional finals. Mankato East appears to be the team to beat.

Hill-Murray has made the most appearances, six, among the Class AA entrants. Their best finish was in 1980 when the Pioneers finished as state runner-up. Mankato East is back for a fourth time. The Cougars were state runner-up in 1985. Still a third state runner-up in the field in Rochester Mayo, who finished second in 1982.

Duluth East, meanwhile, is making its fourth trip after last appearing two years ago. Rocori of Cold Spring will be in its second state torunament. The first was in 1977.

Three teams in the Class AA field are riding lengthy winning streaks — Hill-Murray has won 18 straight games; St. Louis Park 16; and Roseville Area 15.

New London-Spicer is the lone undefeated team remaining among the 472 teams that participated this season in Minnesota. Winners of 24 straight games, the Wildcats' closest encounter was in the Region 5A semifinals when they defeated defending region champion Pierz 58-57.

Class A pairings Thursday: 1:05 p.m. — Region 3A Tracy-Milroy (21-1) vs. Region 6A Wheaton (23-1); 3 p.m. — Region 2A Pipestone (22-2) vs. Region 7A Chisholm (23-2). In the other bracket, 7:05 p.m. — Region 4A Fairfax-Gibbon (20-3) vs. Region 5A New London-Spicer (24-0); 9 p.m. — Region 1A Rochester Lourdes (23-2) vs. Region 8A Marlshall County Central (23-1).

Tracy-Milroy, who defeated defending state champion and top rated Midwest Minnesota in regional competition last week, is considered by some as the team to beat. Their lone loss was to Midwest Minnesota during regular season play. They were ranked third in the final ratings, behind top rated Midwest Minnesota and second ranked Pierz, who fell to New London-Spicer, who finished fifth in the final ratings.

Prognosticators are picking a Tracy-Milroy vs. New London-Spicer final; however, some observers like Wheaton, who finished sixth in the final ratings to be a tourney darkhorse. The Warriors draw Tracy-Milroy in the opening round. Wheaton has lost but one game, to Class AA school Fergus Falls, 56-51.

Teams sporting lengthy winning streaks in Class A include New London-Spicer (24), Marshall County Central (23), Chisholm (15), and Fairfax-Gibbon (13). Marshall County Central lost its opening regular season game to Thief River Falls, 43-40, and since then has reeled off a string of 23 wins without a setback.

Tracy-Milroy is in its first year as a paired athletic program. Both schools have made previous state torunament trips, Tracy in 1981, 1982 and 1984, and Milroy in 1985 when they finished as state runner-up to Staples.

Chisholm and Rochester Lourdes are making third appearances. In addition to winning top honors in 1984, Chisholm was entered in 1983. Rochester Lourdes, meanwhile, was entered in 1976 and last year. Wheaton was entered once previously, 1983.

Northwestern Minnesota entrant Marshall County Central, located in Newfolden, is the smallest school in the tournament with an enrollment of 104 students in the top three grades. The smallest school ever to appear in a state girls tournament was Milroy, enrollment, 47, in the 1985 tournament.

BRUCE MATTSON 300
AMF

A PERFECT 300 game was rolled by Bruce Mattson (right) Monday night at the Family Bowl. The feat earned the Thief River Falls bowler a $50 cash prize from Tom Greelis of the Family Bowl, and will be followed by a 300-game ring from the American Bowling Congress (ABC). Mattson bowled the 300 on the final game of the final night of regular season competition as a member of the Old-Timers team in the Monday Night Elks League. He had a 161-190-300 for a 651 series in a league where he carries a 171 average. Teammates included Milt and Gordy Reierson. Mattson also bowls in the Sunday Pin Splitters League and the Tuesday National Business League. It was just the fifth 300 in league play ever recorded at the Family Bowl, according to Greelis. Mattson's 300 name plate will join those of Jarvis Olson, 1979; Joel Carlson, 1980; Mark Baker, 1986; and Curt Quesnell, this fall.

Giauque Named Top Swimmer

Most valuable honors went to Paul Giauque Monday at the annual Thief River Falls boys high school swimming banquet.

Hardest worker award was presented to junior Keith Olson, and most improved swimmer award was given to freshman Ed Krystosek as the Prowlers put the finishing touches on their recently-completed 1986-87 season.

Giauque and Olson were also named co-captains of the 1987-88 Prowlers, succeeding Todd Carlson and Rick Rosetta, a pair of seniors who held those positions this winter.

Athletic letters were presented to seniors Greg Dosser, Joe Drevlow, Jared Ellingson, Tom Mickelson, David Novak, Carlson, and Rosetta; juniors Brian Joppru, Brian Schindler, Shon Thompson, Giauque, and Olson; sophomore Aaron Tofte; freshmen Shane Defreece, Mike Jorde, Aaron Marshall and Krystosek; plus student managers Cheri Sinn and Troy Carlson.

Coach Jay Forney's Prowlers were 9-2 in dual meet competition this season, and qualified Giauque (100 butterfly) and Thompson (diving) for the 1987 state swimming and diving championships.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION was given to these three Prowlers Monday during the annual Thief River Falls boys high school swimming banquet. The trio includes, left to right, Ed Krystosek, most improved; Paul Giauque, most valuable; and Keith Olson, hardest worker. Giauque and Olson were also named co-captains.

Three-Point Field Goal Approved By MSHSL

Board of directors of the Minnesota State High School League, at its March 11 meeting in St. Paul, approved several recommendations of the MSHSL Athletic Council, including the adoption of the three-point field goal rule for boys and girls basketball.

Rest of the measures that were approved will have a less dramatic effect on the average sports fan. They include:

+ Hockey — approved requirement for goal judge for all section tournament games.

+ Volleyball — increased game limitation per day from four to five, except for tournaments.

+ Football — increased official squad size as follows: Class AA from 44 to 55; Class A from 40 to 45; Class B from 36 to 39. No changes were made in Class C and 9-man.

+ Boys and girls basketball — board of directors will survey designated school representatives and designated school board representatives regarding the no-foul-out rule and evaluate results at a future meeting.

+ Baseball — approved first round games being played on separate days for each class.

+ Softball — approved consolation rounds beginning in 1987-88, and approved moving to a Friday-Saturday format beginning in 1987-88.

+ Cross country skiing — approved change in the scoring system.

+ soccer — all non-tournament games which end tied after regulation shall be dicided by two five-minute non-sudden-death periods. If the game is still tied, it shall remain that way.

TRF Boys Playing

Thief River Falls boys are still playing basketball — fielding a combination sophomore-freshman team to compete in an eight-team invitational sophomore tournament this week in Karlstad.

Ryan Walseth scored 21 points, Todd Brandon had 18, and Todd Prickett netted 16 as Thief River Falls defeated Kennedy 75-49 in a first round game Tuesday.

Thief River Falls will be back in Karlstad Thursday for a semifinal meeting against either Hallock or Warren.

Northland Standout Will Play Football At UND . . .

McCullough Signs With Sioux

Northland Community College football-basketball standout Anthony McCullough signed both a North Central Conference and national letter of intent Tuesday to attend the University of North Dakota next fall, where he'll receive a full scholarship to play football for the Sioux.

McCullough, a 6-4, 255-pounder from Canton, OH, is projected as a defensive nose guard at UND, a position where he dominated play during his two years at Northland. Sioux head coach Roger Thomas also hinted he like McCullough's potential as a tight end because of his size and quickness, but without spring practice, there may not be enough time to experiment with position changes, he acknowledged.

Besides, UND has an immediate need for interior defensive linemen.

"I think, physically, Anthony has the potential, if he hits the weights hard between now and when he reports in the fall, to be a starter at UND," said Northland coach Rick Nelson. "I think he has the potential to go over there and be big time."

McCullough was actively recruited by a number of North Central Conference schools, several smaller schools back in his native Ohio territory, along with a few Division I schools like Cal State-Fullerton. It came down to a choice between NCC rivals North Dakota and St. Cloud State, and he picked the Sioux.

With McCullough leading the way, Northland enjoyed its finest football season in history this past fall with a 5-3 Northwest Division championship campaign that was followed by a 28-13, state playoff semifinal loss to Vermilion. It was the first winning season ever for the Pioneers, and their first post-season appearance. His efforts earned McCullough all-state and Second Team NJCAA All-America honors.

Even though he didn't play basketball in high school, and by-passed the sport in his first year at Northland, McCullough stepped on the court this winter for coach Chet Engelman and promptly earned all-state honors as the Pioneers came up with their second consecutive Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament runner-up finish. Nelson figures McCullough might be the first two-sport all-starter in MCCC history.

"I think he's probably the best athlete ever to attend Northland Community College," said Nelson, repeating a statement made this winter by Engelman.

And that high praise gave to someone who came to Northland with virtually no recruiting effort on the part of the coaches. Canton products Chris Sims and David Dickey, who starred in basketball at Northland, sold McCullough on the idea of attending the small two-year school in Thief River Falls.

The decision proved beneficial to both the student and the school.

"We wish him the best of luck at UND," said Nelson.

Pahlen is a Plummer product. Lorsung is from Waubun.

Maroon-Gold Hockey Series Rosters, Coaches Are Named

Jerry Peterson, head coach of 1987 state high school champion Bloomington Kennedy, will match wits with state high school runner-up Burnsville's coach Tom Oslecki yet another time as both coaches have been selected to the coaching straffs of the prestigious Maroon and Gold high school all-star hockey series, it was announced by series officials this week.

Oslecki will be joined on the Maroon team representing players from high school sections 1, 3, 4, 6 and Edina coach Willard Ikola; Andre Beaulieu, head coach at Stillwater; Bucky Kendig, St. Bernard's coach; and Chris Langegett, long time assistant at North St. Paul.

All of the coaching staff were selected by the Minnesota High School Hockey coaches as Coach or Co-coach of the Year from the respective sections.

Gernander, in addition to his coaching duties with the Gold team, will be an assistant coach for Team Minnesota which will be selected at the completion of the Maroon and Gold Series in Grand Rapids on March 29. Team Minnesota will participate in the National Junior Olympic Tournament April 8-11 in Michigan.

Team managers selected for the Maroon and Gold Series include Tom Peart and John Erickson for the Maroon team and Bill Cortes for the Gold team.

North Border Boys Pick All-Conference Basketball Squad

Four members of the North Border Conference-champion Warroad team were named to the 1986-87 North Border boys high school basketball all-conference team, it was announced by league officals this week.

Warriors honored included 6-5 senior Tim Fast, 5-11 senior Harold Wennerstrand, 5-10 junior Lance Sage, and 6-3 junior Eric Reed.

Rest of the squad included 5-10 senior Reed Engelstad and 6-2 junior Thor Smerek, Grygla; 6-0 senior Danni Halvorson and 5-10 senior Darin Rokke, Marshall County Central; 6-1 senior Tom Gullikson, Middle River; 5-10 senior Greg Pulczinski, Greenbush; 6-1 senior David Beyer, Lake of the Woods; and 6-1 senior Scott Jaenicke, Roseau.

Honorable mention status went to 5-10 junior Brian Lange, Badger; 5-11 junior Tony Trueman, Lake of the Woods; and 5-10 junior Tom Blazek, Middle River.

TRF Girls Basketball Banquet . . .

Prowlers Present Awards

Kelly Cornell and Cindy Kruta were named co-captains of the 1987-88 Thief River Falls girls high school basketball team Tuesday during the Prowlers' annual post-season banquet that polished off the recently-completed 1986-87 season.

Cornell and Kruta, juniors on this year's 19-2 team, will succeed seniors Laura Beito and Brenda Russell as Thief River Falls captains.

Special banquet awards went to Russell, who was named the team's most valuable player and top offensive player; Cornell, who was presented with the coaches' award; Kruta, named the team's most improved player; and Beito, selected as the team's top defensive player.

Thief River Falls head coach Tom Schafer presented athletic letters to seniors Lisa Lillevold, Russell, and Beito; juniors Stephanie Benson, Dana Miller, Kruta, and Cornell; sophomores Tammy Beito, Val Noel, and Kari Torkelson; freshman Rhonda Rothschadl; plus student managers Susanne Johnson and Lezlie Engen.

The Prowlers started the year with a 19-game winning streak before losing their final regular season start to Fergus Falls 56-53, and then fell to Bemidji 47-45 in overtime in the North Sub-Region 8AA tournament semifinals.

TRF Coaches Like Three-Point Shot

Mike Lundgren Sports Editor

Minnesota State High School League has adopted the use of the three-point field goal for the 1987-88 boys and girls basketball season, going with the 19-foot, 9-inch target range, and Tom Hunt, who coaches the Thief River Falls boys, is more than happy with the new rule.

That's because he'll have long-range shooters like Chris Nelson and Chris Bjorgaard, both juniors this year, back next winter, and you can expect a three-pointer or two from that combination.

"I definitely like it," said Hunt when asked about his feelings on the three-point shot. "It's going to be a lot of fun for the kids, and it should be exciting for the fans. It will, however, create turmoil for coaches. Strategy in close games will change. You shoot 35 per cent from three-point range, it's like shooting 50 per cent from the inside. The three-pointer should also spread out the defense and open up your inside game."

The rule arrives a year too late for the Thief River Falls girls, said head coach Tom Schafer of the Prowlers, who will lose strong-shooting guard Brenda Russell to graduation this year.

"I would have liked to have had the rule this year," noted Schafer. "Brenda would have had a couple of three-pointers, I'm sure. I don't think it'll have as much an impact on girls as it will with the guys. The only one we'll have next year who would probably be capable of hitting the three-pointer will be Kelly Cornell."

Puetz was third in the 100-yard backstroke in a school-record 59.21, and was ninth in the 200-yard backstroke in 2:11.23. She was also a member of the Sioux 400-yard freestyle relay team that placed fifth in 3:43.55, and swam on the UND 400-yard medley relay team that placed seventh in 4:02.30.
